ALLIES AND GERMANS LOCKED IN BATTLE TO A FINISH OUTSIDE THE 'GATES' OF OSLO

Germans Pleased With Progress in Norway Invasion

Say That the More British Landed the Better They Like It

IMPORTANT CENTERS DAMAGED BY BOMBS

Nazis Declare They Have Destroyed Andalsnes in Air Raid

Berlin, April 23 (AP)—The first admission of direct fighting between British and German land forces in central Norway came from authorized German sources today but German officialdom, analyzing reports of additional air and naval engagements, adopted the attitude that the more the British attempt to land in Norway the better we like it.

Nazi confidence was bolstered by news of the German bombings of Andalsnes and Namsos, British debarkation points south and north of German-held Trondheim; Grong, railway point thirty miles west of Namsos, and Dombas, another strategic rail point sixty miles south of Andalsnes. The Nazis said that Andalsnes had been destroyed by an all-day air raid Sunday.

Coupled with these announced successes, the Germans claimed the sinking of two British transports and one destroyed, the firing of another transport, a hit on another destroyer and damage to two enemy aircraft.

"If the British land as many as 100,000 troops—all the better" authorized Nazis asserted defiantly.

Declare British Doomed

Seen through German eyes, all attempts by the British to gain a foothold in Norway are doomed to absolute failure. Likewise, Norwegian resistance is "sheer suicide." "The Norwegian army has only second-rate equipment," one authorized commentator observed. "We, on the other hand, came to Norway prepared in every way in the most modern and up-to-date manner.

"We have not left out any detail. We seized every strategic point along the entire coast. There isn't any port of consequence which is not in our hands.

"Why, when the British arrived here and there to land they couldn't even set up their anti-aircraft batteries. We control the railways or else, as happened as Dombas and Grong, destroy them if the English or Norwegians try to use them.

"Our transports ply to and fro over the Skagerrak to bring up our reserves unhindered. We smash air bases as fast as they are set up. In the interior of the country we are advancing steadily.

"Thus our hold grows stronger every day. We can only hope the British will be stubborn enough to try again to reach the Norwegian coast. We will annihilate them where we find them."

Baby Due in Home of Cromwells in August

HAPPY EVENT SOON

American Minister to Canada Announces Coming Event

By MARY ELIZABETH PLUMMER

New York, April 23 (AP) — A baby who will be born with a super-silver spoon in its mouth is expected in the household of James H. R. Cromwell and his wife, the former Doris Duke, one of the wealthiest women in the world.

A bright financial future assured by riches on both sides of the family awaits the child, due in August — the first baby of the "The Golden Girl" who has inherited the bulk of the late James B. Duke's vast tobacco fortune and will receive more.

Cromwell, U. S. minister to Canada and aspirant for the New Jersey Democratic nomination for United States senator, is not only prosperous in his own right, but is in line for a share of the Philadelphia Stotesbury fortune as the stepson of the late banker, E. T. Stotesbury.

Fortunate Child

The child will have 2,400-acre playground with huge trees, velvety lawns and gleaming statuary in "Duke Farms" Mrs. Cromwell's estate at Somerville, N. J.

Its nursery prospects are virtually unlimited, including the Cromwells' Hawaiian seaside retreat, "Shangri-La"; their cottage at Antibes, their North Carolina place and villas in Palm Beach and Newport.

Cromwell, who announced yesterday that he would resign his post as minister May 21, the date of New Jersey's primary election, confirmed the expected birth today in Ottawa.

The Cromwells were married in 1935.

She is 27, he is 43, and the father of a debutante daughter, Christine, 16, by his first marriage to wealthy Delphine Dodge.

Far more successful at avoiding the limelight than the former Barbara Hutton another famous heiress, Mrs. Cromwell has lived in comparative quiet — a firm-chinned, gold-blonde girl of conservative tastes.

She seldom went to the more garish night clubs.

Her First $10,000,000

At 22, she inherited her first $10,000,000 from her father's estate. Another $10,000,000 share went to her at 25, and she will receive a third.

Cromwell has been in the limelight since his college days partly because of his outspoken economic theories. In a blunt speech last month in Toronto, he "risked his official head" by asailing the Nazi

Flood Situation Is Less Serious In West Virginia

Army Engineers Say Ohio River Will Soon Recede

Huntington, W. Va., April 23 (AP)—Light showers fell tonight as the Ohio river, burdened by nearly a week of rain, crested at 56.7 feet, 6.7 feet above flood level, but army engineers and the weather bureau said no further rise was expected.

The big stream remained almost stationary during the day, edging up another two inches after U. S. engineers announced a crest at 8 a. m. The engineers said the river would begin to recede about midnight.

Upstream towns put mop-up squads to work clearing away silt and debris, while Cincinnati awaited a 60-foot crest tomorrow. Flood stage is 52 feet there, but the city viewed the rising water as "just another freshet." Only low-lying areas were affected.

Many Given Help

Relief crews at Cincinnati evacuated many among an estimated 6,200 persons affected when the river reaches sixty feet. Some river front mercantile and commission houses closed.

Publishers Hear Leaders Discuss Various Problems

Col. Frank Knox Is Among Speakers at New York Meeting

New York, April 23 (AP)—The editorial, advertising, circulation and mechanical problems besetting the publishers of newspapers of 50,000 circulation or less were discussed today at the American Newspaper Publishers Association's fifty-fourth annual convention.

While the publisher-members were meetnig, Col. Frank Knox, publisher of the Chicago Daily News, was telling another group—The National Newspaper Promotion Association—that "giants of journalism would evolve from the complexities of current publishing problems."

Charles A. Stauffer of the Phoenix, Ariz, Republic-Gazette; Buell W Hudson of the Woonsocket, R I., Call, and I. Z. Buckhalter of the Lancaster, Pa., Newspapers, Inc., led one discussion on methods of combatting attacks on advertising contained, they said, in school text books.

The Columbia University Press was named as the publisher of books, used in many high schools, which allegedly distort the economics of advertising.

Stauffer said the books were in part responsible for a growing distrust, in some sections, of newspaper reports, and injured the welfare of papers by asserting that advertising added to the cost of products.

Warships, Planes Reported Fighting In the Skaggerak

Two Separate Battles in Progress, Stockholm Dispatches Assert

By THOMAS F. HAWKINS

Stockholm, April 23 (AP)—Fierce, sea-and-air warfare, sparked by an attack on a German transport convoy, was reported raging in the Skagerrak tonight while Allied troops in Norway threatened Nazi positions on three fronts.

The Stockholm newspaper Nya D[illegible]gt Allenhanda reported from Sweden's west coast that warships and airplanes were engaged in two battles in the Skaggerak.

From the roar of gunfire off the coast, "it said, the fighting seems likely to prove the most severe in the two weeks since Germany invaded Norway.

Many fighting planes were involved in the battles and at one coastal vantage point, ten destroyers could be seen speeding past, all of them with their guns spouting.

Battle Near Oslo

On land, meanwhile, the newspaper Aftonbladet reported a battle in progress "at the door of Oslo," in the sector from Elverum to Hamar and Lillehammer, about sixty miles north of Norway's Nazi-held capital.

These reports said a powerful Allied force is advancing in the direction of Hamar. The Allied forces, already engaged in a widening series of encounters with the Germans, apparently are heading toward a decisive clash there.

The Germans' effort seems to be concentrated in cutting the railroad between Hamar and Andalsnes, Norwegian west coast debarkation point for the British forces, to isolate the Hamar sector.

Dombas, which the Germans have subjugated to heavy bombardment and near which they dropped parachute troops, is an important junction of the Andalsnes-Hamar line.

Another major battle seems to be stirring in the region of German-held Trondheim, which the British apparently were trying to surround with forces landed at Namsos, 100 miles north, and Andalsnes, the same distance south. At some points the opposing lines are separated by only a few hundred yards.

(The British war ministry said a "sharp encounter" had been fought north of Trondheim and that "operations are proceeding in co-operation with Norwegian forces.)

Germans Almost Trapped

Swedish reports concerning the far northern iron ore port, Narvik, say the German garrison there is almost trapped with British-Norwegian troops ringing it by land and British naval units hemming it in from the sea.

Swedish sailors who left Narvik Sunday declared that by masterful marksmanship the British had destroyed only four buildings in their repeated bombardments of the Germans in Narvik. German reports acknowledged another barrage of shells from British warships but said there had been no effort to land troops.

As a result of a German aerial attack on Swedish fishing vessels Monday, all fishing craft were held in their harbors on Sweden's west coast today.

A communique from German-held Oslo said British bombers reached Oslo last night but that they "had to run away after dropping some bombs without aim." (In London, the Britinsh announced bombing two military bases near Oslo).

Britain Announces Drastic Taxes To Carry on the War

History-Making Budget of $10,000,000,000 Proposed

By EDWIN STOUT

London, April 23 (AP)—Great Britain today announced a history-making budget of nearly $10,000,000, imposed drastic new taxes to meet part of the cost of her war against Germany and set in motion an economic revolution designed to put the nation's "whole economy" under government control.

The proposed expenditure of £2,667,000,000 ($9,334,500,000) for the fiscal year ending next March 31, was announced by Sir John Simon, chancellor of the exchequer, in a two hour and ten minute speech in the House of Commons and amounts to $230 for every man, woman and child in Britain. More than half of it must be borrowed.

That per capital bill for carrying on both the government and the war is more than three times the per capita cost of the United States federal government in 1939—$70.

As for the cost of the war itself, Sir John told the House that Great Britain spent £905,000,000 (about $3,167,000,000) in the first seven months of the conflict.

War Estimate Rising

He declared that figure indicated an annual war expenditure at the rate of about £1,500,000,000 ($5,250,000,000), but that the estimate was rising and the rate of annual expenditure would be £2,000,000,000 (about $7,000,000,000) by the end of the fiscal year next March.

The budget represents an increase in the expenditure of £850,000,000 ($2,975,000,000) over the 1939-40 year.

Under it the government would spend almost the equivalent of the

Incumbent Increases Lead as Votes from Cities Are Tabulated

Philadelphia, April 23 (AP)—Pennsylvania's junior senator, Joseph F. Guffey, built a steadily increasing lead tonight in his fight for the Democratic nomination for a second term.

In the Pennsylvania primary campaign's hottest contest, he started with a margin over his chief opponent, Walter A. Jones, fellow Pittsburgher, in the first Philadelphia districts reported. His gains increased as tabulations came from other parts of the state.

Unofficial count from 1429 of the state's 8105 districts for Democratic nomination for senator gave:

Annenberg Given Month Respite in Tax Law Violation

Publisher Admits He Evaded Paying $1,217,296; Owes $5,548,383

Chicago, April 23 (AP)—M. L. Annenberg, affluent publisher who once dominated a nation-wide racing news empire, pleaded guilty today to a charge of evading $1,217,296 in income taxes but final disposition of the case was deferred for a month.

The delay in pronouncing judgment afforded time for a settlement of civil claims in negotiations through which eventually the government hopes to collect approximately $9,000,000 from the Philadelphian and some of his many corporations.

Admits Guilt on One Count

Annenberg, tall, gaunt and grave, entered a plea of guilty to evasion of $1,217,296 in levies on his 1936 income. That constituted one count of a six-count indictment alleging failure to pay $3,258,809 altogether on his earnings from 1932 to 1936, inclusive. The total of $2,289,574 in penalties and interest brought the total sought to $5,548,383 and made it the largest criminal tax case on federal records.

The maximum penalty on the count involving the guilty plea would be five years imprisonment or a $10,000 fine, or both. But Annenberg's counsel, Weymouth Kirkland, intimated he had hopes for leniency when Judge James H. Wilkerson acts upon the plea on May 23.

At the same time, however, U. S. District Attorney William J. Camp-

Brothers Argue Over War and One Kills the Other

Carlos A. Morrison, Notre Dame Graduate, Fatally Wounded

Huntington, W. Va., April 23 (AP)—An argument between two brothers over the war in Europe ended tonight in the death of Carlos A. Morrison, 26, and the arrest of his brother Clyde, 40, on a charge of murder.

State Police Sergeant E. S. Duckworth said Clyde Morrison fired a fusillade of shots at Carlos after he had attempted to stop a fight between Carlos and another brother Eugene, 34.

Duckworth arrested Clyde Morrison at the Morrison home several hours after the shooting and took him to the Wayne county jail. He said Clyde had gone to bed and was unaware his brother was dead.

Alton Stevens, 30, who witnessed the shooting in front of the Morrison store, at Winslow, just across the Wayne county line, told this story, Duckworth said:

"Carlos and Eugene had been listening to a radio broadcast and began to argue over whether the English or the German army was the strongest.

"Finally they got mad and started to fight. Clyde came in with a hammer and made Carlos geta up. Carlos got a pistol and a shotgun from the store, and Eugene got a gun from the house. Carlos told Clyde to take a gun and 'shoot it out.'

'Clyde refused, but he suddenly grabbed the pistol from Carlos and

Fate of Norway May Be Decided In Drive Outside Important Center

Norwegians Participating in Struggle at Lillehammer; British Attacked in Trondheim Area

By DREW MIDDLETON

London, April 23 (AP) — The tide of war on the hard northern battleground boiled tonight into southern Norway and found Allied and German troops, alike far from home, engaged in a battle of seeming decision for the "gate" to Oslo and, perhaps, command of the invaded nation's destiny.

At home, on the day of St. George, Britain's patron saint, the war front hardened, too.

Alfred Duff Cooper, former war secretary and First Lord of the Admiralty, called the nation to a total war against the "whole German people" — not only the Nazis — declared "the German people" must be beaten in battle and warned them they need expect no sympathy if, afterwards, they come "whining and groveling" as he said they did at Versailles.

But of more immediate concern to every one of Britain's people was the £2,667,000,000 ($9,344,50,000) war budget for the next fiscal year, as unfolded by Chancellor of the Exchequer Sir John Simon in the House of Commons.

While another uncommunicative communique from the war office pictured British and Norwegian troops as fighting together and resisting "enemy pressure" in the south of Norway, unofficial British and neutral military observers pieced together this picture of the land war:

British Picture of War

1. The first major battle of the campaign is beginning at the gate near Lillehammer where the great Gudbrandsal valley enters the southern plain. It is at Lillehammer that the Allied columns must debouch from the valley if they are to strike across the plain at German-held Oslo.

2. A flying column of Norwegians and British has thrust southward from the Briton's central - west coast landing places and, flanking the Lillehammer conflict, is pushing for Hamar, thirty miles south of Lillehammer and sixty miles north of Oslo. This force has taken Moelven, about ten miles north of Hamar.

3. British troops have "been counter-attacked," in the words of the official communique, by Germans north of Trondheim, on the west coast, and sharp engagements has resulted.

Neutral military men said the first situation was by far the most important. They emphasized that if the Germans recoil before the Allies' heavy guns and mechanized units it will be a grave blow to their hopes of retaining Oslo.

Battle Of Much Importance

Despite the relative smallness of the forces engaged, they said the battle was bound to be one of "great decisiveness."

Activities of the Royal Air Force were coordinated with the troops, the planes pounding German bases, while the navy announced a series of blows at Germany's seaborne communications. Flights of R. A. F. planes bombed Nazi bases at Kjeller

German Invasion of Sweden Feared; Yugoslavia Seems Safe for Present

By ROY PORTER

Paris, April 23 (AP)—The dangers of a spread of the European war to two now-neutral spots—Sweden and Yugoslavia—were reported to have been brought into sharp relief at the two-day eighth meeting of the Allied war council ending today.

Sources close to the French foreign office said the political and military leaders of Great Britain and France, joined for the first time by representatives of German-conquered Poland and German-occupied Norway, considered the present course of the war and studied preliminary plans for the future.

Earlier in the day French military commentators reported there was evidence of increasing German pressure on Sweden in German press and radio campaigns.

While the situation in Yugoslavia was declared to be less tense at the moment, the foreign office source said the Balkan country continues to lie within the war zone. He said, however, that slackening of Italian press criticism has dispelled part of the anxiety for the time being.

The general "tendency" is to watch the two danger spots carefully and be ready to act in the event of aggression in either quarter, it was explained.

The prompt Allied action in Norway was cited as a precedent.

Norwegian Force Threatened with Destruction by Advancing Nazis

By BJORN BUNKHOLDT

Oslo, April 23 (AP)—A portion of the Norwegian forces fighting north of here were described in military reports reaching German-held Oslo today as threatened both from the north and south by swift German troops.

The Germans, striking from Honefoss, northwest of Oslo, were said here to be at Lillehammer, northwest of Oslo, were said here to be at Lillehammer, eighty-five miles north of the capital. Another German group, swinging up the west shore of Mjosa Lake from Eidsvold, yesterday reached Gjovik, about sixty miles north of the capital, and Norwegians caught between the two forces were reported to have but one avenue of escape left—west toward Fosseim fortress and the Valdres valley.

The main Norwegian force north of Oslo appeared to be closer to Swedish border, between Elverum and Rena, and likewise in danger of being trapped.

German extending their line east from Lillehammer and driving north from their positions east of Majosa Lake would threaten it both from north and south.

By reaching Gjovik, opposite Hamar on Lake Mjosa, the Germans control the valuable Toten counties, and Raufoss, five miles south, important because of its ammunition factory.

Lillehammer and Rena are important strategically because they dominate the southern entrances to the parellel Gudbrandsdal and Osterdal valleys, which run north and south.

By their activities at Andalsnes and around Trondheim it appears the English and French Allies intend to move down these two valleys toward Oslo. The Germans apparently are bent upon gaining and holding the southern valley gates.

MacKenzie King Visiting Roosevelt, Will Not Talk War, President Says

By DOUGLAS B. CORNELL

Warm Springs, Ga., April 23 (AP)—President Roosevelt sketched a puzzle picture today—a picture of the heads of the Canadian and American governments, skipping in a conference such topics as politics and policies, although Canada is fighting a war and the United States is affected vitally by it.

Prime Minister W. L. MacKenzie King, the only top executive of one of the warring nations to talk with the president, arrived this morning from Atlanta and was received immediately at the little White House on Pine Mountain.

No Political Meaning

In a matter of minutes, through Secretary William D. Hassett, the president insisted the visit had no political meaning, that it involved "no question of American or Canadian policy." Hassett even added that "it would not be good for the American position" for the prime minister to be interviewed "while he is on a purely vacation trip."

Joshingly and with a touch of skepticism, reporters asked Hassett whether MacKenzie King had brought with him a copy of the Monroe doctrine, whether the president had here a copy of a speech he made some years ago at Kingston Ont., assuring Canada of American assistance in repelling any attack from behind the seas.

Visit "Means Nothing"

The newsmen got no answers, but they had the president's word for it that MacKenzie King's visit "literally means nothing."

"The president has authorized me to say," Hassett declared, reading

Another German group, swinging up the west shore of Mjosa Lake from Eidsvold, yesterday reached Gjovik, about sixty miles north of the capital, and Norwegians caught between the two forces were reported to have but one avenue of escape left—west toward Fosseim fortress and the Valdres valley.

The main Norwegian force north of Oslo appeared to be closer to Swedish border, between Elverum and Rena, and likewise in danger of being trapped.

German extending their line east from Lillehammer and driving north from their positions east of Majosa Lake would threaten it both from north and south.

By reaching Gjovik, opposite Hamar on Lake Mjosa, the Germans control the valuable Toten counties, and Raufoss, five miles south, important because of its ammunition factory.

Lillehammer and Rena are important strategically because they dominate the southern entrances to the parellel Gudbrandsdal and Osterdal valleys, which run north and south.

By their activities at Andalsnes and around Trondheim it appears the English and French Allies intend to move down these two valleys toward Oslo. The Germans apparently are bent upon gaining and holding the southern valley gates.

German Invasion of Sweden Feared; Yugoslavia Seems Safe for Present

By ROY PORTER

Paris, April 23 (AP)—The dangers of a spread of the European war to two now-neutral spots—Sweden and Yugoslavia—were reported to have been brought into sharp relief at the two-day eighth meeting of the Allied war council ending today.

Sources close to the French foreign office said the political and military leaders of Great Britain and France, joined for the first time by representatives of German-conquered Poland and German-occupied Norway, considered the present course of the war and studied preliminary plans for the future.

Earlier in the day French military commentators reported there was evidence of increasing German pressure on Sweden in German press and radio campaigns.

While the situation in Yugoslavia was declared to be less tense at the moment, the foreign office source said the Balkan country continues to lie within the war zone. He said, however, that slackening of Italian press criticism has dispelled part of the anxiety for the time being.

The general "tendency" is to watch the two danger spots carefully and be ready to act in the event of aggression in either quarter, it was explained.

The prompt Allied action in Norway was cited as a precedent.

Britain Announces Drastic Taxes To Carry on the War

History-Making Budget of $10,000,000,000 Proposed

By EDWIN STOUT

London, April 23 (AP)—Great Britain today announced a history-making budget of nearly $10,000,000,000, imposed drastic new taxes to meet part of the cost of her war against Germany and set in motion an economic revolution designed to put the nation's "whole economy" under government control.

The proposed expenditure of £2,667,000,000 ($9,334,500,000) for the fiscal year ending next March 31, was announced by Sir John Simon, chancellor of the exchequer, in a two hour and ten minute speech in the House of Commons and amounts to $230 for every man, woman and child in Britain. More than half of it must be borrowed.

That per capital bill for carrying on both the government and the war is more than three times the per capita cost of the United States federal government in 1939—$70.

As for the cost of the war itself, Sir John told the House that Great Britain spent £905,000,000 (about $3,167,000,000) in the first seven months of the conflict.

War Estimate Rising

He declared that figure indicated an annual war expenditure at the rate of about £1,500,000,000 ($5,250,000,000), but that the estimate was rising and the rate of annual expenditure would be £2,000,000,000 (about $7,000,000,000) by the end of the fiscal year next March.

The budget represents an increase in the expenditure of £850,000,000 ($2,975,000,000) over the 1939-40 year.

Philadelphia, April 23 (AP)—Pennsylvania's junior senator, Joseph F. Guffey, built a steadily increasing lead tonight in his fight for the Democratic nomination for a second term.

In the Pennsylvania primary campaign's hottest contest, he started with a margin over his chief opponent, Walter A. Jones, fellow Pittsburgher, in the first Philadelphia districts reported. His gains increased as tabulations came from other parts of the state.

Unofficial count from 1429 of the state's 8105 districts for Democratic nomination for senator gave:

Guffey 85,168.
Jones 67,837.

In a less spirited Republican contest, Jay Cooke, 43-year-old Phil-

Annenberg Given Month Respite in Tax Law Violation

Publisher Admits He Evaded Paying $1,217,296; Owes $5,548,383

Chicago, April 23 (AP)—M. L. Annenberg, affluent publisher who once dominated a nation-wide racing news empire, pleaded guilty today to a charge of evading $1,217,296 in income taxes but final disposition of the case was deferred for a month.

The delay in pronouncing judgment afforded time for a settlement of civil claims in negotiations through which eventually the government hopes to collect approximately $9,000,000 from the Philadelphian and some of his many corporations.

Admits Guilt on One Count

Annenberg, tall, gaunt and grave, entered a plea of guilty to evasion of $1,217,296 in levies on his 1936 income. That constituted one count of a six-count indictment alleging failure to pay $3,258,809 altogether on his earnings from 1932 to 1936, inclusive. The total of $2,289,574 in penalties and interest brought the total sought to $5,548,383 and made it the largest criminal tax case on federal records.

The maximum penalty on the count involving the guilty plea would be five years imprisonment or a $10,000 fine, or both. But Annenberg's counsel, Weymouth Kirkland, intimated he had hopes for leniency when Judge James H. Wilkerson acts upon the plea on May 23.

At the same time, however, U. S. District Attorney William J. Camp-

Brothers Argue Over War and One Kills the Other

Carlos A. Morrison, Notre Dame Graduate, Fatally Wounded

Huntington, W. Va., April 23 (AP)—An argument between two brothers over the war in Europe ended tonight in the death of Carlos A. Morrison, 26, and the arrest of his brother Clyde, 40, on a charge of murder.

State Police Sergeant E. S. Duckworth said Clyde Morrison fired a fusillade of shots at Carlos after he had attempted to stop a fight between Carlos and another brother Eugene, 34.

Duckworth arrested Clyde Morrison at the Morrison home several hours after the shooting and took him to the Wayne county jail. He said Clyde had gone to bed and was unaware his brother was dead.

Alton Stevens, 30, who witnessed the shooting in front of the Morrison store, at Winslow, just across the Wayne county line, told this story, Duckworth said:

"Carlos and Eugene had been listening to a radio broadcast and began to argue over whether the English or the German army was the strongest.

"Finally they got mad and started to fight. Clyde came in with a hammer and made Carlos geta up. Carlos got a pistol and a shotgun from the store, and Eugene got a gun from the house. Carlos told Clyde to take a gun and 'shoot it out.'

'Clyde refused, but he suddenly grabbed the pistol from Carlos and

Fate of Norway May Be Decided In Drive Outside Important Center

By DREW MIDDLETON

London, April 23 (AP) — The tide of war on the hard northern battleground boiled tonight into southern Norway and found Allied and German troops, alike far from home, engaged in a battle of seeming decision for the "gate" to Oslo and, perhaps, command of the invaded nation's destiny.

At home, on the day of St. George, Britain's patron saint, the war front hardened, too.

Alfred Duff Cooper, former war secretary and First Lord of the Admiralty, called the nation to a total war against the "whole German people" — not only the Nazis — declared "the German people" must be beaten in battle and warned them they need expect no sympathy if, afterwards, they come "whining and groveling" as he said they did at Versailles.

But of more immediate concern to every one of Britain's people was the £2,667,000,000 ($9,344,50,000) war budget for the next fiscal year, as unfolded by Chancellor of the Exchequer Sir John Simon in the House of Commons.

While another uncommunicative communique from the war office pictured British and Norwegian troops as fighting together and resisting "enemy pressure" in the south of Norway, unofficial British and neutral military observers pieced together this picture of the land war:

British Picture of War

1. The first major battle of the campaign is beginning at the gate near Lillehammer where the great Gudbrandsal valley enters the southern plain. It is at Lillehammer that the Allied columns must debouch from the valley if they are to strike across the plain at German-held Oslo.

2. A flying column of Norwegians and British has thrust southward from the Briton's central - west coast landing places and, flanking the Lillehammer conflict, is pushing for Hamar, thirty miles south of Lillehammer and sixty miles north of Oslo. This force has taken Moelven, about ten miles north of Hamar.

3. British troops have "been counter-attacked," in the words of the official communique, by Germans north of Trondheim, on the west coast, and sharp engagements has resulted.

Neutral military men said the first situation was by far the most important. They emphasized that if the Germans recoil before the Allies' heavy guns and mechanized units it will be a grave blow to their hopes of retaining Oslo.

Battle Of Much Importance

Despite the relative smallness of the forces engaged, they said the battle was bound to be one of "great decisiveness."

Activities of the Royal Air Force were coordinated with the troops, the planes pounding German bases, while the navy announced a series of blows at Germany's seaborne communications. Flights of R. A. F. planes bombed Nazi bases at Kjeller

MacKenzie King Visiting Roosevelt, Will Not Talk War, President Says

By DOUGLAS B. CORNELL

Warm Springs, Ga., April 23 (AP)—President Roosevelt sketched a puzzle picture today—a picture of the heads of the Canadian and American governments, skipping in a conference such topics as politics and policies, although Canada is fighting a war and the United States is affected vitally by it.

Prime Minister W. L. MacKenzie King, the only top executive of one of the warring nations to talk with the president, arrived this morning from Atlanta and was received immediately at the little White House on Pine Mountain.

No Political Meaning

In a matter of minutes, through Secretary William D. Hassett, the president insisted the visit had no political meaning, that it involved "no question of American or Canadian policy." Hassett even added that "it would not be good for the American position" for the prime minister to be interviewed "while he is on a purely vacation trip."

Joshingly and with a touch of skepticism, reporters asked Hassett whether MacKenzie King had brought with him a copy of the Monroe doctrine, whether the president had here a copy of a speech he made some years ago at Kingston Ont., assuring Canada of American assistance in repelling any attack from behind the seas.

Visit "Means Nothing"

The newsmen got no answers, but they had the president's word for it that MacKenzie King's visit "literally means nothing."

"The president has authorized me to say," Hassett declared, reading

O'Shea Says Communists Can Stop Transportation in New York City

Washington, April 23 (AP)—From red-headed Thomas Humphrey O'Shea, who said he was the first president of the Transport Workers Union, the Dies Committee heard today that Communists were in a position to paralyze the transport systems of New York and Alaska.

In the brogue of his native Ireland, O'Shea testified that the Communist party not only dominated the transport workers union and the United Radio, Electrical and Machine Workers Union (both CIO) but that it held key positions in maritime labor organizations.

Furthermore, he said, gun clubs had been organized by transport union members for regular target practice.

"Do they have these guns for the same reason that these seventeen Christian Front people had them?" asked Rep. Thomas (R-NJ).

O'Shea agreed.

In New York, Michael J. Quill, international president of the Transport Workers Union, issued a statement in which he said O'Shea's testimony was "absurd."

"There are no gun clubs in the Transport Workers Union," he said. He added that the charge of Communism had been "denied 100 times."

Quill said O'Shea had been expelled from the union in 1938.

O'Shea testified that the Communist party controlled transport unions in Alaska for the purpose of committing sabotage in event of war between this country and Russia.

Calling Quill a Communist, the witness said he had heard him say at a Communist convention that his union would crush "the barons of Wall street" as a steam hammer would smash a mosquito.

O'Shea said that the transport union had affiliated for a time with an AFL organization, under a "Trojan Horse" policy decreed by the Communist international, but that subsequently the Communist international had ordered leaders of the union to join with the CIO to further organization of the unemployed.

Britain Announces

output of all the factories in this industrial kingdom.

The heaviest taxation ever proposed in British history is expected to yield £1,234,000,000 ($4,319,000,000), but the government still must borrow £1,433,000,000 ($5,015,500,000) to make both ends meet in the 1940-41 fiscal year.

The British national debt already is £8,931,000,000 ($31,258,500,000), or about $800 per capita as compared with the United States national debt of $308 per capita in 1939.

Proposed New Tax

Sir John announced a proposed new wholesale sales tax the rates of which have not been determined and which would "reduce the demand for supplies and conserve manpower."

Taxes were hiked on several other items, but the heavy income tax schedules announced in the war emergency budget last fall were not changed except that the surtax will begin at £1,500 ($5,250) instead of the old minimum of £2,000 $7,000).

(The British income tax begins at £125 ($437.50) for a single person and £200 $700) for a married person with no child.)

Beginning April 1, Britons pay seven and one-half shillings on the pound (37½ percent). For the latter part of the 1939-40 fiscal year ending last March 31 the rate was seven shillings (35 percent.

Other High Taxes

Other new taxes included one penny a pint (about 1½ cents) on beer, to yield annually an increase of £18,000,000 ($63,000,000); three pence (about 5 cents) per ounce on tobacco for an increased annual yield of £23,000,000 ($80,500,000); and an increase in the ordinary letter rate from one pence half-penny (about two cents) to two pence half-penny (about three cents.)

Declaring the nation faced the task of "transforming the whole economy," Sir John announced that new legislation would be introduced to stimulate exports.

"There is a strenuous drive to increase exports," Sir John assured the House. "At the same time it is necessary to discourage unnecessary spending at home."

In the main, taxes were imposed on products not essential for subsistence.

bell stated that "the government has not agreed to make any recommendation as to the sentence to be imposed."

Gets 30-Day Delay

Campbell advised the jurist that Annenberg had asked the thirty day delay in disposition of the case so he could arrange to settle his tax bill with the treasury, but he added that there was no agreement between the defendant and the government that the claims should be settled before the court takes action on the guilty plea.

The district attorney announced that when the court passes judgment on the guilty plea next month, the government would dismiss the other five counts in that indictment and free Annenberg as a defendant in three other tax indictments naming him and various associates and companies.

Investigators said that the U. S. hopes to collect about $3,500,000 from some of the Annenberg corporations in addition to $5,548,383 from Annenberg himself.

ed on the feasibility of cooperation between newspaper and radio stations in market and advertising promotion. This discussion was led by Lee P. Loomis of the Mason City, Iowa, Globe-Gazette, which owns a radio station; O. S. Warren of the Great Falls, Mont., Tribune, which has an interest in a station, and A. M. Bass of the Vineland, N. J., Evening Times, which also is interested in a station.

Loomis said that in spite of the advertising on his radio station his newspaper lineage and circulaton had increased. All speakers were agreed that a joint rate for air and newsprint could not be maintained, even if the federal communications commission permitted joint rates.

In opening the day's session, John S McCarrens, ANPA president and vice president and general manager of the Cleveland Plain Dealer, told the publishers "true public opinion is first crystallized not in the capitols, and not in the big cities, but on the plains and through the farm valleys, and in the home towns."

from notes dictated by his chief, "he hoped no unwarranted conclusions, deductions or assumptions would be drawn from Mr. MacKenzie King's visit. He said it literally means nothing. Mr. King and the president are very old friends. They have known each other for thirty years."

Regardless of how devoid of significance previous meetings between Mr Roosevelt and the Canadian leader may have been, they were conferring today for the first time since Canada declared herself at war with Germany.

The occasion was regarded as propitious for a study at least, of the manner in which the conflict has touched the western hemisphere, and Canadian-American relationships. But the president described the prime minister's visit as meaningless and there the matter rested.

Fate of Norway

and Fornebu, near Oslo, to stem the tide of German reinforcements, and again assaulted Aalborg in Denmark, with the admitted loss of one bomber.

The British submarines Sea Lion Sunfish and Snapper, operating in the narrow waters of the Skagerrak, were declared to have sunk nine and possibly ten German merchantmen, five of them in convoy — a total tonnage of 30,000, according to informed naval sources. Eight German ships of 53,108 tons were announced to have been sunk at Narvik, the small ship Rhein captured and the 4,465-ton Torgen Fritzen reported sunk south of Stockholm.

On the other hand, London emphasized a steady drop in British sea losses.

British Report on Losses

The House of Lords was informed officially that British losses in the first week of fierce but sporadic sea fighting in Norwegian waters were three destroyers, one submarine and one trawler sunk. The government spokesman, Lord Hankey, minister without portfolio, indicated that none of twelve other war ships damaged was vitally hit except for the destroyer Hardy, which was beached at Narvik.

Duff Cooper, in making his St. George's day speech, substituted for First Lord of the Admiralty Winston Churchill, who was busy elsewhere.

Although Duff Cooper now has no official status, and, since the war started, has spent most of his time lecturing in the United States, his view reflects the opinion of an increasing number of important people in Britain.

Glowering, Duff Cooper today said he hoped that when "Germany is beaten in the field" Britain would not be taken in by the German nation's cries that Germany's "crimes" were "those of a few politicians."

"Crimes" of the past few years, he said, were not the crimes of one man or a group of criminals, "but the crimes of a whole people." He added:

"Hitler says the entire German people is behind him. I, for one, am prepared to take him at his word."

Victory for the Allies, he declared, is certain.

off British efforts to move south from Namsos.

It was understood in military circles that the British also were encountered north of the inland toown of Lillehammer, where heavy fighting has developed. "Canadian troops" were said to have been taken prisoner in this area. (The British denied tonight that there are any Canadian units in Norway.)

The German authorities urged Norwegians in Oslo to surrender secret arms before Sunday and sternly warned against passive resistance.

British and French residents were issued control cards, which must be stamped several times a day by police.

ELEVEN KILLED IN THIS MINNESOTA AUTO CRASH

Eleven persons, most of them high school students, met death in this wreckage as two automobiles collided head on at high speed near Slayton, Minn. Two others were so severely injured they are not expected to live. Dead and injured were strewn along the highway for 100 feet. The cars, each traveling more than 75 m.p.h., hit so hard that even the engine blocks were crumpled. All six persons in car at right were killed.

New Deal Scored By Mrs. Robert Taft

Huntington, W. Va., April 23 (AP)—Mrs. Robert A. Taft said tonight the centralization of power in the New Deal amounted "almost to Socialism" and accused the Roosevelt administration of "persistent abuse of relief" and "failure to eliminate causes of the depression."

The wife of the Ohio senator who seeks the Republican presidential nomination, spoke at a meeting sponsored by the Cabell County Republican Women's Club.

"The Republican party is the only party which dares to talk the language of the people," she asserted. "New Dealers will not face domestic dificulties but persist in dabbling in foreign affairs."

"The Republican party, through the Glenn Frank report, has offered a constructive program which would take politics out of relief, return the country to a sound economy, ensourage business to begin re-employment and protect the American farmer from unfair competition."

Wrong Name Given In Art Exhibit

Through an error in listing, Stanley Bishop, 11, of Centre Street school was erroneously reported yesterday as a contributor to the fifth annual "Young America Paints" Art Exhibition at the American Museum of Natural History in New York.

Wanda Lee Crawford, 12, of 518 Necessity street, a sixth grade pupil at Centre Street school, should have been credited, according to Miss Helen E. Sandford, Allegany county art supervisor.

Miss Crawford's contribution was a poster advertising the school's recent operetta ,"Little Black Sambo," Miss Sandfort said.

Other Cumberland children with works on display are Flora Hardinger, 7, of Gephart school, and Frederick Gero, 7, of Maryland avenue school.

The advantage of weed control may be added to the many other advantages of putting hay crops in the silo. It has been found by T. E. Woodward of the federal Bureau of Dairy Industry that "seeds of most weeds die after a few weeks in the silo." When a weedy crop is made into hay, many weed seeds are spread to the farm land in barnyard manure.

INTERPRETING THE WAR NEWS

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

Germany's invasion of Scandinavia brought heavy repercussions on the British home front even before the proportions of the expending battle in Norway became clear enough to reveal its true significance.

Stimulated by events in Norway, Sir John Simon, British chancellor of the exchequer, calmly informed Parliament that Britain is bracing for a 1940-41 war effort that will cost more than ten billion dollars. Behind his words lies the conclusion that the Hitler invasion of Norway and Denmark has only served to stiffen the determination of the Allied leaders to fight it out to the bitter end, whatever the cost.

Britain's financial helmsman charply reflected, also, the view of his cabinet colleague, Winston Churchill, that invasion of Scandinavia would prove to be Hitler's fatal blunder.

In England, as in France, German invasion of Norway and Denmark has clearly boomeranged to settle the Chamberlain and Reynaud war ministries far more firmly in the saddle of political power than they were two short weeks ago.

Many neutral observers, seeking to fathom Hitler's real reasons for breaking down the barrier which Scandinavian neutrality had imposed against an Allied attack on his Baltic flank, share the belief that he has already failed of his first objective.

That Hitler and his advisers, who urged the sweep into Norway hoped not only to complete it almost as quickly and bloodlessly as the German occupation of Denmark now seems certain. Were it not for stubborn Norwegian resiseance, the Nazis might have realized their dream of confronting the neutral world and the dazed Allies with an accomplished fact in the form of a subservient and completely occupied Scandinavia.

The gallant struggle of Norway's citizen-soldiery and the definance of King Haakon have done more than upset that Berlin dream of a grand gesture to whip all other European neutrals to the German heel. The Allies have been given time and opportunity to muster in Norway a battle strength which might turn the while tide of war heavily against Germany.

Unquestionably that Norwegian refusal to accept German overlordship without resistance has forced Hitler into a defensive role.

Sweden's iron mines are still the greatest prize the Allies can gain in Scandinavia. Narvik, scene of the first Allied-Nazi clash on the new north front, will become the war's most critical sector if Sweden is sucked into the conflict. And it is already isolated by land and sea, its slender Nazi garrison in a closing Allied-Norwegian trap.

Methodist Leaders To Confer Today

Atlantic City, N. J., April 23 (AP)—Two thousand Methodist leaders from all over the world begin tomorrow morning the first general conference of the newly united Methodist church.

Included among them were 776 official delegates, chosen to represent 124 regional conferences in the United States, Europe, Asia, Africa and Latin America. Fifty-two of the church's fifty-eight living bishops have been here a week and were busy today preparing their quadrennial "message" to the church.

The bishops didn't get their message on proposed legislation finished today and were expected to ask permission of the conference to delay its presentation until Thursday.

Under the church's governmental structure any individual Methodist, or group, may send a "memorial" asking the general conference to take this action or that. So far, 103 such memorials have been presented.

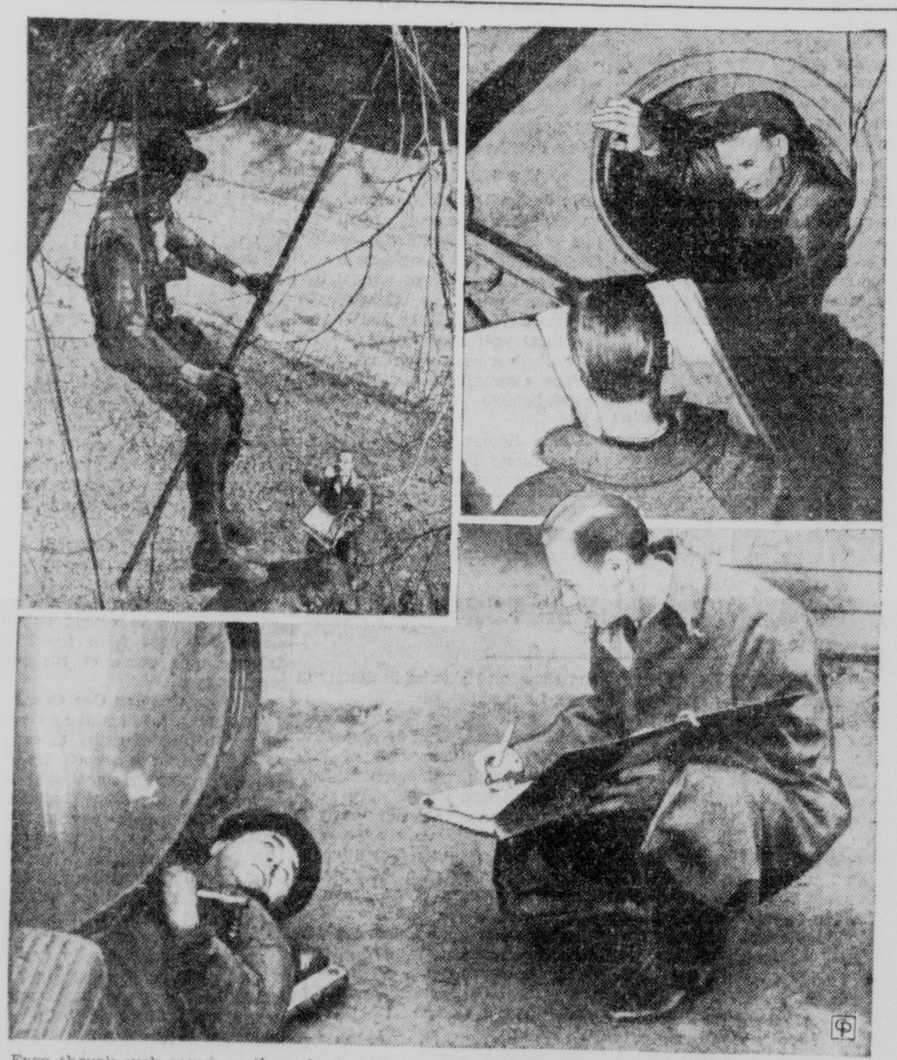
NOT PART OF CENSUS JOB -- JUST THE NIGHTMARES



Even though such scenes as these don't really occur because the census enumerators canvass only in the home, still they give an idea of what a census taker's nightmare may be like. Four cents a name would be rather low pay if a census taker had to climb a tree, drop into a sewer or crawl under an automobile to get his information. After all, the requirements for a job as an enumerator do not include the ability to perform as an acrobat, steeplejack or mechanic. The counters probably will appreciate it if you do not make any additions to such bad dreams as these when they call.

Radcliffe's Manager Quizzed on Expenses

Baltimore, April 23 (AP)—An investigation of expenditures in the Maryland senatorial campaign was started here today by representatives of the United States Senate Campaign Expenditures Committee.

Keeping their full program secret, the Senate agents went first to the campaign headquarters of Senator George L. Radcliffe (D-Md) and conferred with his campaign manager, Edward J. Colgan, Jr., and Major Robert H. Archer, law partner of Senator Millard Tydings (D-Md), who is backing Radcliffe for renomination.

The two investigators requested that their names not be used.

Radcliffe said yesterday that "certain methods which my opponent (Howard Bruce) is adopting should be looked into." The senator did not elaborate.

Bruce's headquarters said it "welcomed the investigation.

"All of our expenditures have been for items which the law recognizes as proper," said Clarence Miles, Bruce campaign manager.

Snow Rent Claim May Melt Away

Pueblo, Colo. (AP)—Pueblo attorneys say there isn't much merit to the claim of a Colorado hermit who wants $3,640.62 damages from an irrigation company for "storing a snow bank on my property."

The snow, high in the mountains, melts in July and August and feeds the company's irrigation ditches. The hermit says that inasmuch as the irrigation firm gets all the benefit of the run-off he should be compensated for "storing" the snow through the winter and spring months.

Miss Vena Pointer, authority on water law, says a state statute forbids mining claim holders, such as the hermit described himself to be, from interfering with the flow of streams or ditches.

The hermit threatened to "sell the snow bank to the highest bidder" unless the irrigation firm granted his request for "rent."

Fish Scores Taussig For Warlike Speech

Washington, April 23 (AP) — Rep. Fish (R-NY) today announced Rear Admiral Joseph K. Taussig's prediction of "eventual war" with Japan and told his colleagues that Congress should investigate "inflammatory speeches" and war propaganda from navy officers.

The New Yorker referred to statements Taussig made yesterday before the Senate Naval Committee. Navy officers, Fish said in the House, "think the only duty of our navy is to go to war with Japan.

Appearing before the Senate Committee today, Major General H. H. Arnold, chief of the Army Air Corps, testified that fighting planes needed by the army were being delivered on schedule despite the heavy orders being placed in this country by the Allies.

Flood Situation

flood stage was recorded, cleaned up as the river dropped to 41 feet, falling .2 an hour. All inundated sections were expected to be clear there and Parkersburg tomorrow.

Point Pleasant reported a barely perceptible drop from the flood crest of almost 52 feet, 12 feet over flood stage. Seventy families were homeless there. The Kanawha river was falling and predicted showers were not expected to have any effect.

At Pomeroy, O., where the water poured seven feet over the business district yesterday, the Ohio fell away slowly from a 54.3 foot top.

Business Area Inundated

More than two-thirds of the business section of Catlettsburg, Ky., was inundated as well as a residential section twelve blocks long and two squares deep but the Ohio crested at 57.5 feet late today and the tributary Big Sandy river was stationary.

Mayor Harry Zackem of Greenup, Ky., halfway between Portsmouth and Iron, O., said inundation of highway route twenty-three cut off the last outlet from the business district, the central part of which was flooded.

Downriver Louisville, Ky., looked for a crest of 35.5 feet on Thursday, or 7.5 feet above the flood mark.

Bruce Urges Big Navy for Peace

Princess Anne, Md., April 23 (AP)—Howard Bruce, Democratic candidate for the senatorial nomination, attended a reception here tonight at the conclusion of his second campaign tour of Somerset county.

Speaking briefly at the hotel reception, Bruce urged the building of a large navy as the best guarantee against becoming involved in war.

During the day Bruce toured the waterfront district in the upper part of Somerset county, and was introduced to almost 1,000 persons in ten voting districts.

He was accompanied by C. Edwin Hayman, Princess Anne business man, Harding P. Tull of Marion, Bruce campaign manager in lower Somerset, and others.

Hayman, president of the Princess Anne Democratic Club, said Bruce sentiment had "increased daily" in recent weeks.

Science Will Pry Into the Home Life Of the Oyster

AP Feature Service

Milford, Conn. — Your Uncle Sam is building a marine biological laboratory here in order to pry into the home life of the oyster among other things.

It's not curiosity alone which prompts the government to assume the role of Peeping Tom on the oyster's intimate affairs. Scientists hope that their investigation may yield benefits for a $17,000,000 industry along the Atlantic and Gulf Coasts.

Dr. Victor L. Loosanoff, director of the Milford laboratory of the Federal Bureau of Fisheries, explained that while selective cattle and plant breeding had become commonplace, little had been done to improve the oyster since the colonial settlers first smacked their lips over the delicacy.

On the grounds of the new $44,000 laboratory, a series of tidal water tanks have been built for experiments—the first on a large scale in this country — which have as their goal the breeding of the ideal oyster.

Such an oyster, said Loosanoff, would be fatter and tastier and would grow more rapidly than the present variety. It now takes four years for the oyster to reach eating size.

The League Finds A Use for Figures

Geneva, Switzerland (AP) — The disarmament division of the League of Nations, which used to be one of the main sections, has shriveled since the bottom dropped out of the disarmament market.

Most of its employes have been fired or transferred, but the few who are left turn out some interesting figures on arms costs which League statisticians, in their spare time, use to demonstrate that the League doesn't really cost much—relatively.

In 1938, world governments spent some $20,000,000,000 on armed forces. In the same year it cost one 3,333rd part of that, or $6,000,000 to run the League, the International Labor Office, the World Court, the International Refugee Office and allied organizations.

If the $26,000,000,000 spent by world governments on arms during the "peace months" of January to September, 1939, had been turned over to the League it would have been enough to run it for 10,000 years.

Jones Leading in City of Pittsburgh

Pittsburgh, April 23 (AP)—Senator Joseph F. Guffey trailed Turnpike Commissioner Walter A. Jones tonight in the first returns from Pittsburgh's primary balloting in his race for renomination on the Democratic ticket.

The reports from 30 of the 982 districts in Allegheny county gave Jones 3,185, Guffey 1,154 and Former Mayor William N. McNair 1,011.

The count was the slowest in years here because of the lengthy ballot for convention delegations, which prevented use of voting machines.

An unofficial report showed Jones carried his home precinct 439 to 21 over the senator.

In other early returns from western Pennsylvania Guffey had a lead in Fayette, Blair, Crawford, McKean and Warren counties. Jones was ahead in Somerset and Mercer.

Voting generally was light.

President Roosevelt got 103,872 votes in 1140 districts in the Democratic presidential preference primary. Write-ins on the Republican ballot, for which no name was officially filed, gave Thomas E Dewey 159, Governor Arthur H. James 23, Senator Robert A. Taft 3 and Herbert Hoover 1.

O'Shea Says Communists Can Stop Transportation in New York City

Washington, April 23 (AP)—From red-headed Thomas Humphrey O'Shea, who said he was the first president of the Transport Workers Union, the Dies Committee heard today that Communists were in a position to paralyze the transport systems of New York and Alaska.

In the brogue of his native Ireland, O'Shea testified that the Communist party not only dominated the transport workers union and the United Radio, Electrical and Machine Workers Union (both CIO) but that it held key positions in maritime labor organizations.

Furthermore, he said, gun clubs had been organized by transport union members for regular target practice.

"Do they have these guns for the same reason that these seventeen Christian Front people had them?" asked Rep. Thomas (R-NJ).

O'Shea agreed.

In New York, Michael J. Quill, international president of the Transport Workers Union, issued a statement in which he said O'Shea's testimony was "absurd."

"There are no gun clubs in the Transport Workers Union," he said. He added that the charge of Communism had been "denied 100 times."

Quill said O'Shea had been expelled from the union in 1938.

O'Shea testified that the Communist party controlled transport unions in Alaska for the purpose of committing sabotage in event of war between this country and Russia.

Calling Quill a Communist, the witness said he had heard him say at a Communist convention that his union would crush "the barons of Wall street" as a steam hammer would smash a mosquito.

O'Shea said that the transport union had affiliated for a time with an AFL organization, under a "Trojan Horse" policy decreed by the Communist international, but that subsequently the Communist international had ordered leaders of the union to join with the CIO to further organization of the unemployed.

Gets 30-Day Delay

Campbell advised the jurist that Annenberg had asked the thirty day delay in disposition of the case so he could arrange to settle his tax bill with the treasury, but he added that there was no agreement between the defendant and the government that the claims should be settled before the court takes action on the guilty plea.

The district attorney announced that when the court passes judgment on the guilty plea next month, the government would dismiss the other five counts in that indictment and free Annenberg as a defendant in three other tax indictments naming him and various associates and companies.

Investigators said that the U. S. hopes to collect about $3,500,000 from some of the Annenberg corporations in addition to $5,548,383 from Annenberg himself.

Loomis said that in spite of the advertising on his radio station his newspaper lineage and circulaton had increased. All speakers were agreed that a joint rate for air and newsprint could not be maintained, even if the federal communications commission permitted joint rates

In opening the day's session, John S McCarrens, ANPA president and vice president and general manager of the Cleveland Plain Dealer, told the publishers "true public opinion is first crystallized not in the capitols, and not in the big cities, but on the plains and through the farm valleys, and in the home towns."

Regardless of how devoid of significance previous meetings between Mr Roosevelt and the Canadian leader may have been, they were conferring today for the first time since Canada declared herself at war with Germany.

The occasion was regarded as propitious for a study at least, of the manner in which the conflict has touched the western hemisphere, and Canadian-American relationships. But the president described the prime minister's visit as meaningless and there the matter rested.

Britain Announces

output of all the factories in this industrial kingdom.

The heaviest taxation ever proposed in British history is expected to yield £1,234,000,000 ($4,319,000,000), but the government still must borrow £1,433,000,000 ($5,015,500,000) to make both ends meet in the 1940-41 fiscal year.

The British national debt already is £8,931,000,000 ($31,258,500,000), or about $800 per capita as compared with the United States national debt of $308 per capita in 1939.

Proposed New Tax

Sir John announced a proposed new wholesale sales tax the rates of which have not been determined and which would "reduce the demand for supplies and conserve manpower."

Taxes were hiked on several other items, but the heavy income tax schedules announced in the war emergency budget last fall were not changed except that the surtax will begin at £1,500 ($5,250) instead of the old minimum of £2,000 $7,000).

(The British income tax begins at £125 ($437.50) for a single person and £200 $700) for a married person with no child.)

Beginning April 1, Britons pay seven and one-half shillings on the pound (37½ percent). For the latter part of the 1939-40 fiscal year ending last March 31 the rate was seven shillings (35 percent.

Other High Taxes

Other new taxes included one penny a pint (about 1½ cents) on beer, to yield annually an increase of £18,000,000 ($63,000,000); three pence (about 5 cents) per ounce on tobacco for an increased annual yield of £23,000,000 ($80,500,000); and an increase in the ordinary letter rate from one pence half-penny (about two cents) to two pence half-penny (about three cents.)

Declaring the nation faced the task of "transforming the whole economy," Sir John announced that new legislation would be introduced to stimulate exports.

"There is a strenuous drive to increase exports," Sir John assured the House. "At the same time it is necessary to discourage unnecessary spending at home."

In the main, taxes were imposed on products not essential for subsistence.

Fate of Norway

and Fornebu, near Oslo, to stem the tide of German reinforcements, and again assaulted Aalborg in Denmark, with the admitted loss of one bomber.

The British submarines Sea Lion Sunfish and Snapper, operating in the narrow waters of the Skagerrak, were declared to have sunk nine and possibly ten German merchantmen, five of them in convoy -- a total tonnage of 30,000, according to informed naval sources. Eight German ships of 53,108 tons were announced to have been sunk at Narvik, the small ship Rhein captured and the 4,465-ton Torgen Fritzen reported sunk south of Stockholm.

On the other hand, London emphasized a steady drop in British sea losses.

British Report on Losses

The House of Lords was informed officially that British losses in the first week of fierce but sporadic sea fighting in Norwegian waters were three destroyers, one submarine and one trawler sunk. The government spokesman, Lord Hankey, minister without portfolio, indicated that none of twelve other war ships damaged was vitally hit except for the destroyer Hardy, which was beached at Narvik.

Duff Cooper, in making his St. George's day speech, substituted for First Lord of the Admiralty Winston Churchill, who was busy elsewhere.

Although Duff Cooper now has no official status, and, since the war started, has spent most of his time lecturing in the United States, his view reflects the opinion of an increasing number of important people in Britain.

Glowering, Duff Cooper today said he hoped that when "Germany is beaten in the field" Britain would not be taken in by the German nation's cries that Germany's "crimes" were "those of a few politicians."

"Crimes" of the past few years, he said, were not the crimes of one man or a group of criminals, "but the crimes of a whole people." He added:

"Hitler says the entire German people is behind him. I, for one, am prepared to take him at his word."

Victory for the Allies, he declared, is certain.

off British efforts to move south from Namsos.

It was understood in military circles that the British also were encountered north of the inland town of Lillehammer, where heavy fighting has developed. "Canadian troops" were said to have been taken prisoner in this area. (The British denied tonight that there are any Canadian units in Norway.)

The German authorities urged Norwegians in Oslo to surrender secret arms before Sunday and sternly warned against passive resistance.

British and French residents were issued control cards, which must be stamped several times a day by police.

ELEVEN KILLED IN THIS MINNESOTA AUTO CRASH

Eleven persons, most of them high school students, met death in this wreckage as two automobiles collided head on at high speed near Slayton, Minn. Two others were so severely injured they are not expected to live. Dead and injured were strewn along the highway for 100 feet. The cars, each traveling more than 75 m.p.h., hit so hard that even the engine blocks were crumpled. All six persons in car at right were killed.

New Deal Scored By Mrs. Robert Taft

Huntington, W. Va., April 23 (AP)—Mrs. Robert A. Taft said tonight the centralization of power in the New Deal amounted "almost to Socialism" and accused the Roosevelt administration of "persistent abuse of relief" and "failure to eliminate causes of the depression."

The wife of the Ohio senator who seeks the Republican presidential nomination, spoke at a meeting sponsored by the Cabell County Republican Women's Club.

"The Republican party is the only party which dares to talk the language of the people," she asserted. "New Dealers will not face domestic dificulties but persist in dabbling in foreign affairs."

"The Republican party, through the Glenn Frank report, has offered a constructive program which would take politics out of relief, return the country to a sound economy, ensourage business to begin re-employment and protect the American farmer from unfair competition."

Wrong Name Given In Art Exhibit

Through an error in listing, Stanley Bishop, 11, of Centre Street school was erroneously reported yesterday as a contributor to the fifth annual "Young America Paints" Art Exhibition at the American Museum of Natural History in New York.

Wanda Lee Crawford, 12, of 518 Necessity street, a sixth grade pupil at Centre Street school, should have been credited, according to Miss Helen E. Sandford, Allegany county art supervisor.

Miss Crawford's contribution was a poster advertising the school's recent operetta ,"Little Black Sambo," Miss Sandfort said.

Other Cumberland children with works on display are Flora Hardinger, 7, of Gephart school, and Frederick Gero, 7, of Maryland avenue school.

The advantage of weed control may be added to the many other advantages of putting hay crops in the silo. It has been found by T. E. Woodward of the federal Bureau of Dairy Industry that "seeds of most weeds die after a few weeks in the silo." When a weedy crop is made into hay, many weed seeds are spread to the farm land in barnyard manure.

INTERPRETING THE WAR NEWS

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

Germany's invasion of Scandinavia brought heavy repercussions on the British home front even before the proportions of the expending battle in Norway became clear enough to reveal its true significance.

Stimulated by events in Norway, Sir John Simon, British chancellor of the exchequer, calmly informed Parliament that Britain is bracing for a 1940-41 war effort that will cost more than ten billion dollars. Behind his words lies the conclusion that the Hitler invasion of Norway and Denmark has only served to stiffen the determination of the Allied leaders to fight it out to the bitter end, whatever the cost.

Britain's financial helmsman charply reflected, also, the view of his cabinet colleague, Winston Churchill, that invasion of Scandinavia would prove to be Hitler's fatal blunder.

In England, as in France, German invasion of Norway and Denmark has clearly boomeranged to settle the Chamberlain and Reynaud war ministries far more firmly in the saddle of political power than they were two short weeks ago.

Many neutral observers, seeking to fathom Hitler's real reasons for breaking down the barrier which Scandinavian neutrality had imposed against an Allied attack on his Baltic flank, share the belief that he has already failed of his first objective.

That Hitler and his advisers, who urged the sweep into Norway hoped not only to complete it almost as quickly and bloodlessly as the German occupation of Denmark now seems certain. Were it not for stubborn Norwegian resiseance, the Nazis might have realized their dream of confronting the neutral world and the dazed Allies with an accomplished fact in the form of a subservient and completely occupied Scandinavia.

The gallant struggle of Norway's citizen-soldiery and the definance of King Haakon have done more than upset that Berlin dream of a grand gesture to whip all other European neutrals to the German heel. The Allies have been given time and opportunity to muster in Norway a battle strength which might turn the while tide of war heavily against Germany.

Unquestionably that Norwegian refusal to accept German overlordship without resistance has forced Hitler into a defensive role.

Sweden's iron mines are still the greatest prize the Allies can gain in Scandinavia. Narvik, scene of the first Allied-Nazi clash on the new north front, will become the war's most critical sector if Sweden is sucked into the conflict. And it is already isolated by land and sea, its slender Nazi garrison in a closing Allied-Norwegian trap.

Methodist Leaders To Confer Today

Atlantic City, N. J., April 23 (AP)—Two thousand Methodist leaders from all over the world begin tomorrow morning the first general conference of the newly united Methodist church.

Included among them were 776 official delegates, chosen to represent 124 regional conferences in the United States, Europe, Asia, Africa and Latin America. Fifty-two of the church's fifty-eight living bishops have been here a week and were busy today preparing their quadrennial "message" to the church.

The bishops didn't get their message on proposed legislation finished today and were expected to ask permission of the conference to delay its presentation until Thursday.

Under the church's governmental structure any individual Methodist, or group, may send a "memorial" asking the general conference to take this action or that. So far, 103 such memorials have been presented.

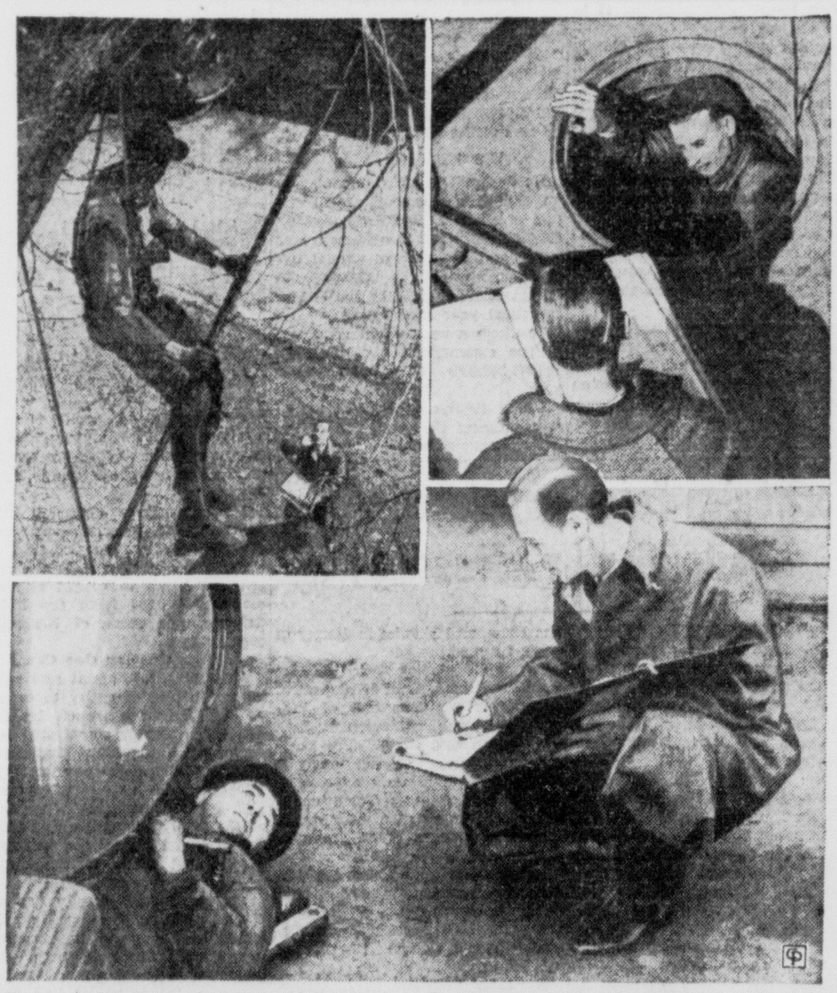
NOT PART OF CENSUS JOB -- JUST THE NIGHTMARES



Even though such scenes as these don't really occur because the census enumerators canvass only in the home, still they give an idea of what a census taker's nightmare may be like. Four cents a name would be rather low pay if a census taker had to climb a tree, drop into a sewer or crawl under an automobile to get his information. After all, the requirements for a job as an enumerator do not include the ability to perform as an acrobat, steeplejack or mechanic. The counters probably will appreciate it if you do not make any additions to such bad dreams as these when they call.

Radcliffe's Manager Quizzed on Expenses

Baltimore, April 23 (AP)—An investigation of expenditures in the Maryland senatorial campaign was started here today by representatives of the United States Senate Campaign Expenditures Committee.

Keeping their full program secret, the Senate agents went first to the campaign headquarters of Senator George L. Radcliffe (D-Md) and conferred with his campaign manager, Edward J. Colgan, Jr., and Major Robert H. Archer, law partner of Senator Millard Tydings (D-Md), who is backing Radcliffe for renomination.

The two investigators requested that their names not be used.

Radcliffe said yesterday that "certain methods which my opponent (Howard Bruce) is adopting should be looked into." The senator did not elaborate.

Bruce's headquarters said it "welcomed the investigation.

"All of our expenditures have been for items which the law recognizes as proper," said Clarence Miles, Bruce campaign manager.

Snow Rent Claim May Melt Away

Pueblo, Colo. (AP)—Pueblo attorneys say there isn't much merit to the claim of a Colorado hermit who wants $3,640.62 damages from an irrigation company for "storing a snow bank on my property."

The snow, high in the mountains, melts in July and August and feeds the company's irrigation ditches. The hermit says that inasmuch as the irrigation firm gets all the benefit of the run-off he should be compensated for "storing" the snow through the winter and spring months.

Miss Vena Pointer, authority on water law, says a state statute forbids mining claim holders, such as the hermit described himself to be, from interfering with the flow of streams or ditches.

The hermit threatened to "sell the snow bank to the highest bidder" unless the irrigation firm granted his request for "rent."

Fish Scores Taussig For Warlike Speech

Washington, April 23 (AP) — Rep. Fish (R-NY) today announced Rear Admiral Joseph K. Taussig's prediction of "eventual war" with Japan and told his colleagues that Congress should investigate "inflammatory speeches" and war propaganda from navy officers.

The New Yorker referred to statements Taussig made yesterday before the Senate Naval Committee. Navy officers, Fish said in the House, "think the only duty of our navy is to go to war with Japan.

Appearing before the Senate Committee today, Major General H. H. Arnold, chief of the Army Air Corps, testified that fighting planes needed by the army were being delivered on schedule despite the heavy orders being placed in this country by the Allies.

Flood Situation

flood stage was recorded, cleaned up as the river dropped to 41 feet, falling .2 an hour. All inundated sections were expected to be clear there and Parkersburg tomorrow.

Point Pleasant reported a barely perceptible drop from the flood crest of almost 52 feet, 12 feet over flood stage. Seventy families were homeless there. The Kanawha river was falling and predicted showers were not expected to have any effect.

At Pomeroy, O., where the water poured seven feet over the business district yesterday, the Ohio fell away slowly from a 54.3 foot top.

Business Area Inundated

More than two-thirds of the business section of Catlettsburg, Ky., was inundated as well as a residential section twelve blocks long and two squares deep but the Ohio crested at 57.5 feet late today and the tributary Big Sandy river was stationary.

Mayor Harry Zackem of Greenup, Ky., halfway between Portsmouth and Iron, O., said inundation of highway route twenty-three cut off the last outlet from the business district, the central part of which was flooded.

Downriver Louisville, Ky., looked for a crest of 35.5 feet on Thursday, or 7.5 feet above the flood mark.

Bruce Urges Big Navy for Peace

Princess Anne, Md., April 23 (AP)—Howard Bruce, Democratic candidate for the senatorial nomination, attended a reception here tonight at the conclusion of his second campaign tour of Somerset county.

Speaking briefly at the hotel reception, Bruce urged the building of a large navy as the best guarantee against becoming involved in war.

During the day Bruce toured the waterfront district in the upper part of Somerset county, and was introduced to almost 1,000 persons in ten voting districts.

He was accompanied by C. Edwin Hayman, Princess Anne business man, Harding P. Tull of Marion, Bruce campaign manager in lower Somerset, and others.

Hayman, president of the Princess Anne Democratic Club, said Bruce sentiment had "increased daily" in recent weeks.

AP Feature Service

Milford, Conn. — Your Uncle Sam is building a marine biological laboratory here in order to pry into the home life of the oyster among other things.

It's not curiosity alone which prompts the government to assume the role of Peeping Tom on the oyster's intimate affairs. Scientists hope that their investigation may yield benefits for a $17,000,000 industry along the Atlantic and Gulf Coasts.

Dr. Victor L. Loosanoff, director of the Milford laboratory of the Federal Bureau of Fisheries, explained that while selective cattle and plant breeding had become commonplace, little had been done to improve the oyster since the colonial settlers first smacked their lips over the delicacy.

On the grounds of the new $44,000 laboratory, a series of tidal water tanks have been built for experiments—the first on a large scale in this country — which have as their goal the breeding of the ideal oyster.

Such an oyster, said Loosanoff, would be fatter and tastier and would grow more rapidly than the present variety. It now takes four years for the oyster to reach eating size.

The League Finds A Use for Figures

Geneva, Switzerland (AP) — The disarmament division of the League of Nations, which used to be one of the main sections, has shriveled since the bottom dropped out of the disarmament market.

Most of its employes have been fired or transferred, but the few who are left turn out some interesting figures on arms costs which League statisticians, in their spare time, use to demonstrate that the League doesn't really cost much—relatively.

In 1938, world governments spent some $20,000,000,000 on armed forces. In the same year it cost one 3,333rd part of that, or $6,000,000, to run the League, the International Labor Office, the World Court, the International Refugee Office and allied organizations.

If the $26,000,000,000 spent by world governments on arms during the "peace months" of January to September, 1939, had been turned over to the League it would have been enough to run it for 10,000 years.

Marian Martin
PATTERN 9313

Play leading lady in this dramatically simple dress that will take the spotlight at any gathering. And to all admiring questions, give the proud reply, "I made it myself, from Pattern 9313. And it took just a few hours, too, with the marvelous Marian Martin Sew Chart!" Just see the lovely, flower-bright embroidery—such an important style feature! Easy directions for applying the motif accompany the pattern. If you decide to omit the embroidery, do try the smart revers style, trimmed with tiny buttons. There's "pointed interest" in the slimming waistline—high in front and low in back, with stunning back skirt gathers below.

Pattern 9313 may be ordered only in misses' sizes 12, 14, 15, 18 and 20. Size 16 requires 3⅝ yards 39 inch fabric. Price 15c.

Here's a clever idea! Women who haven't "perfect figures" (and not many of us have), can be sure of having their smart Marian Martin frocks fit perfectly! The secret? Just order our simple basic pattern in your size, adjust it to your own figure measurements, cut it out in muslin—and you have a permanent guide to use when making all your frocks! Send for Pattern 9306 today! Designed for sizes 14 to 20 and 32 to 50. Size 16 requires 3⅜ yards 36 inch fabric. Price 15c.

Send fifteen cents in coins for each Marian Martin pattern. Thirty cents (30c) for both. Be sure to write plainly your size, name, address, and style number.

Send your order to The Cumberland News, Pattern Department, 232 W. 18th St., New York, N. Y.

During the 1939-40 semester at Pennsylvania State College, student failures were proportionately 12 times greater among those who had been "tail-enders" in high school than among those who led their high school classes.

The total mileage of roads in Great Britain is about 179,000.

Source of Scalise's Bail Questioned

New York, April 23 (AP)—An inquiry into the source of bail posted for George Scalise, the ex-convict labor leader charged with extorting $100,000 from New York hotels and contracting firms, has been started by the office of District Attorney Thomas E. Dewey.

The same time, Dewey associates disclosed that their investigation of suspected extortion was not limited to Scalise, but might be expected to expand rapidly.

Bonds of $40,000 for Scalise and $20,000 for his secretary, Ann Kay, a material witness, were put up yesterday, $30,000 in cash.

The prosecution was interested particularly in where this $30,000-000 came from, pointing out that if it were union money Scalise would have no compelling personal responsibility to appear.

The president of the Building Service Employes International Union of the American Federation of Labor—a $25,000-a-year job—was accused by Assistant District Attorney Murray Gurfein specifically with having shaken down employers by threatening strikes and sabotage.

The Republic of Guatemala was established April 17, 1839.

Protests Experimental Killing of Goats

Washington, April 23 (AP) — The American Humane Association has urged Congress members to prevent a scheduled experiment which would test the killing power of a new oxygen explosive on goats.

Sydney H. Coleman, president of the association, wrote lawmakers that there was no assurance the goats would be killed outright rather than painfully injured.

Lester P. Barlow of Baltimore, inventor of the new explosive, intends to make the demonstration with goats to show the congressmen and others the deadliness of the oxygen bomb. He wrote Coleman:

"Let me tell you Mr. Coleman, I have done more in the last month—by proposing to blast a few goats with modern high-powered aerial bombs—to cause the American people to think of the awfulness of war than all of your so-called humane associations have ever done."

Of the total area of Iceland, six-sevenths is unproductive.

Haiti was formerly a French colony.

Blind for Six Years, He Regains Sight

Pittsfield, Mass., April 23 (AP) — Sight has returned to blind Francis Soutier, 24, as suddenly as the darkness which enveloped his life six years ago.

Soutier, who became totally blind overnight through paralysis of his optic nerve, was working at his newsstand here when suddenly he found himself able to distinguish between darkness and light.

Looking about he could see hazily the moving figures of people. He looked at the stand and could see papers, cigarettes and candy. He doesn't know yet what has happened, but—he can see.

PORTRAIT OF A HAPPY FAMILY

They've just made a big decision—a happy one in what it meant to them in pleasure and comfort and thrift—and they made it carefully and sensibly.

They bought a new car—a new 1940 Plymouth.

They considered "All 3" low-priced cars. They found, at the Plymouth salesroom in chart form, a clear picture of what each low-priced car offers.

They saw that of 22 features in high-priced cars, Plymouth offered them 21, compared to 11 and 8 for the "other two" low-priced cars.

And they discovered Plymouth's Luxury Ride was just as revealing—just as conclusive.

See the Quality Chart at your Dodge, De Soto or Chrysler dealer's—and take the Luxury Ride. PLYMOUTH DIVISION OF CHRYSLER CORPORATION.

The Maryland Primary Election Ballot

MARYLAND VOTERS will not be plagued with an excessively long ballot at the primary election to be held May 6, as is the case in some other states.

The ballot will be comparatively short by reason of the fact that, aside from the state convention delegates, only a few nominations for public office are to be made, these being for president and vice president, United States senator and United States representative. No state or local candidates will be voted on.

For the presidential preference, the Republican voters will vote for Dewey for president. This means that the national convention delegates to be chosen by the state party convention will vote for Dewey under instruction on the first ballot but that on subsequent ballots they are deemed to be without instruction.

Only one set of seven state convention candidates has been filed, and these will go uninstructed, acting at the convention in accordance with the popular wish expressed at the primary.

On the Democratic side there will be no presidential preference and the delegates will thus be uninstructed.

There will be, however, two sets of seven convention delegates from Allegany county, one set being pledged for Bruce and the other for Radcliffe. The Democratic voter may vote for no more than seven delegates but he may, if he wishes, split his choice of the seven between the two sets, or he may vote for one or more delegates of either set up to the total of seven.

For United States senator, the Democrats will have to choose from Senator George L. Radcliffe and Howard Bruce.

On the Republican side there will be the choice for the nomination for United States senator between former Governor Harry W. Nice and former Mayor William F. Broening.

For United States representative, the Democratic voter will have only one candidate to vote for, Representative William D. Byron being unopposed for renomination, but the Republican voters will have to choose their nominee from four candidates, these being A. Charles Stewart, Senator Robert B. Kimble, Walter Johnson and Frank R. Long.

Now this brings uppermost the question of providing for the primary so far as qualified voters are concerned. There will be but one registration day for the primary, this being April 30, and every voter who may qualify should see to it that he, or she, has his name on the registration books. If there is any doubt about that, the voter should visit the registrars on that day and see whether he is listed.

Two registration days will be designated just prior to the general election for the convenience of those who have neglected to have their names registered, but only the single registration day is provided for the primary election.

In this connection it is to be noted that all voters who may be qualified to vote in the general election in November are privileged to vote in the primary election, provided that their residence of a year within the state, dating from their declaration of intention, comes before the general election; and provided also that they become of age before the general election. Thus, a citizen who may not become of age until the last of October or up to the day of the general election may vote in the primary even though he or she is not of legal age at the time of the primary.

As there are many voters who are not registered, it is imperative that they give thought now to their suffrage and see that they will be entitled to exercise it at both the primary and the general elections. If they have given no thought to the matter, it is well for them to be reminded that now, if ever, is the time for them to think seriously about their privileges and their responsibilities in this connection.

At the general election in November, in addition to the nominees, there will be two constitutional amendments and two referenda on which voters are to pass judgment, these having been submitted by the General Assembly. They pertain to the four-year term for governor, an increase of pay for state legislators, a referendum on the split conservation program and the proposal to combine the state Accident Industrial commission with the state Bureau of Mines and the state Bureau of Vital Statistics. There will be time enough to discuss these after the primary, and voters at the primary need not worry about them.

Rumanian Surplus Wheat Trade Doesn't Mean Much

RUMANIA may be tentatively defying Hitler, but it is more likely that Rumania is merely stating the fact, which is that there isn't any surplus of Danubian wheat to sell to Germany and that any wheat cargoes leaving Rumania now will endanger the food supplies needed for Rumanians alone.

Another point the Rumanians make is indicative of the food situation in Europe. Rumania has two million acres less of winter wheat than last year, with weather conditions unfavorable. An effort will be made to plant spring wheat but with Rumania surrounded by the menace of potential invaders, that country is in no situation for bumper crops production.

It is the same all over Europe. Most of the manpower is otherwise occupied and women cannot win normal yields from the soil. Hitherto most European countries have prided themselves upon their ability to produce so abundantly that imports were sharply reduced. That cannot be the case while the war continues. Europe will need food imports and a lot of them. Those nations which can get the imports will fare well. Those unable to get them will be filled with hunger and starvation.

And it will do Germany no particular good to invade Rumania, for such an action would mean poorer crops than ever and in the event the Allies contested the invasion, there would be no crops at all

Flood Control Project Needs Jacking Up

MAYOR HARRY IRVINE is quite right in raising some dust about the long-delayed flood control project and prodding Washington officials into submitting the plan that has been under preparation for many months.

Certainly if the money already available is to be used for the project it is high time that something be done about it. The Citizens' flood control committee and its sub-committee of engineers have been exceedingly patient in waiting for definite plans, which have been promised from time to time, but which have been delayed by other work in the hands of the Army engineers.

Naturally the sub-committee cannot frame a definite report for submission to the general committee, nor can the latter submit recommendations to the mayor and city council, unless it has definite plans and estimates on which to act.

The sub-committee has been informed that unless the money already appropriated by Congress for this project is utilized before the end of this year it will not be available for three more years and possibly not then without another special act. This makes it all the more necessary that something be done one way or another about the project. If it proves to be practical and acceptable, it should be adopted and put under way. If not, something else should be tackled. But a lot of good time is being lost while the thing is pending.

Enthusiasm Is the Thing That Counts

PERSONALITY, good clothes, polished shoes, good looks and the gift of gab are undoubtedly aids in salesmanship, but none of these holds a candle to enthusiasm. He who lacks the others may still sell goods, but no one ever made good as a salesman who lacked enthusiasm.

For enthusiasm is the thing that makes a man believe the costly doo-dad he sells is the prime requisite of business, that the automobile for which he is the agent is the best at any price, that his store offers the best quality at the lowest price and that the town he is trying to sell to others is the best in the world.

It is the enthusiasm of the lawyer that convinces him his client and his cause are always right. It is the enthusiasm of the doctor that makes his diagnosis accurate and his treatment effective. It is the enthusiasm of the insurance man that persuades him he is doing a service to all to whom he explains his policies. And it is the enthusiasm of the service club member that convinces him he is in business to serve humanity first and himself afterward.

Enthusiasm is the thing that lets a man argue that white is black and get away with it. The enthusiastic make the best sales prospects as well as the best sales people. Those easily rendered enthusiastic have no sales resistance because they instantly contract the contagious enthusiasm of the salesman.

Japan will have to be excused if its squawks over the new turn in the European war sound a bit ruffled. Horning into the general conversation with one foot in the mouth wouldn't be child's play even if anybody wanted to listen.

Another luckless neutral is the male, caught in spring housecleaning, as he crosses a room mined with footstools and light cords to trap the unwary in the night time.

In the world of politics, a young Lochinvar has come out of the West, and on further examination turns out to be Dewey again, on the way home.

Humble Pie

By MARSHALL MASLIN

I don't like spinach, even though I know it's good for me."

I don't like egg plant, either, though I know there are seasons of the year when a housewife is at her wits' end to find any other vegetable.

Marshall Maslin

Rolled oats leave me cold—I had enough rolled oats when I was a boy to satisfy my hunger for the rest of this life.

Once I couldn't eat turnips except in the raw state and thought I would never grow used to them. But now I like them and I find as I grow older that I tolerate or even like a good many things I used to roar about.

But there's one dish I don't like and never will like—and that is HUMBLE PIE. It's always being recommended by somebody and I don't see why.

I sit in a restaurant and order something and then I see the waiter going by with delicious foods other patrons have ordered and I wish I had ordered those instead of what is coming to me. . . . But I have never envied any man his order of HUMBLE PIE.

It doesn't taste good and it ISN'T good for anybody. The crust is made of ashes, ground glass and plaster of Paris. The contents are asafoetida, mixed with red ants and flavored with castor oil, limburger and exhaust gas. The rust is garnished with poison oak and sprinkled with nettles. And a thoughtful friend serves your piece with an air of contemptuous superiority.

That's why I don't like Humble Pie. It's supposed to be good for your soul, it's supposed to be a bracer for the morning after, a bit of penance for "people who have done wrong."

Humble Pie is recommended when you haven't been a good boy or girl—and KNOW IT. Humble Pie is advised when you have said the wrong thing, done the wrong thing, made an abysmal ass of yourself. And I DON'T LIKE IT. It never made me feel any better. I refuse to believe it ever made anybody else feel any better. All it ever did for me was push me lower and lower into the pit of defiance and misery, and that's a bad take-off for beginning all over again.

You can eat all the Humble Pie YOU want, but don't order any for ME. I'll say it again—I DON'T WANT ANY! !

British Press Takes the Dust

By EDWIN C. HILL

The European public got its first word of the German invasion of Denmark and the start of the greatest and perhaps most critical naval battle of history in news cablegrams from New York. The guns were blazing for hours before the papers of London were on the streets with the news — via New York.

Edwin C. Hill

It is a matter of simple fact, and not boasting, that American journalism has developed and has long practiced superb techniques of getting and disseminating news far in advance of those of any other nation. Not only a free press but a do-or-die news-getting press is pre-eminently an American institution. Europe's stand-out reporters, from the days of M. De Blowitz, who covered the Franco-Prussian war and the peace for the London Times, wouldn't have to take any back-wash from ours. But over there they don't just have such "shoot the works" newspapers and press associations as we have.

A European newspaper will be loaded with hoary conformities and taboos; it will be venal, or it will lack the resources to do what our sheets do. There may be many a potential Frank O'Malley or Martin Green or Richard Harding Davis, in their press coop, but they all wear the Oregon boot of precedent and conformity and that's like having a dog do tricks with a can tied to its tail.

An Unsung Hero

The Columbia School of Journalism, or somebody, ought to set up a statue to the leg-man. He is a uniquely American institution, an unsung hero of shoe-leather, courage and staying power. In our country it has become established usage, in getting news, to ask the man who has the information—as simple as that. It is frequently unpleasant business, getting people out of bed at unheard-of hours, crashing into a dinner company, flagging some mogul on the golf course, and otherwise invading privacy. It all adds up to the best-informed reading public in the world. And that is a Number-One requirement for advancing political and social education, and popular defenses against stifling bureaucracy.

Shocking Idea

A friend of this writer, a former newspaperman, told me about landing in the London office of a press association, full of pep and rarin' to go. At 2 o'clock in the morning of his first work shift, there was an urgent message from New York asking for clarification of an important news story. Only Lord Whoozis knew the facts. My friend reached for the telephone. His superior asked what he intended to do. He said that, naturally, he was going to call up Lord Whoozis. There was shocked amazement all over the shop. My friend's boss explained that to try to telephone to a member of the peerage at that hour would be nothing short of scandalous and, of course, would only enrage his lordship. Perhaps something could be done the next day.

Turned Down Cold

Our young reporter was on the job at noon, processed through innumerable underlings, through several hours, to his lordship's third assistant secretary. He was informed that if he would call the following Thursday there might be some word as to whether he might see his lordship. Thursday came and the answer was a cold turndown. That angered him. He determined that he would see Lord Whoozis.

Days passed as his effors continued. New York had been sending blistering telegrams about checking that story, but the story died and our friend was called off. He insisted, however, that this was a matter of principle and he would see his lordship or bust. After two weeks, he was shown into a vast, dim chamber at the far end of which sat a wizened little octogenarian. The flunkey motioned him to remain standing by the door.

Direct Talking Denied

Our friend asked his question loud enough for Lord Whoozis to hear. He gave no sign of understanding. Then the flunkey advanced across the room and repeated the question close to his lordship's ear. He mumbled something in reply. It was clear that a peer of the realm could have intercourse with an American reporter only through an intermediary. Our friend advanced to his lordship's chair and said:

"In my country, people talk to each other. That's the only way I know how to talk. You do not wish to talk to me. My disinclination to talk to you is even stronger. Good day."

It's like that in Europe, but we have broken it down over here and that's why they take our dust in the news parade.—Copyright, 1040, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

Keep-Out-of-War Stand by Dewey Is Viewed as Forcing Roosevelt's Hand

By MARK SULLIVAN

Washington, April 23 — Mr. Thomas E. Dewey, in his speeches as a candidate for the Republican presidential nomination, makes a strong "out-of-war" impression. He goes far out on the limb of isolation. Because he does this, and because Senator Vandenberg does the same, there is gradually taking shape a possible Republican campaign policy about the war. This emerging Republican policy differs from Mr. Roosevelt's policy, and hence gives rise to a possible campaign issue.

Mark Sullivan

Mr. Dewey's speech at Oklahoma City last week gave rise to a headline saying: "Dewey says issue is keep out of war." In that speech Mr. Dewey said: "The pledge to keep the nation out of war is one which admits of no temporizing." And at a press conference, his attitude was described thus: "Mr. Dewey said he opposed any modification or repeal of the Johnson act."

Becomes Specific

By this, Mr. Dewey's pledge becomes not only general, but specific and concrete. The Johnson act is the law which forbids any American to lend money to any nation which owes a debt to the United States government and has failed to pay. The Johnson act applies to both Britain and France. The Johnson act in part overlaps upon the neutrality act. The two together prevent the Allies from borrowing money in America or getting credit here.

Now it is doubtful if President Roosevelt would at this time make such a statement as Mr. Dewey makes, about never modifying or repealing the Johnson act. In the past, some of Mr. Roosevelt's statements about America and the war have been loose and informal, and because of that may have seemed imprudent. But as of today, it is doubtful if Mr. Roosevelt would say that the United States government will never permit loans or credit by American citizens to the Allies. Not that any such proposal is in sight; if the matter comes up at all, it will not be for a considerable time.

Difference Emerges

Thus between Mr. Dewey's position and Mr. Roosevelt's, a difference is emerging. Mr. Roosevelt's most formal recent statement of policy about America's relation to the war was in his annual message to Congress last January. The most concrete part of it was:

"I can understand the feelings of those who warn the nation that they will never again consent to the sending of American youth to fight on the soil of Europe. But, as I remember, nobody has asked them to consent—for nobody expects such an undertaking. The overwhelming majority of our fellow citizens do not abandon in the slightest their hope and expectation that the United States will not become involved in military participation in the war."

Limitation Seen

Of the millions who listened to that over the radio, practically every one supposed that Mr. Roosevelt had made a firm, all-embracing pledge to keep America out of the war—a pledge as comprehensive as and Mr. Dewey or any one else could make. But read Mr. Roosevelt's words closely. What his policy promises is carefully and exactly limited. The thing which is not to be done is the sending of American youth to fight on the soil of Europe." Mr. Roosevelt does not promise, as many looser users of words do, that the United States "will not become involved in the war." What Mr. Roosevelt promises is carefully limited by the inclusion of two additional words—the United States "will not become involved in military participation in the war."

Thus Mr. Roosevelt has carefully and greatly limited his promise to stay out of the war. He can fulfill his promise by refraining from one thing, from sending a conscripted army to Europe. In this pledge never to send an army, Mr. Roosevelt is supported by an enormous majority of American opinion. Probably this American determination is permanent. Probably American opinion will never be willing to send a conscripted army to Europe. Probably no president, whoever he may be, would propose that America should. Probably the determination would be maintained even if it became apparent the Allies were going to lose the war.

Leaves Himself Free

But, short of sending an army to Europe, short of "military participation," Mr. Roosevelt leaves himself free to propose many other ways of helping the Allies. Mr. Roosevelt could, without departing from what he has said, propose repeal of the Johnson act, and repeal of that part of the neutrality act which prohibits credit or loans. In addition to thus freeing private loans and credit, Mr. Roosevelt could propose that the United States government, as a government, should make loans or gifts to the Allies. He could propose that the prohibition, in our neutrality act, against American merchant ships going to Allied ports, be repealed. He could propose that American merchant ships be used to the limit to carry food and supplies to the Allies. He could propose that American merchant ships thus engaged, should be convoyed by American naval vessels. All this could be done without departure from Mr. Roosevelt's pledge against "sending American youth to fight on the soil of Europe."

Still Pulling at Cross Purposes

From the Wheeling, W. Va., Intelligencer

The Bituminous Coal Commission has recommended soft coal prices which would increase the yield to operators an average of 11 cents a ton, and add $44,000,000 a year to the nation's coal bill.

So far as this newspaper knows, an eleven-cent increase in the price of coal would not be out of reason. It is entirely possible that it is inadequate. We know that the coal industry has had a very difficult time, indeed, and we have no quarrel with a greater return on coal, although we do object strenuously to price fixing by the government.

The point we seek to make is that while boosting the price of coal on one hand, the government takes away a large percentage of the market for coal with the other.

The raising of coal prices, in short, is just that much more evidence of the contrary character of New Deal administration.

We have referred in these columns heretofore to two important policies of the Roosevelt administration and their adverse effect on the coal industry. The New Deal's foreign trade policy encourages in the first place a general increase in competitive imports. That means that domestic producers of these products produce and sell that much less. Consequently, their ability to maintain employment and wages is reduced. And this, of course, is reflected in a lessened ability to use coal. But these is an even more direct assault on coal contained in the foreign trade policy. We are increasing steadily the direct importations of coal itself, and in the Venezuela treaty, have cut in half the duty on fuel oil. Finally, the water power program is taking away the outlet for a very important and increasingly large volume of coal.

It would seem to this newspaper that were the government to direct its policies to the conservation of the natural market for coal, and to the release of private enterprise generally from the shackles of governmental interference, the demand for coal would be so increased that operators could make a fair profit and miners earn a reasonable annual wage without increasing the price of coal at all, and perhaps decreasing it.

Appeal Bill Attack Not Democracy

By HUGH S. JOHNSON

Washington, April 23 — The vote almost three to one, in the House in favor of the Walter-Logan bill to check our rush in the direction of Nazi bureaucracy certainly reflects a public opinion both that the rush exists and that the people want it stopped.

Hugh S. Johnson

Naturally the bureaucrats don't like that. Naturally they have called in their pet columnists and fed them their documented arguments against it. That happens frequently on both sides, in Washington, as issues arise. For a columnist it saves a lot of leg work. But it's just as easy to get the other side's documented case too.

If any kibitzer omits to do that and gets his neck far enough out it is perfectly civilized warfare for the adversary advocates to crack it. But is it so kosher to admit incapacity to grasp the problem yourself and then, on the basis of testimonials for one side alone of a legislative case, to accuse advocates of the other of being so derelict in their duty to the public as to preach without even knowing what the bill is about.

The Janissariat Technique

This is the janissariat line of New Deal columnar attack on this bill. It starts: "There are problems too intricate readily to be grasped by newspaper columnists." In this self-admitted self-emasculation the commentator wheels into line a battery of "experts" to substitute their direction for the alleged columnar and editorial incapacity. Many of the self-serving "experts" are the bureaucrats themselves or their lawyers, exponents of centralized, personalized and self-perpetuating presidential power. Another "expert" is the Lawyer's Guild. That is the radical rump of secessionists from the American Bar Association. It is mainly made up of pinkish New Deal lawyers. It got so stinking with Communism that even the "progressive" members as Ferdinand Pecora and Morris Ernst threatened to lead mass resignation because the Guild refused to condemn Communist as well as other dictatorships. No wonder it fights this bill to curb our trend toward pink dictatorship. Finally, there is a small interlocking group of Wall Street lawyers whose attitude and opinion I don't yet pretend to understand.

Blatently Unfair

But the blatant unfairness of the approach is that no mention whatever is made of the fact that, contrary to these, who are mostly opponents of a radical political form la rather than of a legal opinion, stands the overwhelming weight of American professional judgment, the American Bar Association, the Judiciary committees of both House and Senate, almost a three-to-one majority in the House and a great potential Senate majority most of whom are lawyers, twenty-two state and many city bar associations and such leading scholars of the law as Roscoe Pound and such governmental experts as Frank Lowden and James R. Garfield—not to mention some of the greatest labor, trade and agricultural organizations in this country.

Maybe this radical minority anti convinces a commentator who finds this subject "too intricate to be grasped." The array isn't important to me—on either side. I have lived with administrative law, organization and practice almost to the extent of Billy Baxter's dachshund which got that way—so low and long—because it was "brought up under a bureau." I have studied and read and written about the Walter-Logan bill for more than a year. There isn't anything about it "too intricate to grasp," even by a columnist. A thing that is easier to grasp is that it is human nature for men who have grabbed personal power never to want to give up any of it or have its use regulated, supervised or even strutinized.

Legislative Hitlerism

This bill has had plenty of debate and study. It goes to the Senate which once favored it unanimously. The tactics of the opposition is not to enter debate or voting on it, but just to stall and strangle it by dilatory tactics of a small minority legislative bloc which may have power to frustrate majority rule by a parliamentary trick. That is not democracy. It is legislative Hitlerism. It is the very kind of thing in Congress which this bill is designed to check in the executive department. Yet it is the kind of thing in respect of which these strong-arm goose-steppers and their columnist claquers call themselves "liberals." They are the worst reactionaries in the country.—Distributed by United Feature Syndicate, Inc.

The Maryland Primary Election Ballot

MARYLAND VOTERS will not be plagued with an excessively long ballot at the primary election to be held May 6, as is the case in some other states.

The ballot will be comparatively short by reason of the fact that, aside from the state convention delegates, only a few nominations for public office are to be made, these being for president and vice president, United States senator and United States representative. No state or local candidates will be voted on.

For the presidential preference, the Republican voters will vote for Dewey for president. This means that the national convention delegates to be chosen by the state party convention will vote for Dewey under instruction on the first ballot but that on subsequent ballots they are deemed to be without instruction.

Only one set of seven state convention candidates has been filed, and these will go uninstructed, acting at the convention in accordance with the popular wish expressed at the primary.

On the Democratic side there will be no presidential preference and the delegates will thus be uninstructed.

There will be, however, two sets of seven convention delegates from Allegany county, one set being pledged for Bruce and the other for Radcliffe. The Democratic voter may vote for no more than seven delegates but he may, if he wishes, split his choice of the seven between the two sets, or he may vote for one or more delegates of either set up to the total of seven.

For United States senator, the Democrats will have to choose from Senator George L. Radcliffe and Howard Bruce.

On the Republican side there will be the choice for the nomination for United States senator between former Governor Harry W. Nice and former Mayor William F. Broening.

For United States representative, the Democratic voter will have only one candidate to vote for, Representative William D. Byron being unopposed for renomination, but the Republican voters will have to choose their nominee from four candidates, these being A. Charles Stewart, Senator Robert B. Kimble, Walter Johnson and Frank R. Long.

Now this brings uppermost the question of providing for the primary so far as qualified voters are concerned. There will be but one registration day for the primary, this being April 30, and every voter who may qualify should see to it that he, or she, has his name on the registration books. If there is any doubt about that, the voter should visit the registrars on that day and see whether he is listed.

Two registration days will be designated just prior to the general election for the convenience of those who have neglected to have their names registered, but only the single registration day is provided for the primary election.

In this connection it is to be noted that all voters who may be qualified to vote in the general election in November are privileged to vote in the primary election, provided that their residence of a year within the state, dating from their declaration of intention, comes before the general election; and provided also that they become of age before the general election. Thus, a citizen who may not become of age until the last of October or up to the day of the general election may vote in the primary even though he or she is not of legal age at the time of the primary.

As there are many voters who are not registered, it is imperative that they give thought now to their suffrage and see that they will be entitled to exercise it at both the primary and the general elections. If they have given no thought to the matter, it is well for them to be reminded that now, if ever, is the time for them to think seriously about their privileges and their responsibilities in this connection.

At the general election in November, in addition to the nominees, there will be two constitutional amendments and two referenda on which voters are to pass judgment, these having been submitted by the General Assembly. They pertain to the four-year term for governor, an increase of pay for state legislators, a referendum on the split conservation program and the proposal to combine the state Accident Industrial commission with the state Bureau of Mines and the state Bureau of Vital Statistics. There will be time enough to discuss these after the primary, and voters at the primary need not worry about them.

Marshall Maslin

Rolled oats leave me cold—I had enough rolled oats when I was a boy to satisfy my hunger for the rest of this life.

Once I couldn't eat turnips except in the raw state and thought I would never grow used to them. But now I like them and I find as I grow older that I tolerate or even like a good many things I used to roar about.

But there's one dish I don't like and never will like—and that is HUMBLE PIE. It's always being recommended by somebody and I don't see why.

I sit in a restaurant and order something and then I see the waiter going by with delicious foods other patrons have ordered and I wish I had ordered those instead of what is coming to me. . . . But I have never envied any man his order of HUMBLE PIE.

It doesn't taste good and it ISN'T good for anybody. The crust is made of ashes, ground glass and plaster of Paris. The contents are asafoetida, mixed with red ants and flavored with castor oil, limburger and exhaust gas. The rust is garnished with poison oak and sprinkled with nettles. And a thoughtful friend serves your piece with an air of contemptuous superiority.

That's why I don't like Humble Pie. It's supposed to be good for your soul, it's supposed to be a bracer for the morning after, a bit of penance for "people who have done wrong."

Humble Pie is recommended when you haven't been a good boy or girl—and KNOW IT. Humble Pie is advised when you have said the wrong thing, done the wrong thing, made an abysmal ass of yourself. And I DON'T LIKE IT. It never made me feel any better. I refuse to believe it ever made anybody else feel any better. All it ever did for me was push me lower and lower into the pit of defiance and misery, and that's a bad take-off for beginning all over again.

You can eat all the Humble Pie YOU want, but don't order any for ME. I'll say it again—I DON'T WANT ANY! !

British Press Takes the Dust

Edwin C. Hill

The European public got its first word of the German invasion of Denmark and the start of the greatest and perhaps most critical naval battle of history in news cablegrams from New York. The guns were blazing for hours before the papers of London were on the streets with the news — via New York.

It is a matter of simple fact, and not boasting, that American journalism has developed and has long practiced superb techniques of getting and disseminating news far in advance of those of any other nation. Not only a free press but a do-or-die news-getting press is pre-eminently an American institution. Europe's stand-out reporters, from the days of M. De Blowitz, who covered the Franco-Prussian war and the peace for the London Times, wouldn't have to take any back-wash from ours. But over there they don't just have such "shoot the works" newspapers and press associations as we have.

A European newspaper will be loaded with hoary conformities and taboos; it will be venal, or it will lack the resources to do what our sheets do. There may be many a potential Frank O'Malley or Martin Green or Richard Harding Davis, in their press coop, but they all wear the Oregon boot of precedent and conformity and that's like having a dog do tricks with a can tied to its tail.

An Unsung Hero

The Columbia School of Journalism, or somebody, ought to set up a statue to the leg-man. He is a uniquely American institution, an unsung hero of shoe-leather, courage and staying power. In our country it has become established usage, in getting news, to ask the man who has the information—as simple as that. It is frequently unpleasant business, getting people out of bed at unheard-of hours, crashing into a dinner company, flagging some mogul on the golf course, and otherwise invading privacy. It all adds up to the best-informed reading public in the world. And that is a Number-One requirement for advancing political and social education, and popular defenses against stifling bureaucracy.

Shocking Idea

A friend of this writer, a former newspaperman, told me about landing in the London office of a press association, full of pep and rarin' to go. At 2 o'clock in the morning of his first work shift, there was an urgent message from New York asking for clarification of an important news story. Only Lord Whoozis knew the facts. My friend reached for the telephone. His superior asked what he intended to do. He said that, naturally, he was going to call up Lord Whoozis. There was shocked amazement all over the shop. My friend's boss explained that to try to telephone to a member of the peerage at that hour would be nothing short of scandalous and, of course, would only enrage his lordship. Perhaps something could be done the next day.

Turned Down Cold

Our young reporter was on the job at noon, processed through innumerable underlings, through several hours, to his lordship's third assistant secretary. He was informed that if he would call the following Thursday there might be some word as to whether he might see his lordship. Thursday came and the answer was a cold turndown. That angered him. He determined that he would see Lord Whoozis.

Days passed as his effors continued. New York had been sending blistering telegrams about checking that story, but the story died and our friend was called off. He insisted, however, that this was a matter of principle and he would see his lordship or bust. After two weeks, he was shown into a vast, dim chamber at the far end of which sat a wizened little octogenarian. The flunkey motioned him to remain standing by the door.

Direct Talking Denied

Our friend asked his question loud enough for Lord Whoozis to hear. He gave no sign of understanding. Then the flunkey advanced across the room and repeated the question close to his lordship's ear. He mumbled something in reply. It was clear that a peer of the realm could have intercourse with an American reporter only through an intermediary. Our friend advanced to his lordship's chair and said:

"In my country, people talk to each other. That's the only way I know how to talk. You do not wish to talk to me. My disinclination to talk to you is even stronger. Good day."

It's like that in Europe, but we have broken it down over here and that's why they take our dust in the news parade.—Copyright, 1040, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

Keep-Out-of-War Stand by Dewey Is Viewed as Forcing Roosevelt's Hand

By MARK SULLIVAN

Washington, April 23 — Mr. Thomas E. Dewey, in his speeches as a candidate for the Republican presidential nomination, makes a strong "out-of-war" impression. He goes far out on the limb of isolation. Because he does this, and because Senator Vandenberg does the same, there is gradually taking shape a possible Republican campaign policy about the war. This emerging Republican policy differs from Mr. Roosevelt's policy, and hence gives rise to a possible campaign issue.

Mark Sullivan

Mr. Dewey's speech at Oklahoma City last week gave rise to a headline saying: "Dewey says issue is keep out of war." In that speech Mr. Dewey said: "The pledge to keep the nation out of war is one which admits of no temporizing." And at a press conference, his attitude was described thus: "Mr. Dewey said he opposed any modification or repeal of the Johnson act."

Becomes Specific

By this, Mr. Dewey's pledge becomes not only general, but specific and concrete. The Johnson act is the law which forbids any American to lend money to any nation which owes a debt to the United States government and has failed to pay. The Johnson act applies to both Britain and France. The Johnson act in part overlaps upon the neutrality act. The two together prevent the Allies from borrowing money in America or getting credit here.

Now it is doubtful if President Roosevelt would at this time make such a statement as Mr. Dewey makes, about never modifying or repealing the Johnson act. In the past, some of Mr. Roosevelt's statements about America and the war have been loose and informal, and because of that may have seemed imprudent. But as of today, it is doubtful if Mr. Roosevelt would say that the United States government will never permit loans or credit by American citizens to the Allies. Not that any such proposal is in sight; if the matter comes up at all, it will not be for a considerable time.

Difference Emerges

Thus between Mr. Dewey's position and Mr. Roosevelt's, a difference is emerging. Mr. Roosevelt's most formal recent statement of policy about America's relation to the war was in his annual message to Congress last January. The most concrete part of it was:

"I can understand the feelings of those who warn the nation that they will never again consent to the sending of American youth to fight on the soil of Europe. But, as I remember, nobody has asked them to consent—for nobody expects such an undertaking. The overwhelming majority of our fellow citizens do not abandon in the slightest their hope and expectation that the United States will not become involved in military participation in the war."

Limitation Seen

Of the millions who listened to that over the radio, practically every one supposed that Mr. Roosevelt had made a firm, all-embracing pledge to keep America out of the war—a pledge as comprehensive as and Mr. Dewey or any one else could make. But read Mr. Roosevelt's words closely. What his policy promises is carefully and exactly limited. The thing which is not to be done is the sending of American youth to fight on the soil of Europe." Mr. Roosevelt does not promise, as many looser users of words do, that the United States "will not become involved in the war." What Mr. Roosevelt promises is carefully limited by the inclusion of two additional words—the United States "will not become involved in military participation in the war."

Thus Mr. Roosevelt has carefully and greatly limited his promise to stay out of the war. He can fulfill his promise by refraining from one thing, from sending a conscripted army to Europe. In this pledge never to send an army, Mr. Roosevelt is supported by an enormous majority of American opinion. Probably this American determination is permanent. Probably American opinion will never be willing to send a conscripted army to Europe. Probably no president, whoever he may be, would propose that America should. Probably the determination would be maintained even if it became apparent the Allies were going to lose the war.

Leaves Himself Free

But, short of sending an army to Europe, short of "military participation," Mr. Roosevelt leaves himself free to propose many other ways of helping the Allies. Mr. Roosevelt could, without departing from what he has said, propose repeal of the Johnson act, and repeal of that part of the neutrality act which prohibits credit or loans. In addition to thus freeing private loans and credit, Mr. Roosevelt could propose that the United States government, as a government, should make loans or gifts to the Allies. He could propose that the prohibition, in our neutrality act, against American merchant ships going to Allied ports, be repealed. He could propose that American merchant ships be used to the limit to carry food and supplies to the Allies. He could propose that American merchant ships thus engaged, should be convoyed by American naval vessels. All this could be done without departure from Mr. Roosevelt's pledge against "sending American youth to fight on the soil of Europe."

Still Pulling at Cross Purposes

From the Wheeling, W. Va., Intelligencer

The Bituminous Coal Commission has recommended soft coal prices which would increase the yield to operators an average of 11 cents a ton, and add $44,000,000 a year to the nation's coal bill.

So far as this newspaper knows, an eleven-cent increase in the price of coal would not be out of reason. It is entirely possible that it is inadequate. We know that the coal industry has had a very difficult time, indeed, and we have no quarrel with a greater return on coal, although we do object strenuously to price fixing by the government.

The point we seek to make is that while boosting the price of coal on one hand, the government takes away a large percentage of the market for coal with the other.

The raising of coal prices, in short, is just that much more evidence of the contrary character of New Deal administration.

We have referred in these columns heretofore to two important policies of the Roosevelt administration and their adverse effect on the coal industry. The New Deal's foreign trade policy encourages in the first place a general increase in competitive imports. That means that domestic producers of these products produce and sell that much less. Consequently, their ability to maintain employment and wages is reduced. And this, of course, is reflected in a lessened ability to use coal. But these is an even more direct assault on coal contained in the foreign trade polcy. We are increasing steadily the direct importations of coal itself, and in the Venezuela treaty, have cut in half the duty on fuel oil. Finally, the water power program is taking away the outlet for a very important and increasingly large volume of coal.

It would seem to this newspaper that were the government to direct its policies to the conservation of the natural market for coal, and to the release of private enterprise generally from the shackles of governmental interference, the demand for coal would be so increased that operators could make a fair profit and miners earn a reasonable annual wage without increasing the price of coal at all, and perhaps decreasing it.

Appeal Bill Attack Not Democracy

Hugh S. Johnson

Washington, April 23 — The vote almost three to one, in the House in favor of the Walter-Logan bill to check our rush in the direction of Nazi bureaucracy certainly reflects a public opinion both that the rush exists and that the people want it stopped.

Naturally the bureaucrats don't like that. Naturally they have called in their pet columnists and fed them their documented arguments against it. That happens frequently on both sides, in Washington, as issues arise. For a columnist it saves a lot of leg work. But it's just as easy to get the other side's documented case too.

If any kibitzer omits to do this and gets his neck far enough out it is perfectly civilized warfare for the adversary advocates to crack it. But is it so kosher to admit incapacity to grasp the problem yourself and then, on the basis of testimonials for one side alone of a legislative case, to accuse advocates of the other of being so derelict in their duty to the public as to preach without even knowing what the bill is about.

The Janissariat Technique

This is the janissariat line of New Deal columnar attack on this bill. It starts: "There are problems of intricate readily to be grasped by newspaper columnists." In this admitted self-emasculation the commentator wheels into line a battery of "experts" to substitute their data for the alleged columnar and editorial incapacity. Many of the self-serving "experts" are the bureaucrats themselves or their lawyer exponents of centralized, personalized and self-perpetuating presidential power. Another "expert" is the Lawyer's Guild. That is the radical rump of secessionists from the American Bar Association. It is mainly made up of pinkish New Deal lawyers. It got so stinking with Communism that even the "progressive" members as Ferdinand Pecora and Morris Ernst threatened to lead mass resignation because the Guild refused to condemn Communist as well as other dictatorships. No wonder it fights this bill to curb our trend toward pink dictatorship. Finally, there is a small interlocking group of Wall Street lawyers whose attitude and opinion I don't yet pretend to understand.

Blatently Unfair

But the blatant unfairness of the approach is that no mention whatever is made of the fact that, contrary to these, who are mostly opponents of a radical political form la rather than of a legal opinion stands the overwhelming weight of American professional judgment, the American Bar Association, the Judiciary committees of both House and Senate, almost a three-to-one majority in the House and a great potential Senate majority most of whom are lawyers, twenty-two state and many city bar associations and such leading scholars of the law as Roscoe Pound and such governmental experts as Frank Lowden and James R. Garfield—not to mention some of the greatest labor, trade and agricultural organizations in this country.

Maybe this radical minority arrogance convinces a commentator who finds this subject "too intricate to be grasped." The array isn't important to me—on either side. I have lived with administrative law, organization and practice almost to the extent of Billy Baxter's dachshund which got that way—so low and long—because it was "brought up under a bureau." I have studied and read and written about the Walter-Logan bill for more than a year. There isn't anything about it "too intricate to grasp," even by a columnist. A thing that is easier to grasp is that it is human nature for men who have grabbed personal power never to want to give up any of it or have its use regulated, supervised or even strutinized.

Legislative Hitlerism

This bill has had plenty of debate and study. It goes to the Senate which once favored it unanimously. The tactics of the opposition is not to enter debate or voting on it, but just to stall and strangle it by dilatory tactics of a small minority legislative bloc which may have power to frustrate majority rule by a parliamentary trick. That is not democracy. It is legislative Hitlerism. It is the very kind of thing in Congress which this bill is designed to check in the executive department. Yet it is the kind of thing in respect of which the strong-arm goose-steppers and the columnist claquers call themselves "liberals." They are the worst reactionaries in the country.—Distributed by United Feature Syndicate, Inc.

Quotable Quotes

By United States Senator Sheridan Downey, Democrat, of California

In the misleading and delusive columns of newspaper propaganda that have gone forth to the aged people of America from the Social Security Board they have been led to believe that the Social Security act is a generous, effective law, when, as a matter of cold fact, it is a futile, impotent instrument of poverty and neglect.

NICE GIRL

She Wanted To See Jim and She Wasn't above Waiting a Long Time, but the Young Man in Tweeds Had Another Idea

BY MAUREEN DALY

Nice girls don't do it but I did. I just wanted to see Jim again, that's all. It's against all the rules of Emily Post and better judgment to call a boy on the phone, especially when he hasn't called you for over a month, but it would be all right to run into him . . . quite by accident, you know . . . say—at the drug store having a coke, wouldn't it? That's what I thought. That's why I made it a habit to stop at the corner drug store every night about 5:30. I knew Jim had to pass by that on the way home from the office and I knew some day he'd have to stop in for some stamps, or writing paper or shaving cream or something and there I'd be, having a coke.

And then Jim would look at me

He was very sympathetic.

surprisedly and say, "Well, hello there! How are you?" And I'd smile and say quietly, "It's nice seeing you again, Jim," and he'd have a coke with me and we'd talk and he'd say, "May I drop you off at your house," and I'd say, "If it's no bother." And then on the way home we'd talk and be very friendly and soon everything would be all right again. It would be very easy . . . if I just saw him again. That's why I started my five-thirty coke habit.

It was a very small drugstore and rather dark. The front window was cluttered with a big cardboard head of a dark-eyed senorita with a rose in her hair advertising cigars and around her were zig-zag piles of boxes of cigarettes, bath soap and talcum powder. In one corner was a special display of pale orchid hot-water bottles . . . a clearout sale. There was one druggist in the store. He sold me a magazine and served me a coke with too much ice. I only stayed a few minutes the first night. Jim didn't come.

By the end of the week the druggist seemed to think I was an old customer. He brought me a coke without my even asking and tuned in dance music on the little radio above the soda fountain and puttered about shining glasses and rearranging ice cream dishes while I stared out the window. Every time I saw a fellow in a big tan topcoat and yellow muffler go by my heart jumped—I though it was Jim. I was quite hopeful that first week. But he didn't come.

Then one day the druggist asked me if I were waiting for someone. I don't blame him for being curious. He was a young druggist—I hadn't really noticed before—and I thought he'd understood so I told him. I told him about Jim and how I hadn't seen him for so long and how I hoped he might stop in here some night on his way home from work and how much I really missed him. And he was very sympathetic and said, "I'm sure everything will turn out all right. I can't understand any fellow not wanting to call up a pretty girl like you." That made me fell better and after that we talked every afternoon when I stopped in.

He told me he had really wanted to be a doctor and had taken a a pre-medical course at Illinois but his funds had run out and he'd taken his degree as a pharmacist instead. And that some day he might go back and get his M. D. I told him he was very ambitious and he said, "Well, not exactly. But I'd just like to do something good with my life, that's all." I liked him for saying that. In the meantime he had bought this little drug store and was running it all by himself. "But I'm not doing such a good job of it," he said. That was in February.

We became very good friends after that. I told him all about Jim. About what a good dancer he was and how he hated girls who wore sloppy saddle-shoes and how wonderful he looked in brown tweeds. The young druggist said he, himself, wasn't a very good dancer but the very next day he wore a tweed suit to work. It was one he had left over from college he said but he didn't wear it much any more because it didn't suit his present "dignified position." We both laughed at that. We laughed a lot together.

One evening he asked me what was wrong with his front window and I said, "Everything." So we took out all the dusty boxes and the pale orchid hot-water bottles and the girl with the rose in her hair. Then he washed the plate glass and I puckered broad strips of green crepe paper (it was almost the middle of March) to cover the floor of the window. We arranged smart new cosmetics in gold and black boxes in pyramids and made a border of bottles of creamy hand lotion with gold knob tops. "Wouldn't it be funny," I said, if Jim should come by right now and see me in a display window!"

Maybe he'd think we were giving you away with every $1.00 purchase of cold cream," the young druggist answered laughing. Then we washed our hands and both had a chocolate soda to celebrate our success as window decorators.

Spring was early this year. By the beginning of April the green crepe paper in the window had begun to fade a little from the new shun. The air was soft and I knew soon green grass would begin to show. I hadn't missed stopping for a coke one afternoon for over three months. And still Jim hadn't come. I know it wasn't nice—my waiting for him like that. Nice girls wouldn't do it but I did. And, somehow, I'm glad I did.

Because I'm going to marry the young druggist next week.—Distributed by United Features Syndicate.

History To Be Depicted By Float in Celebration

Prince Frederick, Md., April 23 (AP)—A replica of the Great Seal of Maryland and characterizations of some of the leading residents of Calvert county during its early history will be shown on a float representing that county in the Governor Ritchie Highway Dedication parade Saturday at Annapolis.

The first great seal was lost in early colonial days and never found when for a period the colonial assembly was moved from the mother county, St. Mary's, to Calvert, because of political agitation resulting from Cromwell's ascendency to power in England.

Flowers Kept Wolf from Door For This Mother

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX, Famous Authority on Problems of Love and Marriage — Distributed by King Features Syndicate, Inc.

Two or three weeks ago a correspondent, confronted by a dreadful alternative, wrote to this column for eleventh-hour suggestions.

Well-educated, but forced to earn her living as a char-woman, she found it impossible to properly care for her children. A woman, well placed socially, offered to take them if the mother agreed not to see them in the future.

Readers of this column who have managed "to knock a living out of life on practically nothing" as one of them put it to me, have offered such valuable suggestions for starting a business on little or no capital that it seems well worth while to give their experiences.

"Several times I have been asked to write an account of how I started my successful florist business on a shoestring," one reader writes. "Not until I read the account in your column of a mother forced to give up her children for adoption, because she couldn't care for them, have I considered doing this.

Penniless and Desperate

"I've just been too busy, but once I was desperate, with children to care for and positively no money. I thought of everything. Finally this plan came to me. I visited several clergymen and asked if among their parishioners there was one who would let me have the use of a plot of ground on which to raise flowers. I had always had what is known as 'the growing hand.' And as my chief talent, I determined to see what it would do for us.

"A good many of these gentlemen were decidedly bored with my suggestion. I found much that could not be labeled 'Christian charity.' Finally, one good old man seemed to take an interest in our case. (We were on relief at the time.) He persuaded a parishioner with a place in the suburbs to let me have a half acre plot.

"My older son plowed the ground with a hand plow which he borrowed. The clergyman actually advanced fifteen dollars for fertilizer — I used a commericial cattle manure. I sold my mother's breast-pin and bought flower seeds and bulbs, deciding on perennials rather than annuals, with a few exceptions, such as gladioli bulbs which are easy to grow and have a ready market.

"I put in delphinium, petunias, African marigolds so splendid in gold color, and hollyhocks and sunflowers not to sell but for a decorative background. I planted cosmos and chrysanthemum plants.

Attained Second Helpings

"We started to work, my two boys and I (they were 13 and 15 years of age) as soon as frost was out of the ground around the first of April in our part of the country. We watered, weeded transplanting as soon as the young plants showed a few leaves. During this time we could often have enjoyed second helpings at the table if we had had them. Still our courage remained high as the little plants grew.

"We had a time with insects. Asters were the worst, being the favorite of black beetles. My younger boy picked them off laboriously and dropped them into a can of kerosene. I sprayed and at last we were selling little bunches of nasturtiums, the easiest thing possible to grow if you spray for those pestiferous black aphids.

"Fortunately our borrowed plot of ground was at a bus intersection, and I was out with my flower basket every morning. More girls than men bought flowers. I suppose they liked them for their desks. And here's a tip: Never sell flowers with a sorrowful expression. Sell flowers happily. That was the beginning of our business which now owns two greenhouses."

Want "in" on next year's "Big News" Now?

Buick prices begin at $895* for Business Coupe (illustrated)

WHEN BETTER AUTOMOBILES ARE BUILT BUICK WILL BUILD THEM

YOU can figure it out for yourself from what you see in daily traffic and what you hear when the talk turns to automobiles.

Buick's pacing the pack. Has been for several years.

It called this year's style turn a year ago. It set current performance standards in '38 with its Dynaflash engine. It still leads the crowd for riding qualities with its BuiCoil Springing, now in its third year.

So where's a more logical place to look for next year's "big news" than in this year's big and roomy Buick?

It may be smoother engines. Buick is the only car that now balances power plants after assembly.

Coil springs all around may come. Buick's never need lubrication, are practically indestructible, and even cut down skid-risks.

Maybe it'll be heavier frames—Buick has the heaviest of any car of its price. Or maybe many of the "extra touches" Buick so freely applies—safety-latches on rear doors and Two-Way Direction Signals with automatic cut-off.

You get all of these things now in Buick.

Get them with the plus of Buick quality of materials and workmanship—get them at a price that suggests a six instead of an eight.

So it's easy to start enjoying future "new features" right now.

Just go try a Buick. Look it over, inside and out. And get the prices.

Even if you've been buying in the lowest-price field you'll find it takes less than you think to step up to a Buick. Prices begin at $895 ★delivered at Flint, Mich.; transportation based on rail rates, state and local taxes (if any), optional equipment and accessories—extra. Prices subject to change without notice.

You get a "Good Deal" Two Ways from Your Buick Dealer

A good "deal" when it comes to old-car allowances—and a whale of a lot of automobile in your new Buick. See your dealer and find out for yourself.

"Best buy's Buick!"

THE DAILY STORY

NICE GIRL

BY MAUREEN DALY

Nice girls don't do it but I did. I just wanted to see Jim again, that's all. It's against all the rules of Emily Post and better judgment to call a boy on the phone, especially when he hasn't called you for over a month, but it would be all right to run into him . . . quite by accident, you know . . . say—at the drug store having a coke, wouldn't it? That's what I thought. That's why I made it a habit to stop at the corner drug store every night about 5:30. I knew Jim had to pass by that on the way home from the office and I knew some day he'd have to stop in for some stamps, or writing paper or shaving cream or something and there I'd be, having a coke.

And then Jim would look at me

He was very sympathetic.

surprisedly and say, "Well, hello there! How are you?" And I'd smile and say quietly, "It's nice seeing you again, Jim," and he'd have a coke with me and we'd talk and he'd say, "May I drop you off at your house," and I'd say, "If it's no bother." And then on the way home we'd talk and be very friendly and soon everything would be all right again. It would be very easy . . . if I just saw him again. That's why I started my five-thirty coke habit.

It was a very small drugstore and rather dark. The front window was cluttered with a big cardboard head of a dark-eyed senorita with a rose in her hair advertising cigars and around her were zig-zag piles of boxes of cigarettes, bath soap and talcum powder. In one corner was a special display of pale orchid hot-water bottles . . . a clearout sale. There was one druggist in the store. He sold me a magazine and served me a coke with too much ice. I only stayed a few minutes the first night. Jim didn't come.

By the end of the week the druggist seemed to think I was an old customer. He brought me a coke without my even asking and tuned in dance music on the little radio above the soda fountain and muttered about shining glasses and rearranging ice cream dishes while I stared out the window. Every time I saw a fellow in a big tan topcoat and yellow muffler go by my heart jumped—I though it was Jim. I was quite hopeful that first week. But he didn't come.

Then one day the druggist asked me if I were waiting for someone. I don't blame him for being curious. He was a young druggist—I hadn't really noticed before—and I thought he'd understood so I told him. I told him about Jim and how I hadn't seen him for so long and how I hoped he might stop in here some night on his way home from work and how much I really missed him. And he was very sympathetic and said, "I'm sure everything will turn out all right. I can't understand any fellow not wanting to call up a pretty girl like you." That made me fell better and after that we talked every afternoon when I stopped in.

He told me he had really wanted to be a doctor and had taken a a pre-medical course at Illinois but his funds had run out and he'd taken his degree as a pharmacist instead. And that some day he might go back and get his M. D. I told him he was very ambitious and he said, "Well, not exactly. But I'd just like to do something good with my life, that's all." I liked him for saying that. In the meantime he had bought this little drug store and was running it all by himself. "But I'm not doing such a good job of it," he said. That was in February.

We became very good friends after that. I told him all about Jim. About what a good dancer he was and how he hated girls who wore sloppy saddle-shoes and how wonderful he looked in brown tweeds. The young druggist said he, himself, wasn't a very good dancer but the very next day he wore a tweed suit to work. It was one he had left over from college he said but he didn't wear it much any more because it didn't suit his present "dignified position." We both laughed at that. We laughed a lot together.

One evening he asked me what was wrong with his front window and I said, "Everything." So we took out all the dusty boxes and the pale orchid hot-water bottles and the girl with the rose in her hair. Then he washed the plate glass and I puckered broad strips of green crepe paper (it was almost the middle of March) to cover the floor of the window. We arranged smart new cosmetics in gold and black boxes in pyramids and made a border of bottles of creamy hand lotion with gold knob tops. "Wouldn't it be funny," I said, if Jim should come by right now and see me in a display window!"

Maybe he'd think we were giving you away with every $1.00 purchase of cold cream," the young druggist answered laughing. Then we washed our hands and both had a chocolate soda to celebrate our success as window decorators.

Spring was early this year. By the beginning of April the green crepe paper in the window had begun to fade a little from the new shun. The air was soft and I knew soon green grass would begin to show. I hadn't missed stopping for a coke one afternoon for over three months. And still Jim hadn't come. I know it wasn't nice—my waiting for him like that. Nice girls wouldn't do it but I did. And, somehow, I'm glad I did.

Because I'm going to marry the young druggist next week.—Distributed by United Features Syndicate.

History To Be Depicted By Float in Celebration

Prince Frederick, Md., April 23 (AP)—A replica of the Great Seal of Maryland and characterizations of some of the leading residents of Calvert county during its early history will be shown on a float representing that county in the Governor Ritchie Highway Dedication parade Saturday at Annapolis.

The first great seal was lost in early colonial days and never found when for a period the colonial assembly was moved from the mother county, St. Mary's, to Calvert, because of political agitation resulting from Cromwell's ascendency to power in England.

Flowers Kept Wolf from Door For This Mother

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX, Famous Authority on Problems of Love and Marriage — Distributed by King Features Syndicate, Inc.

Two or three weeks ago a correspondent, confronted by a dreadful alternative, wrote to this column for eleventh-hour suggestions.

Well-educated, but forced to earn her living as a char-woman, she found it impossible to properly care for her children. A woman, well placed socially, offered to take them if the mother agreed not to see them in the future.

Readers of this column who have managed "to knock a living out of life on practically nothing" as one of them put it to me, have offered such valuable suggestions for starting a business on little or no capital that it seems well worth while to give their experiences.

"Several times I have been asked to write an account of how I started my successful florist business on a shoestring," one reader writes. "Not until I read the account in your column of a mother forced to give up her children for adoption, because she couldn't care for them, have I considered doing this.

Penniless and Desperate

"I've just been too busy, but once I was desperate, with children to care for and positively no money. I thought of everything. Finally this plan came to me. I visited several clergymen and asked if among their parishioners there was one who would let me have the use of a plot of ground on which to raise flowers. I had always had what is known as 'the growing hand.' And as my chief talent, I determined to see what it would do for us.

"A good many of these gentlemen were decidedly bored with my suggestion. I found much that could not be labeled 'Christian charity.' Finally, one good old man seemed to take an interest in our case. (We were on relief at the time.) He persuaded a parishioner with a place in the suburbs to let me have a half acre plot.

"My older son plowed the ground with a hand plow which he borrowed. The clergyman actually advanced fifteen dollars for fertilizer — I used a commericial cattle manure. I sold my mother's breast-pin and bought flower seeds and bulbs, deciding on perennials rather than annuals, with a few exceptions, such as gladioli bulbs which are easy to grow and have a ready market.

"I put in delphinium, petunias, African marigolds so splendid in gold color, and hollyhocks and sunflowers not to sell but for a decorative background. I planted cosmos and chrysanthemum plants.

Attained Second Helpings

"We started to work, my two boys and I (they were 13 and 15 years of age) as soon as frost was out of the ground around the first of April in our part of the country. We watered, weeded transplanting as soon as the young plants showed a few leaves. During this time we could often have enjoyed second helpings at the table if we had had them. Still our courage remained high as the little plants grew.

"We had a time with insects. Asters were the worst, being the favorite of black beetles. My younger boy picked them off laboriously and dropped them into a can of kerosene. I sprayed and at last we were selling little bunches of nasturtiums, the easiest thing possible to grow if you spray for those pestiferous black aphids.

"Fortunately, our borrowed plot of ground was at a bus intersection, and I was out with my flower basket every morning. More girls than men bought flowers. I suppose they liked them for their desks. And here's a tip: Never sell flowers with a sorrowful expression. Sell flowers happily. That was the beginning of our business which now owns two greenhouses."

Want "in" on next year's "Big News" Now?

WHEN BETTER AUTOMOBILES ARE BUILT BUICK WILL BUILD THEM

YOU can figure it out for yourself from what you see in daily traffic and what you hear when the talk turns to automobiles.

Buick's pacing the pack. Has been for several years.

It called this year's style turn a year ago. It set current performance standards in '38 with its Dynaflash engine. It still leads the crowd for riding qualities with its BuiCoil Springing, now in its third year.

So where's a more logical place to look for next year's "big news" than in this year's big and roomy Buick?

It may be smoother engines. Buick is the only car that now balances power plants after assembly.

Coil springs all around may come. Buick's never need lubrication, are practically indestructible, and even cut down skid-risks.

Maybe it'll be heavier frames—Buick has the heaviest of any car of its price. Or maybe many of the "extra touches" Buick so freely applies—safety-latches on rear doors and Two-Way Direction Signals with automatic cut-off.

You get all of these things now in Buick.

Get them with the plus of Buick quality of materials and workmanship—get them at a price that suggests a six instead of an eight.

So it's easy to start enjoying future "new features" right now.

Just go try a Buick. Look it over, inside and out. And get the prices.

Even if you've been buying in the lowest-price field you'll find it takes less than you think to step up to a Buick. Prices begin at $895 ★ delivered at Flint, Mich.; transportation based on rail rates, state and local taxes (if any), optional equipment and accessories—extra. Prices subject to change without notice.

You get a "Good Deal" Two Ways from Your Buick Dealer

A good "deal" when it comes to old-car allowances—and a whale of a lot of automobile in your new Buick. See your dealer and find out for yourself.

Gracing the Scene

By HELEN FOLLETT

DIANA LEWIS . . . knows importance of grace as a beauty factor.

TO BE graceful, one must have the feeling of grace, be conscious of step and posture. Awkwardness is largely a habit caused by unawareness and appearance. Jerky movements and nervous haste mean that grace hasn't a chance to express itself; shoulders thrown forward put it out of business. If you haven't exercised and are muscle-bound, you won't be among the light steppers.

A pretty movement of the head, lovely pose of the hands or a neat curve of the back will attract the attention and admiration of even those casual observers who have no great appreciation of beauty. These pleasing attributes of loveliness touch the emotions more profoundly than most of us realize.

One can acquire grace by simple exercises taken before a full-length mirror. Lift and lower the arms, holding the body tall, tucking in the tummy, lifting the chest. Pivot at the waistline. Clasp the hands, lift them high and far back, bending the body slightly. Keep the legs straight.

Seed acne is caused by the closing of the mouth of the pore. Sebaceous oil is sent forth by the gland and because there is no outlet, it banks up in a hard, bead-like mass.

Pressing accomplishes nothing, often causes an irritation. The only way to remove the wax-like barricade is to slit it full length with a needle, after holding the point of the needle in a flame, and pick out the imbedded substance. You can do that by holding the wound open with the fingers of the left hand.

Apply hot, moist compresses and then dust the flesh with powdered boric acid.

TWO DIFFERENT plays may be available to you in the effort to make your contract, either of which will solve your problem if it works. Before deciding which you will try, weigh them against each other as to probability of success, but don't let your thinking end there. Perhaps you can attempt both plays, if you make the correct choice as to which you will essay first. If you tackle the wrong one first, maybe it will be impossible to use the other play afterward.

All of the players using the Blackwood convention in the duplicate where this hand was dealt bid the small slam in spades when North showed his two aces, and all got the club Q lead, but not all made the contract. One, who was set, won the first trick in his own hand, dropped trumps, led toward the heart K, West winning his A and returning a second club to the A. This declarer then discarded a club on the heart K and lost the diamond finesse, being down one.

William J. Huske, canny veteran, won the first trick with the club K, laid down his spade K, then switched so as to save the spade A for a dummy entry. He led the heart 4, West winning and returning a spade to the Q. Mr. Huske then led to the club A, dropped a club on the heart K, ruffed a third club with the spade J, setting up the thirteener, led to the spade A and on the last club discarded the diamond J. Note that, if East or West had held four clubs, the diamond finesse would still have remained for another chance to prevent a loser in that suit.

Snobbery Gets Misguided Youth Into Trouble

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX, Famous Authority on Problems of Love and Marriage—Distributed by King Features Syndicate, Inc.

Was it love or just plain snobbery that landed a young man in jail, and caused him to be put on probation for three years?

If it was love, which is apt to turn the wisest "nuts" the escapade of the young man has our sympathy. "All the world loves a lover," as we've been reminded. But if it was snobbishness, which is just another definition of vulgarity, we think the young man got all coming to him for being too snooty to ride in a bus.

Here's the story. He lived in Washington, but had a date with a college girl for a dance in a distant city. The modern equivalent of Solomon in all his glory, he arrayed himself in top hat and tails, carbonated water ,ads scattered through magazines.

Sorry Circumstance

Looking every inch an Astorbilt, he began to thumb his way northward. Folks impressed by appearances gave him a lift. The more cautious, bearing in mind warnings to trust no thumber, sped past him. He got as far as Baltimore, where it began to rain. A sorry circumstance for the top hat and tails, whether owned renteo or borrowed.

Love has prompted madder things than the "borrowing" of an automobile, but to threaten the owner that the car would be junked if $50.00 is not forthcoming, is strong stuff, and suggests the snob rather than the lover. But whatever the urge, the young man did not lack character witnesses. A corporation attorney vouched for him as a "perfect young man," and a clergyman pronounced him O.K.

Embarrassment Too Much

In extenuation of lifting the car and writing a demanding note to the owner, the young man stated that he was "too embarrassed to ride in a bus in top hat and tails. But why—? Certainly a more snobbish statement was never heard in court.

Snobbishness concerning vehicles went out a quarter of a century ago with prancing steeds, two men on the box, and the general clatter which announced the passing of those who took their airings for the world to envy.

Snobbishness today is as out as pantalettes or a flowing bustle. The dictionary defines this quality as "cringing to superiors, and as bearing to inferiors in position."

Certainly it is an ill-chosen trait of character in the world today when we're all likely to regard riding as luxurious if we walk on foot. Top hats and tails, when they, in the lands gobbled up by dictators and appeasement?

Into the Discard

People with vision are too busy to consider the vulgar and snobbish distinction of yesterday. Mummified social codes have gone into the discard. The president's wife rides the subway in New York, and a cab when she alights at Union Station in Washington. Men today are making history in the nation's capital ride to the Senate and the House in streetcars and buses. Mrs. Astor rides in public conveyances, so does Mrs. William H. Vanderbilt, the wife of Rhode Island's governor.

But to get back to the young man who started this talk on silly snobbery, and who confessed in court he was "too embarrassed to ride in a bus in top hat and tails," we feel he was just spoofing and that the grief in which he landed was really inspired by the college girl with whom he was trying to make a date.

Marriage Is Announced

Announcement is made that Miss Audrey Barbe, daughter of Mrs. Hazel Barbe, of 153 Polk street, and William Jewell, of Bedford, Pa., were married Friday, April 12, at the First Christian church, Bedford street. The Rev. James H. Lilley performed the ceremony.

The bride was attired in cadet blue tailored suit and a shoulder corsage of gardenias. Mrs. Thelma Jones was matron of honor and wore dusty rose suit with a shoulder corsage of gardenias. Orliss P. Jones, brother-in-law of the bride, was best man. Mr. Jones and his wife entertained at a theater party, followed by a dinner at the Queen City hotel.

Mr. and Mrs. Jewell are residing at 153 Polk street.

By HELEN FOLLETT

TO BE graceful, one must have the feeling of grace, be conscious of step and posture. Awkwardness is largely a habit caused by unawareness and appearance. Jerky movements and nervous haste mean that grace hasn't a chance to express itself; shoulders thrown forward put it out of business. If you haven't exercised and are muscle-bound, you won't be among the light steppers.

A pretty movement of the head, lovely pose of the hands or a neat curve of the back will attract the attention and admiration of even those casual observers who have no great appreciation of beauty. These pleasing attributes of loveliness touch the emotions more profoundly than most of us realize.

One can acquire grace by simple exercises taken before a full-length mirror. Lift and lower the arms, holding the body tall, tucking in the tummy, lifting the chest. Pivot at the waistline. Clasp the hands, lift them high and far back, bending the body slightly. Keep the legs straight.

Seed acne is caused by the closing of the mouth of the pore. Sebaceous oil is sent forth by the gland and because there is no outlet, it banks up in a hard, bead-like mass.

Pressing accomplishes nothing, often causes an irritation. The only way to remove the wax-like barricade is to slit it full length with a needle, after holding the point of the needle in a flame, and pick out the imbedded substance. You can do that by holding the wound open with the fingers of the left hand.

Apply hot, moist compresses and then dust the flesh with powdered boric acid.

"The Authority on Authorities"

THE CORRECT ORDER

TWO DIFFERENT plays may be available to you in the effort to make your contract, either of which will solve your problem if it works. Before deciding which you will try, weigh them against each other as to probability of success, but don't let your thinking end there. Perhaps you can attempt both plays, if you make the correct choice as to which you will essay first. If you tackle the wrong one first, maybe it will be impossible to use the other play afterward.

All of the players using the Blackwood convention in the duplicate where this hand was dealt bid the small slam in spades when North showed his two aces, and all got the club Q lead, but not all made the contract. One, who was set, won the first trick in his own hand, dropped trumps, led toward the heart K, West winning his A and returning a second club to the A. This declarer then discarded a club on the heart K and lost the diamond finesse, being down one.

William J. Huske, canny veteran, won the first trick with the club K, laid down his spade K, then switched so as to save the spade A for a dummy entry. He led the heart 4, West winning and returning a spade to the Q. Mr. Huske then led to the club A, dropped a club on the heart K, ruffed a third club with the spade J, setting up the thirteener, led to the spade A and on the last club discarded the diamond J. Note that, if East or West had held four clubs, the diamond finesse would still have remained for another chance to prevent a loser in that suit.

Snobbery Gets Misguided Youth Into Trouble

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX, Famous Authority on Problems of Love and Marriage—Distributed by King Features Syndicate, Inc.

Was it love or just plain snobbery that landed a young man in jail, and caused him to be put on probation for three years?

If it was love, which is apt to turn the wisest "nuts" the escapade of the young man has our sympathy. "All the world loves a lover," as we've been reminded. But if it was snobbishness, which is just another definition of vulgarity, we think the young man got all coming to him for being too snooty to ride in a bus.

Here's the story. He lived in Washington, but had a date with a college girl for a dance in a distant city. The modern equivalent of Solomon in all his glory, he arrayed himself in top hat and tails, carbonated water ads scattered through magazines.

Sorry Circumstance

Looking every inch an Astorbilt, he began to thumb his way northward. Folks impressed by appearances gave him a lift. The more cautious, bearing in mind warnings to trust no thumber, sped past him. He got as far as Baltimore, where it began to rain. A sorry circumstance for the top hat and tails, whether owned renteo or borrowed.

Love has prompted madder things than the "borrowing" of an automobile, but to threaten the owner that the car would be junked if $50.00 is not forthcoming, is strong stuff, and suggests the snob rather than the lover. But whatever the urge, the young man did not lack character witnesses. A corporation attorney vouched for him as a "perfect young man," and a clergyman pronounced him O.K.

Embarrassment Too Much

In extenuation of lifting the car and writing a demanding note to the owner, the young man stated that he was "too embarrassed to ride in a bus in top hat and tails. But why—? Certainly a more snobbish statement was never heard in court.

Snobbishness concerning vehicles went out a quarter of a century ago with prancing steeds, two men on the box, and the general clatter which announced the passing of those who took their airings for the world to envy.

Snobbishness today is as quaint as pantalettes or a flowing bustle. The dictionary defines this quality as "cringing to superiors, and overbearing to inferiors in position."

Certainly it is an ill-chosen trait of character in the world today when we're all likely to regard horseback riding as luxurious if we walk on foot. Top hats and tails, where they, in the lands gobbled up by dictators and appeasement?

Into the Discard

People with vision are too busy to consider the vulgar and snobbish distinction of yesterday. Mummified social codes have gone into the discard. The president's wife rides the subway in New York, as does a cab when she alights at the Union Station in Washington. Members are making history in the nation's capital ride to the Senate and House in streetcars and buses. John Jacob Astor rides in public conveyances, so does Mrs. William H. Vanderbilt, the wife of Rhode Island's governor.

But to get back to the young man who started this talk on silly snobbery, and who confessed in court that he was "too embarrassed to ride in a bus in top hat and tails," we suspect he was just spoofing and that the grief in which he landed was really inspired by the college girl with whom he was trying to make a date.

Child Character, Like Garden, Can Be Cultivated

By GARRY C. MYERS, PH.D

Child character as well as roses can be cultivated in the garden. The growing child who finds enjoyment among the plants and flowers he has helped to care for learns to be careful of other people's plants and flowers, and other property of the neighborhood. What a fine character service the public schools have rendered through their school gardens.

Not so many children, however, are gardeners at home. Their parents rarely give them the opportunity or exercise the skill and patience necessary to win the child's co-operation and persistence in the garden.

The child from five to ten is more ready to work in the garden than the older child, as a rule. But if this younger child is to help in the garden or care for his own plot there, he will need sympathetic, patient guidance. Most parents regard a child in the garden as a kind of nuisance, messing things up. They prefer to do all the gardening themselves and have the youngster out of the way. They are thinking more about the garden than the child.

Small Plot at First

Wise parents begin early with the tot, giving him a small plot and helping him as much as necessary, no more, in its planting and care. At first this plot is very small, but gets larger as the child grows older and learns to take responsibility for it.

Whether four or nine, the child who at first is very enthusiastic, watching the plants coming through the ground from the seed or developing from the stocks, transplanted there, watering them, stirring the soil about them and keeping down the weeds, may lose interest and neglect his garden. Skilful parents may be able to keep this interest of the child alive, especially by inducing him to work in the garden at the time the parent does. But alas! many a parent will choose to cultivate the child's garden for him rather than take the trouble to cultivate responsibility in the child for its care.

As with pets, the child's early enthusiasm may wholly disappear unless a way is found to keep it alive. When this happens and he wholly abandons the enterprise, he may be far worse off morally than if he had never begun with it.

Have Definite Program

Not many children old enough to operate a lawn mower keep the home lawn clipped on their own free will and accord. Like duties inside the house, this one usually needs to be assigned and supervised somewhat. When, however, Dad and the boy or girl do the lawn together, taking turns at the mower and the shears, the child may readily co-operate, if he is able to budget his time for it according to a definite program.

Whether the child can be counted on to care for the lawn without argument will depend on whether he had learned earlier to take responsibility indoors for doing regular jobs. Well-educated at home in earlier years, the child old enough to do the lawn has learned to do certain regular inescapable jobs about the home because he is a member of the family. Other things he has volunteered to do because he found satisfaction in co-operating in an atmosphere of family companionship.

No matter how much money his parents have, a growing boy or girl, for the best character education, needs to have certain definite, regular, inescapable jobs about the home—if at no other time, when it is the maid or gardner's day off. But let' no parent suppose that such jobs can always or even generally be made wholly attractive.

Solving Parent Problems

Q. How soon should one begin to read to the baby?

A. As soon as he will look at a picture as you read about it.

Prisoners To Receive Cigarette Money for Work

Frederick, Md., April 23 (AP) — When and if Frederick county jail prisoners are used for work on county roads they may receive "cigarette money" or about 25 cents per day each.

The board of commissioners met with Sheriff Guy Anders to discuss the proposal, but adjourned without indicating when the plan might be started.

The commission said its insurance committee had recommended that the county roads board sign a certificate agreeing to extend liability insurance coverage for each prisoner put to work. The small daily sum to be paid should also be fixed, the commission said it was advised.

West Virginian Says School Board Owes Him Mileage Money

Greenville, W Va., April 22 (AP)—Everett L. McDaniel says the Monroe county board of education owes him twelve cents a day mileage allowance for each of two daughters every day they attend school, and will offer some laboriously obtained figures when the matter comes up for a hearing.

The arrangement is that parents must provide transportation, or children must walk any distance up to four miles—beyond that the board agrees to provide transportation expense allowance.

McDaniel contended they walked over four miles—although there is a bus stop within two miles of the McDaniel home—"as the crow flies."

The girls contended it is easier to walk directly to the school by another route, than to negotiate the distance, through mountain brush, to the bus stop.

For lack of a measuring tape, McDaniel undertook to measure the distance from home to school with a sixty-six-foot chain.

Added up, he said, Catherine, nine, walks forty-six feet more than four miles. Erma, the other daughter, walked one hundred and ninety-six feet less than four miles to reach school.

They attend different units of the same school.

Frederick County Fair To Exhibit Live Fish

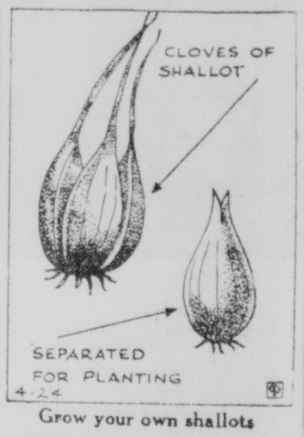
Frederick, Md., April 23 (AP)—Live exhibits of fish and many animals native to Maryland will be shown at the annual Frederick County Fair in October, it was announced today by directors of the County Agricultural Society.

The displays, to include deer, rabbits, squirrels, raccoons, o'possums, mink and other animals will be in a space with a natural woodland setting.

Such Maryland fresh water fish as large and small mouth black bass, trout, crappie, sunfish and pike will be in aquariums. They will be arranged by Albert M. Powell, of Lewistown, superintendent of state fish hatcheries.

Today's GARDEN-GRAPH

By DEAN HALLIDAY



Grow your own shallots

Shallots, so popular in England, are also growing in popularity in this country. Nowadays one often sees them mentioned in recipes and listed upon menus. Since shallots are milder in taste than their cousins, the onion, many people would use them if they knew they could grow their own.

As shown in today's Garden-Graph, the parent bulb of the shallot grows in "cloves." The "cloves" should be separated before planting.

In England, the shallot bulbs are planted by merely pushing them into the soil to half their depth. In this country most people plant them in drills two inches deep in the same manner that onion sets are planted.

When the tops wither the shallots are mature and should be dug up. Allow them to dry in the sun before storing.

Child Character, Like Garden, Can Be Cultivated

By GARRY C. MYERS, PH.D

Child character as well as roses can be cultivated in the garden. The growing child who finds enjoyment among the plants and flowers he has helped to care for learns to be careful of other people's plants and flowers, and other property of the neighborhood. What a fine character service the public schools have rendered through their school gardens.

Not so many children, however, are gardeners at home. Their parents rarely give them the opportunity or exercise the skill and patience necessary to win the child's co-operation and persistence in the garden.

The child from five to ten is more ready to work in the garden than the older child, as a rule. But if this younger child is to help in the garden or care for his own plot there, he will need sympathetic, patient guidance. Most parents regard a child in the garden as a kind of nuisance, messing things up. They prefer to do all the gardening themselves and have the youngster out of the way. They are thinking more about the garden than the child.

Small Plot at First

Wise parents begin early with the tot, giving him a small plot and helping him as much as necessary, no more, in its planting and care. At first this plot is very small, but gets larger as the child grows older and learns to take responsibility for it.

Whether four or nine, the child who at first is very enthusiastic, watching the plants coming through the ground from the seed or developing from the stocks, transplanted there, watering them, stirring the soil about them and keeping down the weeds, may lose interest and neglect his garden. Skilful parents may be able to keep this interest of the child alive, especially by inducing him to work in the garden at the time the parent does. But alas! many a parent will choose to cultivate the child's garden for him rather than take the trouble to cultivate responsibility in the child for its care.

As with pets, the child's early enthusiasm may wholly disappear unless a way is found to keep it alive. When this happens and he wholly abandons the enterprise, he may be far worse off morally than if he had never begun with it.

Have Definite Program

Not many children old enough to operate a lawn mower keep the home lawn clipped on their own free will and accord. Like duties inside the house, this one usually needs to be assigned and supervised somewhat. When, however, Dad and the boy or girl do the lawn together, taking turns at the mower and the shears, the child may readily co-operate, if he is able to budget his time for it according to a definite program.

Whether the child can be counted on to care for the lawn without argument will depend on whether he had learned earlier to take responsibility indoors for doing regular jobs. Well-educated at home in earlier years, the child old enough to do the lawn has learned to do certain regular inescapable jobs about the home because he is a member of the family. Other things he has volunteered to do because he found satisfaction in co-operating in an atmosphere of family companionship.

No matter how much money his parents have, a growing boy or girl, for the best character education, needs to have certain definite, regular, inescapable jobs about the home—if at no other time, when it is the maid or gardner's day off. But let' no parent suppose that such jobs can always or even generally be made wholly attractive.

A. As soon as he will look at a picture as you read about it.

Prisoners To Receive Cigarette Money for Work

Frederick, Md., April 23 (AP) — When and if Frederick county jail prisoners are used for work on county roads they may receive "cigarette money" or about 25 cents per day each.

The board of commissioners met with Sheriff Guy Anders to discuss the proposal, but adjourned without indicating when the plan might be started.

The commission said its insurance committee had recommended that the county roads board sign a certificate agreeing to extend liability insurance coverage for each prisoner put to work. The small daily sum to be paid should also be fixed, the commission said it was advised.

West Virginian Says School Board Owes Him Mileage Money

Greenville, W. Va., April 22 (AP)—Everett L. McDaniel says the Monroe county board of education owes him twelve cents a day mileage allowance for each of two daughters every day they attend school, and will offer some laboriously obtained figures when the matter comes up for a hearing.

The arrangement is that parents must provide transportation, or children must walk any distance up to four miles—beyond that the board agrees to provide transportation expense allowance.

McDaniel contended they walked over four miles—although there is a bus stop within two miles of the McDaniel home—"as the crow flies."

The girls contended it is easier to walk directly to the school by another route, than to negotiate the distance, through mountain brush, to the bus stop.

For lack of a measuring tape, McDaniel undertook to measure the distance from home to school with a sixty-six-foot chain.

Added up, he said, Catherine, nine, walks forty-six feet more than four miles. Erma, the other daughter, walked one hundred and ninety-six feet less than four miles to reach school.

They attend different units of the same school.

Frederick County Fair To Exhibit Live Fish

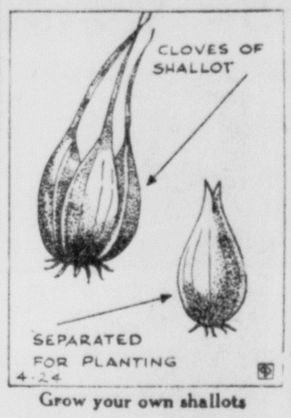
Frederick, Md., April 23 (AP)—Live exhibits of fish and many animals native to Maryland will be shown at the annual Frederick County Fair in October, it was announced today by directors of the County Agricultural Society.

The displays, to include deer, rabbits, squirrels, raccoons, o'possums, mink and other animals will be in a space with a natural woodland setting.

Such Maryland fresh water fish as large and small mouth black bass, trout, crappie, sunfish and pike will be in aquariums. They will be arranged by Albert M. Powell, of Lewistown, superintendent of state fish hatcheries.

Today's GARDEN-GRAPH

By DEAN HALLIDAY



Grow your own shallots

Shallots, so popular in England, are also growing in popularity in this country. Nowadays one often sees them mentioned in recipes and listed upon menus. Since shallots are milder in taste than their cousins, the onion, many people would use them if they knew they could grow their own.

As shown in today's Garden-Graph, the parent bulb of the shallot grows in "cloves." The "cloves" should be separated before planting.

In England, the shallot bulbs are planted by merely pushing them into the soil to half their depth. In this country most people plant them in drills two inches deep in the same manner that onion sets are planted.

When the tops wither the shallots are mature and should be dug up. Allow them to dry in the sun before storing.

Can't Participate In Party Warfare, Says Ex-Governor

H. G. Kump Discounts 'Alleged Divisions' in Democratic Party

Charleston, W. Va., April 23 (AP)—Former Governor H. G. Kump saying "I cannot become an effective participant in war in our own party," asserted tonight that the "alleged division in the Democratic party exists more in the minds of self-seeking, 'rule or ruin' would-be leaders than in actuality."

"I have never contributed to party division except when my firm adherence to sound principles of democracy and sturdy defense of the rights of all our people were, and are, distasteful to those seeking dictatorial powers," he said in the first major address of his campaign for the Democratic nomination for the U. S. Senate.

"It does not obtain among the rank and file of loyal Democrats," he added.

Can't Fight Democrats

Speaking on the radio, the man who has been accorded "statehouse" faction support for the nomination, declared in a prepared address:

"I do not know how to fight Democrats. x x x But this does not mean that I will not battle for what I believe to be right. I will so battle to the full extent of my strength and, while I cannot fight Democrats, in the general election campaign, I shall stand upon the ramparts without fear of those who attack Democrats or Democratic principles."

Four years ago, Kump said, "many people" urged his senatorial candidacy but "I had not then completed my term of office as governor and it seemed to me that my candidacy, at that time, would precipitate a sharp party conflict. I stood aside in the interest of party harmony and to complete the work that had been entrusted to my care."

Hits at Lewis

"Threats" of a third party do not come from Democrats, he asserted.

"They come from those who admit they are not Democrats but who intrude themselves into our party in the effort to control it for themselves and some of them have had the audacity to charge the President of the United States with 'ingratitude,' 'betrayal of confidence,' and to threaten him with dire consequences if he does not obey their commands. The citizens, particularly organized laborers, know that the President is the best friend they have had, and they will rebuke those who unjustly assail him."

(John L. Lewis, CIO president, has said he would call a convention of various organizations if the Democratic party does not nominate a presidential candidate or adopt a platform "acceptable" to labor.)

'Refused To Take Orders'

Content to stand upon the record of his administration as governor and of the ensuing Democratic regime—"it represents performance, not campaign promises"—Kump declared:

"I am opposed by certain individuals and interests at this time because I refused to take orders whilst I was serving as your governor. I know no master save you, the sovereign citizens of my native state."

Kump has three primary opponents, U. S. Senator Rush D. Holt of Weston, who is seeking renomination, State Senator J. Buhl Shahan, and Judge Harley M. Kilgore, who has been endorsed by Labor's Non-Partisan League. Kilgore is generally accepted as the "federal" wing's candidate.

Democrats came into power years ago, Kump said at the end of a period which "was supreme failure in government."

Hungry Fed, Naked Clothed

"The first great concern of the new administration was to feed the hungry and clothe the naked, and then, to restore public confidence and faith in American institutions. These things were accomplished with marvelous success x x x.

"It is said our taxes are high—and they are. That perplexes us. There is danger along that way. But this we know: The money we have spent and the taxes we pay remain in value, somewhere among us."

An advocate of old age pensions and aid to the blind, indigent, crippled and dependent children "long before the federal Social Security Act was passed," Kump said he not wants "public assistance for this unfortunate portion of our citizenship to the fullest extent of our fiscal capacity, consistent with wisdom and sound, solvent government and public policy."

IT'S ALL THE WAY YOU "FIGURE" IT

The Delta Upsilon fraternity boys at the University of Iowa recently issued a "proclamation" to the effect that they were tired of "underfed debutante" co-eds and that they preferred the curvesome Lillian Russell type. As a result the issue has developed into a hot campus controversy. Here you see the opposing sides flaunting banners in defense of their slim-or-plump preference.

High Court Rules On Damage Suit

Car Owner Not Liable if Agent Offers Ride without Authority

Charleston, W. Va., April 23 (AP)—The Supreme Court held today that an automobile owner is not liable for injuries to a passenger in his car if the owner's agent extends a ride invitation without authority or outside the scope of his employment.

The judgment of the Roane County Circuit court, which directed a verdict for the Simmons Auto Company in a damage action brought by Don Shrimplin, lumber camp operator, was affirmed.

Shrimplin was injured in a mishap near Arnoldsburg, Calhoun county, in May, 1938. The court asserted that Shrimplin "no longer had the protection contemplated by the original invitation" because, after completing his business with D. W. Chenoweth, car salesman, he accompanied Chenoweth on a trip to see other prospects.

The relief granted by a court in the abatement of a private nuisance, the appellate court ruled in a Cabell county case, "should be such as to cause the defendant no more injury than is necessary to protect the plaintiff's rights."

It affirmed a $750 judgment awarded W. A. Lyons against Matt Viglianco and others, operators of an ice plant, for annoyance and property depreciation but remanded the abatement order, which the defendants contended was not clear.

The court directed "further inquiry into defendants' present manner of operating their plant" insofar as the abatement order was concerned.

Injuries Fatal

Richwood, W. Va., April 23 (AP) — Kelly Riddle, 42-year-old miner, died in a hospital from injuries suffered a week ago in a slate fall at a Birch River operation.

Employment, Payrolls Higher in March

Baltimore, April 23 (AP)—A seasonal increase in employment of 1.1 per cent and in combined weekly payrolls of 2 per cent in March over February by 646 manufacturing establishments in Maryland is reported by John M. Pohlhaus, commissioner of labor and statistics.

The employment gain was exactly even with, and the payroll rise seven-tenths of one per cent higher than the average February-March gains in the last seventeen years, he said.

"Well over half the industries included indicated moderate gains. The early celebration of Easter contributed toward the general rise in the wearing apparel groups, and the chemicals groups were, of course, influenced by agricultural demands."

As a Man Lived . . .

Mr. Frank Mattingly Mr. Jacob Hafer Mr. John Hafer

American living standards are the highest in the world. They are so because Americans meet the realities of progress without sacrificing things that bring pleasure, comfort and solace.

Thus it is only fitting that American funeral service should be at a level equally high. A man loved and honored deserves a final tribute in perfect keeping with the life he has lived.

At least, we believe this true, and express our belief in a funeral service conducted with sympathy, sincerity and quiet efficiency.

H. G. Kump Discounts 'Alleged Divisions' in Democratic Party

Charleston, W. Va., April 23 (AP)—Former Governor H. G. Kump, saying "I cannot become an effective participant in war in our own party," asserted tonight that the "alleged division in the Democratic party exists more in the minds of self-seeking, 'rule or ruin' would-be leaders than in actuality."

"I have never contributed to party division except when my firm adherence to sound principles of democracy and sturdy defense of the rights of all our people were, and are, distasteful to those seeking dictatorial powers," he said in the first major address of his campaign for the Democratic nomination for the U. S. Senate.

"It does not obtain among the rank and file of loyal Democrats," he added.

Can't Fight Democrats

Speaking on the radio, the man who has been accorded "statehouse" faction support for the nomination, declared in a prepared address:

"I do not know how to fight Democrats. x x x But this does not mean that I will not battle for what I believe to be right. I will so battle to the full extent of my strength and, while I cannot fight Democrats, in the general election campaign, I shall stand upon the ramparts without fear of those who attack Democrats or Democratic principles."

Four years ago Kump said, "many people" urged his senatorial candidacy but "I had not then completed my term of office as governor and it seemed to me that my candidacy, at that time, would precipitate a sharp party conflict. I stood aside in the interest of party harmony and to complete the work that had been entrusted to my care."

Hits at Lewis

"Threats" of a third party do not come from Democrats, he asserted.

"They come from those who admit they are not Democrats but who intrude themselves into our party in the effort to control it for themselves and some of them have had the audacity to charge the President of the United States with 'ingratitude,' 'betrayal of confidence,' and to threaten him with dire consequences if he does not obey their commands. The citizens, particularly organized laborers, know that the President is the best friend they have had, and they will rebuke those who unjustly assail him."

(John L. Lewis, CIO president, has said he would call a convention of various organizations if the Democratic party does not nominate a presidential candidate or adopt a platform "acceptable" to labor.)

'Refused To Take Orders'

Content to stand upon the record of his administration as governor and of the ensuing Democratic regime—"it represents performance, not campaign promises"—Kump declared:

"I am opposed by certain individuals and interests at this time because I refused to take orders whilst I was serving as your governor. I know no master save you, the sovereign citizens of my native state."

Kump has three primary opponents, U. S. Senator Rush D. Holt of Weston, who is seeking renomination, State Senator J. Buhl Shahan, and Judge Harley M. Kilgore, who has been endorsed by Labor's Non-Partisan League. Kilgore is generally accepted as the "federal" wing's candidate.

Democrats came into power years ago, Kump said at the end of a period which "was supreme failure in government."

Hungry Fed, Naked Clothed

"The first great concern of the new administration was to feed the hungry and clothe the naked, and then, to restore public confidence and faith in American institutions. These things were accomplished with marvelous success x x x.

"It is said our taxes are high—and they are. That perplexes us. There is danger along that way. But this we know: The money we have spent and the taxes we pay remain, in value, somewhere among us."

An advocate of old age pensions and aid to the blind, indigent, crippled and dependent children "long before the federal Social Security Act was passed," Kump said he not wants "public assistance for this unfortunate portion of our citizenship to the fullest extent of our fiscal capacity, consistent with wisdom and sound, solvent government and public policy."

IT'S ALL THE WAY YOU "FIGURE" IT

The Delta Upsilon fraternity boys at the University of Iowa recently issued a "proclamation" to the effect that they were tired of "underfed debutante" co-eds and that they preferred the curvesome Lillian Russell type. As a result the issue has developed into a hot campus controversy. Here you see the opposing sides flaunting banners in defense of their slim-or-plump preference.

High Court Rules On Damage Suit

Car Owner Not Liable if Agent Offers Ride without Authority

Charleston, W. Va., April 23 (AP)—The Supreme Court held today that an automobile owner is not liable for injuries to a passenger in his car if the owner's agent extends a ride invitation without authority or outside the scope of his employment.

The judgment of the Roane County Circuit court, which directed a verdict for the Simmons Auto Company in a damage action brought by Don Shrimplin, lumber camp operator, was affirmed.

Shrimplin was injured in a mishap near Arnoldsburg, Calhoun county, in May, 1938. The court asserted that Shrimplin "no longer had the protection contemplated by the original invitation" because, after completing his business with D. W. Chenoweth, car salesman, he accompanied Chenoweth on a trip to see other prospects.

The relief granted by a court in the abatement of a private nuisance, the appellate court ruled in a Cabell county case, "should be such as to cause the defendant no more injury than is necessary to protect the plaintiff's rights."

It affirmed a $750 judgment awarded W. A. Lyons against Matt Vigliano and others, operators of an ice plant, for annoyance and property depreciation but remanded the abatement order, which the defendants contended was not clear.

The court directed "further inquiry into defendants' present manner of operating their plant" insofar as the abatement order was concerned.

Injuries Fatal

BELISHA'S BRIDE!

Jacqueline Delubac

Leslie Hore-Belisha, former British war minister, secretly married Jacqueline Delubac, French actress, according to reports from Paris, and is now honeymooning with her at Cannes on the Riviera. She was the third wife of Sacha Guitry, French actor and playwright.

Employment, Payrolls Higher in March

Baltimore, April 23 (AP)—A seasonal increase in employment of 1.1 per cent and in combined weekly payrolls of 2 per cent in March over February by 646 manufacturing establishments in Maryland is reported by John M. Pohlhaus, commissioner of labor and statistics.

The employment gain was exactly even with, and the payroll rise seven-tenths of one per cent higher than the average February-March gains in the last seventeen years, he said.

"Well over half the industries included indicated moderate gains. The early celebration of Easter contributed toward the general rise in the wearing apparel groups, and the chemicals groups were, of course, influenced by agricultural demands."

As a Man Lived . . .

Mr. Frank Mattingly Mr. Jacob Hafer Mr. John Hafer

American living standards are the highest in the world. They are so because Americans meet the realities of progress without sacrificing things that bring pleasure, comfort and solace.

Thus it is only fitting that American funeral service should be at a level equally high. A man loved and honored deserves a final tribute in perfect keeping with the life he has lived.

At least, we believe this true, and express our belief in a funeral service conducted with sympathy, sincerity and quiet efficiency.

There Are Two Ways to Get at Constipation

Yes, and only two ways—before and after it happens! Instead of enduring those dull, tired, headachy days and then having to take an emergency cathartic—why not KEEP regular with Kellogg's All-Bran? You can, if your constipation is the kind millions have—due to lack of "bulk" in the diet. For All-Bran goes right to the cause of this trouble by supplying the "bulk" you need.

Eat this toasted, nutritious cereal regularly—with milk or cream, or baked into muffins—drink plenty of water, and see if your life isn't a whole lot brighter! Made by Kellogg's in Battle Creek. If your condition is chronic, it is wise to consult a physician.

Rookie Hurler Downs Senators

Boston, April 23 (AP)—Mickey Harris, youthful Queen City, L. I., southpaw up from Scranton of the Eastern League, bowed into the Majors today by defeating the Washington Senators 7-2 as his Boston Red Sox mates pounded three home runs.

Harris walked only one man and struck out eight while giving up seven hits, three of them doubles.

The sox made only eight hits but Ted Williams, Lou Finney and Captain Jimmy Foxx hit homers.

South Cumberland Church League To Meet Tomorrow Night

Each team in the South Cumberland Sunday School Soft Ball League is requested to have a representative present Thursday evening at the B&O Y. M. C. A. at 7:30 p. m., to adopt the schedule and transact other business which will come before the members.

The opening date is set for Monday, April 29. All games will be played on Brinker's Field and Locust Grove diamonds. Eight teams have obtained franchises. They are: Living Stone Church of the Brethren, Second Baptist, United Brethren, Trinity and Grace Methodist, St. John's Lutheran, Emmanuel Methodist Episcopal, and Calvary Evangelical.

The Rev. C. K. Welch of the United Brethren church is president of the league.

Gumbert Bests Higbe In Pitchers Battle

Philadelphia, April 23 (AP)—Harry Gumbert bested Kirby Higbe in a hurling duel today to bring the New York Giants their first triumph of the season, 1 to 0, over the Phillies.

Higbe, who had beaten the Giants with a three-hitter a week ago today, forced the game's only run across the plate with a base on balls in the seventh inning after a walk, a wild throw by Gus Suhr and an international pass had filled the bases.

for except as fodder for Budge in his tune-up first round."

Budge and Bauer were paired for the opening match of the U. S. open tennis tournament which the California ace won 6-0, 6-1, 6-0.

Bauer, expressing surprise that he managed to win one game, admitted his knees shook in the first stages of the match, "from the excitement of playing before a large gallery."

"In the first two games, Budge took things easy," his opponent recalled. "Then in the third game he blasted one to my backhand and I knew the pressure was on. There my shakes stopped and I began to think Budge was no different from any other tennis player except his amazing control and his ability to cover the court like greased lightning.

"When I won a point I felt like cheering, whether earned or on his error. Several times I doubled faulted, "galleryitis,' I think.

"And when I won that game in the second set, I felt I had earned the right to legitimately retire from the game on my laurels."

Capt. King Named Athletic Director At Naval Acadamy

Annapolis, Md., April 23 (AP) — Capt. Thomas Starr King, former Naval Academy football and crew star, today was named Director of Athletics at the Naval Academy, succeeding Capt. E. W. McKee.

The new appointee will report Thursday, Rear-Admiral Wilson Brown, Academy superintendent, announced. Capt. King also will become secretary-treasurer of the Navy Athletic Association and head of the physical training department.

Capt. McKee is expected to receive sea duty this summer. His successor, a graduate of the class of 1911, has had two tours of duty here within the past decade. Capt. King has been acting as chief of staff to the commander of the destroyers of the battle force.

While a midshipman, Capt. King was awarded the varisty N for his prowess in football and crew.

There Are Two Ways to Get at Constipation

Yes, and only two ways—before and after it happens! Instead of enduring those dull, tired, headachy days and then having to take an emergency cathartic—why not KEEP regular with Kellogg's All-Bran? You can, if your constipation is the kind millions have—due to lack of "bulk" in the diet. For All-Bran goes right to the cause of this trouble by supplying the "bulk" you need.

Eat this toasted, nutritious cereal regularly—with milk or cream, or baked into muffins—drink plenty of water, and see if your life isn't a whole lot brighter! Made by Kellogg's in Battle Creek. If your condition is chronic, it is wise to consult a physician.

Rookie Hurler Downs Senators

Boston, April 23 (AP)—Mickey Harris, youthful Queen City, L. I., southpaw up from Scranton of the Eastern League, bowed into the Majors today by defeating the Washington Senators 7-2 as his Boston Red Sox mates pounded three home runs.

Harris walked only one man and struck out eight while giving up seven hits, three of them doubles.

The sox made only eight hits but Ted Williams, Lou Finney and Captain Jimmy Foxx hit homers.

Gumbert Bests Higbe In Pitchers Battle

Philadelphia, April 23 (AP)—Harry Gumbert bested Kirby Higbe in a hurling duel today to bring the New York Giants their first triumph of the season, 1 to 0, over the Phillies.

Higbe, who had beaten the Giants with a three-hitter a week ago today, forced the game's only run across the plate with a base on balls in the seventh inning after a walk, a wild throw by Gus Suhr and an international pass had filled the bases.

Cure of Diabetes Is Possible but Rare, Doctor Says

Disease Can Be Kept Under Control with No Disagreeable Symptoms

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

Is diabetes ever cured?

Diabetes can be kept under control so that it gives practically no disagreeable symptoms, but cases of cure are rare. By cure I mean that the patient can eat whatever he likes with no insulin, and has no sugar in the urine.

A patient reported by Dr. Elliot Joslin developed diabetes at the age of two. At first she was a severe diabetic, requiring thirty to forty units of insulin a day, as well as a carefully-regulated diet. She continued this way until her first year in college. Then the insulin requirement dropped off; in her junior year she needed only five units, and in her senior year none at all. She is now twenty-two years old.

Another type is a man sixty-five years old, who had diabetes for six years. He was a mild type and required only fifteen units of insulin a day. Then he had a gallbladder operation and the diabetes steadily improved. Now he eats what he likes, takes no insulin and shows no sign of diabetes.

The explanation is that the cause of diabetes is an atrophy of the secretory cells of the pancreas which manufacture insulin. But with this atrophy there goes a tendency for the cells to regenerate in the course of time and start functioning again. There is, therefore no inherent reason why diabetes should not tend toward recovery, if the cells are rested by the artificial supply of insulin, and with improvement in treatment patients will live longer and cases of cure increase.

Treatment of Epilepsy

What is the modern treatment of epilepsy?

Epilepsy is due to an irritation of the motor section of the brain. If this is caused by skull injury or irritation from a tumor, the irritation can be removed by surgical treatment. Scars and areas of pressure and adhesions can be improved in this way.

Most cases of epilepsy, however, are not of this kind. The three methods of treatment of the functional form of epilepsy are depressant drugs, high fat (ketogenic) diet and fluid restriction. Adherence to diet and fluid restriction will control most cases.

The depressant medicines used include the bromides and barbiturates. They act by depressing the irritable motor cortex of the brain.

Under the auspices of the Harvard Epilepsy Commission, cases treated with a new compound have been reported. It is not a sedative nor a soporific; hence the patient is much clearer and more alert mentally than when the barbiturates are used. It was carefully tested on laboratory animals before its use in human beings and its ability to stop convulsions was proved beforehand. In favorable cases it reduces the number of convulsions; in one case the patient going a year with only one attack.

Vitamin B Salad
By Dr. Clendening

Vegetables used in a vitamin B salad are lettuce, peas and beans. Add slices of hard-boiled egg, a teaspoonful of almonds and walnuts; boiled dressing. Serve with two wholewheat crackers.

Recipe for boiled dressing—Three eggs, well-beaten; one-fourth cup of sugar, one level teaspoonful of dry mustard, salt, pepper, paprika, one and one-half teaspoonfuls of cornstarch dissolved in enough milk to make smooth—then add one-half cup of milk. Cook all these ingredients in a double boiler, beating in one-fourth cup of vinegar, drop by drop. When thickened, add one tablespoonful of butter; whip to a fluffy consistency. This makes one pint of dressing.

CHAPTER FORTY-ONE

ON MY way to the Markham home I stopped at the police station. "Has that fellow William Calla been brought in yet?" I asked.

"He ought to be in here any minute," the sergeant informed me, squinting up at the clock.

"Could I talk with him?"

He shook his head. "I don't think so."

"Couldn't George Markham and I talk with him, if there were some of the police with us?"

"Oh, I guess that can be arranged."

"Thanks. Will you give me a ring at the Markham place?"

"Sure."

My plans were still a little hazy but they began to take shape in my mind as I called a cab. All depended on how willing the captive would be to talk. Perhaps I knew enough to make him talk.

Louise met me at her door. "Bill! I saw you arrive," she said. "The police just telephoned. They have the man you were trying to capture last night!"

"Yes, I know." The hope in her eyes troubled me. I almost wished Calla had escaped, now that I realized how dangerous he was to her future happiness. "I came to get your brother to go to the police station with me and question him."

"May I go, too?"

I shook my head. "No, I'm afraid not, Louise."

At that moment George appeared behind his sister. I explained what I wanted.

"Be right with you," he said. He got his coat. A moment later we climbed into the Markham car. Louise waved goodby. I wondered if I had hurt her feelings. Perhaps I should have made some sort of explanation—but it could not have been the true one.

We found three men in the police chief's private office. William Calla stood a head taller than his captor beside him. Handcuffs had been snapped on his wrists and he was strangely subdued. His chin had sunk low and he was looking at the desk, not at the chief, who was speaking.

—"and so," said the chief, tapping the top of the desk with a pencil as he looked at the prisoner, "this time you are going up for a long stretch. We have the goods on you."

Then he noticed us. "Oh, hello there, Mr. Markham and Mr. Strickland. So you want a few words with our prize exhibit here? I'd like to listen in."

"Certainly," I agreed. "I just want to ask him what he knows about dope peddling."

"He knows plenty. We've suspected him of that game for a long time—a sort of side line for his bootlegging. Or maybe the bootlegging was just a blind to cover up the dope peddling. We planted men who knew him at two piers in San Francisco this morning. They pretended they were drug addicts and begged him for some of the stuff when he went on board. We figured he'd have some left and would be glad to get rid of it as he left the country. We were right. One of our men tricked him into a sale—and nabbed him. Now he's going up for a long stretch—the limit."

I addressed myself to the prisoner. "Then you might as well answer a few questions," I told him. "You can't be in any worse fix than you are already. Ever see this before?"

I passed him the slip of paper that had been found in the sack he had tied over my head. I held it so that my finger pointed to the date, "May 16, 11 P. M."

He shook his head.

"Come on," I advised him. "Although the police are going the limit with you on the dope charge, there's another charge that I could bring against you. I might forget it, though, if you'll come across with what you know. Ever see this before?"

"I guess I must have dropped it," he growled. "It's one of my order slips, all right."

"And does it mean that you were going to meet Alfred Markham the night of May 16 to sell him narcotics?"

George Markham gasped. "What are you saying? What do you mean?"

Calla nodded. "Yeh, he was one of my regular customers," he admitted. "But the night of May 16 he came to me—down to my house on Cleaves street."

"I don't believe it!" cried the brother of the slain man. "Alfred was one of the finest, straightest. . . . You're lying to us!"

"Oh, you high hats are no better than the rest of us," snarled Calla, lifting his head. "I can prove what I say. Sure he bought the dope off me. He bought it regular. He was goin' to get some more the night he was killed. That was why I went there. He was supposed to meet me."

I interrupted, trying to make the blow as easy for George as I could. "He wasn't as bad as most of your—your other customers, was he?"

"Maybe not. He went without it for quite a while sometimes. But he always came back."

George Markham groaned. He sank into a chair, and his head bent forward into his hands.

I went to him and put a hand on his shoulder. "Don't take it so hard," I advised gently. "People have the wrong idea about this sort of thing. It's a disease, not a habit. Your brother was more to be pitied than blamed."

"But—but, I can't understand it." He looked up at me with tragedy in his eyes.

"It probably began in the hospital after his accident," I explained. "They had to keep him drugged to kill his pain. Afterward he took drugs to prevent a recurrence of the torture. Finally, deprivation of the drugs themselves tortured him. It was a vicious circle. He was the helpless victim. That was why he was so interested in drug addicts—why he wanted to help them. He knew they were not to blame."

"But—but you know what a quiet sort of person he was. He wasn't nervous. He was a perfect gentleman. I—I can't believe what you say!"

"The drug wouldn't affect his conduct, except at the time he was suffering for lack of it," I explained. "He wasn't an addict in the sense of taking drugs to forget the world. For him they were a medicine he had to have. And if you question his friends you will discover that he did have nervous spells. You forget that you have been away from home most of the time for the past several years."

The chief coughed. "I'm afraid Mr. Strickland is right. This gives an entirely new angle to the case. We'd better not discuss it any more, right now. It will all come out when Jerry Montcalm comes up for trial."

"Oh, but it mustn't!" gasped George Markham, leaping to his feet. "I'll withdraw my charges against Mr. Montcalm. This mustn't come out. The shock would kill my sister!"

The chief was quiet but firm. "Sorry," he said, "but I'm afraid there is nothing that can be done about it now. The trial will have to be held—and this will have to come out at the trial."

"The trial hasn't been set yet," I reminded him. "Jerry is only up for preliminary examination this morning."

"That's right, but there's no doubt he will be held for superior court. Someone else will swear to the warrant, if Mr. Markham objects to doing it himself."

Allied Warships Now In Mediterranean

Cairo, Egypt, April 23 (AP)—Victories of the Allied fleets off Norway have enabled Allied warships to come to the Mediterranean, so that the danger of a fortnight ago no longer is imminent, Premier Aly Maher Pasha told the chamber of deputies.

The Premier reiterated Egypt's support of the British and French and declared the country was sparing no efforts to carry out its obligations under the British-Egyptian treaty.

"Buddy" Walker Knocks Out Kenneally

Columbus, Ohio, April 23 (AP)—Jack "Buddy" Walker, state heavyweight boxing champion, knocked out Tom Kenneally of Chicago in the third stanza of their scheduled ten-round bout here to remain undefeated in nineteen encounters. Walker weighed 194 and Kenneally 191½.

Walker popped Kenneally's mouth open with a terrific body smash and put him away with a right cross to the head. The Columbus negro has won eighteen ring encounters and fought a draw in another.

Semi-finalist Eddie Winston of Hartford, Conn., won a sixth round technical knockout over Jack Cuddy of Wheeling, W. Va. Winston weighed 199 pounds, 11 less than Cuddy.

Tawes Breaks Up Tax Dollar for Average Citizen

Comptroller Shows Where It Goes in Detailed Statement

Annapolis, Md., April 23 (AP)—More than half of every tax dollar spent in Maryland goes into highways, education and relief, State Comptroller J. Millard Tawes disclosed.

Establishing a precedent for his department by breaking down state revenue and expenditures in a form comprehensive to the average citizen, Tawes made public a summary for the 1939 fiscal year which included these facts:

Of every dollar collected—

23.71 cents was spent on roads. ($14,322,536)

15.90 cents was spent on education. ($9,608,359)

12.13 cents was spent on public assistance. ($7,329,380)

9.92 cents went for debt service on state bonds. ($5,995,657)

8.94 cents went for serving roads commission bonds. ($5,401,961)

6.49 cents went into the state accident fund, revolving funds, unemployment compensation administration, etc. ($3,923,105)

5.72 cents went into land, building and equipment. $3,454,627)

Least money of all—$891,220, or 1.4 cents of the tax dollar—went for legislative, executive and judical branches of the state government.

Honest Clerk Shows Up 2 Dishonest Ones

Baltimore, April 23 (AP)—An honest clerk's honest mistake broke up the careful juggling by which $71,000 was taken from the city's accounts, Mayor Howard W. Jackson said.

He explained that two city collector's office employes took the money by withholding receipts, then using new payments to complete payment records of old bills.

"This required a great deal of work by the dishonest employes to keep their records apparently accurate.

"It was a mistake by a clerk who had nothing whatever to do with the dishonest transactions that brought the matter to light. The failure to post a payment resulted in a second bill being sent out, and when it was learned that the bill had been paid, the whole situation was uncovered."

The Unbeaten

Los Angeles (AP)—Declaring that today's students were probably "the only unspanked generation in the world," President Rufus B. Von Kleinsmid of the University of Southern California expressed the opinion in a lecture that the youths and girls had "missed something."

The first railroad in Brazil, built in 1854, was nine miles long.

You forget that you have been away from home most of the time for the past several years."

The chief coughed. "I'm afraid Mr. Strickland is right. This gives an entirely new angle to the case. We'd better not discuss it any more, right now. It will all come out when Jerry Montcalm comes up for trial."

"Oh, but it mustn't!" gasped George Markham, leaping to his feet. "I'll withdraw my charges against Mr. Montcalm. This mustn't come out. The shock would kill my sister!"

The chief was quiet but firm. "Sorry," he said, "but I'm afraid there is nothing that can be done about it now. The trial will have to be held—and this will have to come out at the trial."

"The trial hasn't been set yet," I reminded him. "Jerry is only up for preliminary examination this morning."

"That's right, but there's no doubt he will be held for superior court. Someone else will swear to the warrant, if Mr. Markham objects to doing it himself."

Tawes Breaks Up Tax Dollar for Average Citizen

Comptroller Shows Where It Goes in Detailed Statement

Annapolis, Md., April 23 (AP)—More than half of every tax dollar spent in Maryland goes into highways, education and relief, State Comptroller J. Millard Tawes disclosed.

Establishing a precedent for his department by breaking down state revenue and expenditures in a form comprehensive to the average citizen, Tawes made public a summary for the 1939 fiscal year which included these facts:

Of every dollar collected—

23.71 cents was spent on roads. ($14,322,536)

15.90 cents was spent on education. ($9,608,359)

12.13 cents was spent on public assistance. ($7,329,380)

9.92 cents went for debt service on state bonds. ($5,995,657)

8.94 cents went for serving roads commission bonds. ($5,401,961)

6.49 cents went into the state accident fund, revolving funds, unemployment compensation administration, etc. ($3,923,105)

5.72 cents went into land, building and equipment. $3,454,627)

Least money of all—$891,220, or 1.4 cents of the tax dollar—went for legislative, executive and judical branches of the state government.

Honest Clerk Shows Up 2 Dishonest Ones

Baltimore, April 23 (AP)—An honest clerk's honest mistake broke up the careful juggling by which $71,000 was taken from the city's accounts, Mayor Howard W. Jackson said.

He explained that two city collector's office employes took the money by withholding receipts, then using new payments to complete payment records of old bills.

"This required a great deal of work by the dishonest employes to keep their records apparently accurate.

"It was a mistake by a clerk who had nothing whatever to do with the dishonest transactions that brought the matter to light. The failure to post a payment resulted in a second bill being sent out, and when it was learned that the bill had been paid, the whole situation was uncovered."

The Unbeaten

Los Angeles (AP)—Declaring that today's students were probably "the only unspanked generation in the world," President Rufus B. Von Kleinsmid of the University of Southern California expressed the opinion in a lecture that the youths and girls had "missed something."

The first railroad in Brazil, built in 1854, was nine miles long.

Allied Warships Now In Mediterranean

Cairo, Egypt, April 23 (AP)—Victories of the Allied fleets off Norway have enabled Allied warships to come to the Mediterranean, so that the danger of a fortnight ago no longer is imminent, Premier Aly Maher Pasha told the chamber of deputies.

The Premier reiterated Egypt's support of the British and French and declared the country was sparing no efforts to carry out its obligations under the British-Egyptian treaty.

"Buddy" Walker Knocks Out Kenneally

Columbus, Ohio, April 23 (AP)—Jack "Buddy" Walker, state heavyweight boxing champion, knocked out Tom Kenneally of Chicago in the third stanza of their scheduled ten-round bout here to remain undefeated in nineteen encounters. Walker weighed 194 and Kenneally 191½.

Walker popped Kenneally's mouth open with a terrific body smash and put him away with a right cross to the head. The Columbus negro has won eighteen ring encounters and fought a draw in another.

Semi-finalist Eddie Winston of Hartford, Conn., won a sixth round technical knockout over Jack Cuddy of Wheeling, W. Va. Winston weighed 199 pounds, 11 less than Cuddy.

Kempton Citizens Push Campaign For New Highway

Senator Helmick Promises Co-Operation in Securing Project

Kempton, W. Va., April 23 —State Senator A. B. Helmick today had promised a delegation of Kempton and Thomas citizens his support in the campaign to secure the building of a new three-mile road extending from the Tucker county line.

Senator Helmick pledged his cooperation at a conference with the citizens at the office of the West Virginia Sand and Stone Company. The present highway, citizens claim, is in a deplorable condition, particularly during the winter months when it is always hazardous, frequently impassable. This condition, they say, interferes with transportation of mine workers, teachers and mailmen, as well as delivery of needed commodities.

Residents of Kempton are 100 per cent behind the new road campaign and are backed by Thomas business men. The Davis Coal and Coke Company of Thomas, owners of the Kempton mine, is also supporting the move.

Leaders of the Kempton delegation were Chairman Pierce Warsaw, Donald Wotring and William Konik Jr.

The Thomas business leaders at the meeting were John DiBacco, Salvotore DiBacco, S. Fansler, Joseph Tatedo, Laurence Whipple, Tom Delitoss, Thomas DePollo, Dalton Kight, Cecil Thayer, Sam Chilansky and Abe DiBacco.

Ladies' Aid Meets

Mrs. Paul Dice was hostess, Friday night to members of the Ladies' Aid. Mrs. Lewis Duling had charge of the social hour, and Mrs. Joseph Kerosk was awarded a prize in an automobile contest.

Tri-Towns League Season Under Way

Westernport, April 23—The Tri-Towns Softball League season opened Monday with Devon Club defeating Most tossers 10-8 on the Ice High field and the Boal outdowning the Eagles 8-3 at Memorial Park.

John Griffin, former LaSalle athlete, made three sensational catches for the Most crew. R. Twigg and Smith of the same team and L. Baz of Devon Club hit homers. Rounds maced a homer for the Boal team, while C. Price and J. Beaver each rapped three hits for the Eagles with one of the latter's going for three bases. Wayne Jones starred in the outfield for the winners. The Eagles outhit the Boal batsmen, 10-7, but Campbell kept the blows scattered. The scores:

Devon	310 020 2— 8 8 2

Batteries—Dixon and Hoban, Devon—Kiddy and Manzoni.

Eagles	021 112 1—8 7 1
Most	210 000 0—3 10 5

Batteries—Campbell and Rounds, Eagles—Wilson and Machin.

Morgantown Publisher Seeks Radio Station

Charleston, W. Va., April 23 (AP) — The West Virginia Radio Corporation of Morgantown, with an unauthorized capitalization of $25,000, received a charter today to operate a radio station.

The concern, which already has applied to the Federal Communications Commission for a broadcasting license, was incorporated by H. Greer Morgantown publisher, Agnes J. Reeves Greer and their daughter, Jane Greer.

FIRE THREATENS HOSPITAL

Firemen pour tons of water into a blazing warehouse in South Baltimore, Md., where fire caused damage estimated at $10,000. Four firemen were injured and nearly 100 persons forced to flee from nearby homes. The flames threatened Baltimore General Hospital.

'Kangaroo Court' Principals Receive Indeterminate Jail Terms at Sutton

Sutton, W. Va., April 23 (AP)—A former Braxton county jail turnkey and three one-time prisoners were sentenced to indeterminate prison terms today for a "kangaroo court" conspiracy to assault and rob other inmates.

Curt Ellison, the former turnkey, was convicted of conspiracy to assault and take the property of John Dolan, whose story of mistreatment during a brief incarceration for a hunting infraction led to a grand jury investigation of jail conditions last fall.

Ellison was permitted to give bail pending an appeal to the State Supreme Court.

Judge Jake Fisher imposed what he called "general terms" based upon good behavior and other conditions upon Scott Friend, H. V. Hensley and Ed McClaughlin for conspiracy to assault and take the property of Dolan and John Friend.

Bradford Carpenter, another former prisoner who confessed to a misdemeanor charge, was sentenced to twelve months in the Braxton jail and fined $50 and costs on a morals charge.

Harley (Buck) King, who also pleaded guilty to a misdemeanor, received six months in jail, while Orfra Jarvis was placed on probation for five years.

In a civil action brought by Dolan against Sheriff R. W. Brosius and the sheriff's bonding company in which the plaintiff was awarded damages of $954, Judge Fisher overruled a defense motion to set aside the verdict.

Deer Crossings Need Protection, Warden Asserts

Another Deer Reported Killed by Automobile near Grantsville

Grantsville, April 23—A passing motorist stopped at the home of Game Warden Fred Livengood here this morning and deposited a dead doe on his immaculate front lawn. The animal, which Mr. Livengood estimated to be about a year old, had been struck by a car about midnight last night at the deer crossing near Keysers Ridge, five miles west of here.

The warden said this was the eighth or tenth deer that had been killed in such a manner recently on the two crossings in that vicinity, and he felt something should be done to protect not only the animals, but the motorist as well. Such a collision, he said, might result in the loss of a life, or at the least, cause considerable damage to a machine.

Mr. Livengood said he was writing to State Game Warden E. Lee LeCompte for permission to post signs at certain distances from these two crossings to warn approaching motorists. He will also present the matter at the next meeting of the local sportsmen's unit May 14, for their consideration.

George Smouse Dies

Relatives here received word last night that George Smouse, 45, had died at his home at Scottdale, Pa., yesterday morning. To their knowledge he had not previously been ill, but no further details were given in the message.

Mr. Smouse was a son of Mrs. Ida Farrell Smouse and the late George Smouse, natives of this section. While he had made his home elsewhere, he and his family had often visited here at the home of Mr. and

Hit-Skip Driver Gets Nine Months

Hamlin, W. Va., April 23 (AP) — Elvin McKenzie of Tudorkey, Ky., was sentenced today to nine months in jail after pleading guilty to a charge of leaving the scene of an accident in which Rufus Lambert, 17, was seriously hurt.

McKenzie and Thamos Daniels, identified by State Trooper James Elle as the owner of the car, were arrested near Huntington after the accident near West Hamlin yesterday. Daniels was lodged in jail pending a hearing before Magistrate C. C. Ashworth.

Huntington hospital attendants said Lamber's condition was serious.

Coney Girl To Talk At Press Conclave

Marie Stakem To Discuss Make-up at Frostburg Meeting May 4

Lonaconing, April 23.—At the Western Maryland press conference to be held Saturday, May 4, at Frostburg State Teachers college, Marie Stakem, editor of the Orange and Black, official organ of Central high school here, will be one of the speakers.

Miss Mary E. Murray, of Allegany high school, Cumberland, is arranging the program for the conference.

Miss Stakem has been selected to discuss "Streamlined Make-up."

Four sectional meetings will be held at the conference, at 11 a. m. with two speakers at each meeting.

Several other delegates from the local school's paper will also attend, accompanied by Principal Arthur F. Smith, adviser.

Correction

Through error, the name of Charles Kirkwood was announced as a candidate for the office of bailiff in yesterday's edition. The name should have been Hugh S. Kirkwood.

Classical Club To Meet

Tomorrow evening members of the classical club of Central high school will hold their monthly meeting in the auditorium. The main feature on the program to be presented will be a play entitled "Vacuum."

Those taking part are: John Hohing, June Bell, Jack Getty, Betty Stevenson, DeSales Meyers, Lois Anderson, Ruth Jones and Virginia Jacobs. A pantomime of myths will be presented by Betty Castle. Richard Daen will hold a quiz on the founding of Rome.

The program will also include a baseball game conducted by Betty Dudley and songs by Vivian Abbott, Louise Green, Marianna Logsdon and Mildred Hadley. Leaders of the program are Norma Gordon, Doretha Reed and Wilma Mackey.

Electrician Injured

John Hardegan, Castle Hill, chief electrician of the George's Creek Coal Company, was injured this morning while at work at the mine.

Mr. Hardegan is suffering from a severely mashed first finger on the left hand. He is confined to his home with the injury.

Drunken Driving Conviction Upheld In Keyser Court

Jury Convicts C. K. Stanley; J. L. Parrill Wins Damage Suit

Keyser, W. Va., April 23.—After slightly more than an hour's deliberation, a jury in Circuit court here today returned a verdict of guilty in the trial of Clarence K. Stanley on a drunken driving charge.

Stanley, represented by Attorney Herndon A. Athey, was found guilty of drunken driving in Police court here last July and was fined $50 and had his license revoked. He appealed to Circuit court.

The case, which was opened shortly after 10 o'clock this morning, went to the jury about 11. The Circuit court jurors delivered the verdict upholding the city's findings at 12:15 p. m.

The case was prosecuted by City Attorney Ernest A. See. Plaintiff's witnesses included Chief of City Police James E. Deatherman and Patrolman Estle Miers, who arrested Stanley shortly after midnight on the night of July 15, 1939.

Earlier this morning, another jury returned a verdict for the plaintiff in the case of John L. Parrill versus the city of Keyser. Parrill asked $1,000 damages from the city as compensation for time lost from work, hospital fees and repair bills, resulting from a fall sustained when he stumbled over a defect in the pavement on Armstrong street and crashed through a window in the Court Square Cafe, injuring an arm. He was awarded $150.

Parrill was represented by Attorney R. A. Welch, and City Attorney Ernest A. See represented the defense.

Streams Are Stocked

Game Warden Joe L. Hughes announced today that nine truckloads of brook and rainbow trout were released two weeks ago in streams near here. Hughes said the announcement was not made earlier because of the possibility of fishermen jumping the season, which opens Saturday. Another reason for withholding the information was that the fish were comparatively "tame," having been raised and fed in hatcheries and at first would have been easy prey for illegal anglers, he stated.

The fish were released in the following streams:

Abram's Creek—four truckloads of legal size (8-inch) rainbow trout; upper New Creek—two truckloads legal size rainbow trout; Howell's Run—one truckload legal size (7-inch) brook trout; Pine Swamp—one truckload fingerling rainbow trout, and Grayson's Gap—one truckload fingerling rainbow trout.

Hughes said that a truckload of seven and eight-inch trout runs 500 to 600 fish, and a truckload of fingerlings runs from 700 to 800.

WPA Official Visits

C. G. Dixon, Huntington, state property custodian for the Works Progress Administration, was here today visiting the Zone 1 WPA warehouse.

Desks have been moved into the second floor of the old silk mill building on the corner of East and Mozelle streets, which will be partitioned off for offices, and R. M. Gamble, acting warehouse superintendent, Eugene Merrill, acting property accountant, and G. Stanard Pratt, accountant, are scheduled to begin work tomorrow.

A WPA official said this evening the warehouse would be operating in full swing "by the first of the month."

Fifty persons will be employed at the warehouse for the zone embracing the eleven easternmost counties in the state.

Business Men Meet

Members of the Keyser Business Men's Association at a meeting last night voted to close their establishments Wednesday afternoons from May 15 to August 28 this year.

After reading its report, the committee for Christmas street lighting was discharged, all bills having been paid in full.

J. M. Bright reported to the meeting that he had received a letter from Wilson T. Ballard, civil engineer for the Maryland State Roads Commission, stating that plans for the reconstruction of the Keyser-McCoole bridge across the Potomac have been completed and approved. Plans for the new span include an overhead approach on the north bank of the river, eliminating the Western Maryland railroad grade crossing. Bright said the engineer's letter stated.

Officers elected for the coming year at last night's meeting in the city offices include: G. O. Workman, president; Jake Shear, vice-president; and Calvin McCoole, secretary-treasurer.

GOP 'Elephant' Parades For Stewart Campaign

Frostburg, April 23—Many persons in the community were surprised last night to see walking along the streets what they may have thought was a Ringling Brothers elephant escaped from his keeper.

The first appearance of the "elephant" caused the older folks to look at first with amazement and the children to jump with glee until they learned on closer inspection it was a phoney elephant—out doing his stuff with banners flying for A. Charles Stewart, candidate for the Republican nomination for the sixth district congressional seat.

The animal, made of cardboard and wire mesh is very realistic, with large movable ears, a trunk that curls up, and a natural-sounding shriek. The elephant, built by J. Millard Hughes, of Woodlawn, LaVale, is one of a number of animals he has constructed for various occasions.

The "Stewart for Congress" elephant will be seen in Oakland, Cumberland, Hagerstown, Frederick and surrounding towns.

Alumni To Hold Party April 29

Flintstone Association Completing Plans for Annual Affair

Flintstone, April 23—Plans are being completed for the annual spring party of the Flintstone Alumni Association to be held at Minke's Cottage Inn Monday from 8 to 10:30 p. m.

The alumni are pleased with themselves these days and with good reason. It was recently announced that this association is the first of its kind, so far as is known, to establish a scholarship fund in Allegany county.

The fund was started two years ago with contributions from alumni members and proceeds from parties. While adding to the scholarship fund, the organization is backing the purchase of an electric phonograph to be used in the school.

Meetings Scheduled

Various activities of interest will be held during the remainder of the week.

Tomorrow (Wednesday) evening at 8 p. m. the P.-T. A. will hold its monthly meeting in the school auditorium. This is a study for teachers and parents only. The subject will be "Elementary Problems," a discussion led by teachers of elementary grades.

The Future Farmers of America club and the Home Economic club will hold their monthly meetings in their respective departments at Flintstone high school Friday.

Sunday School Officers

Frank Rudy was elected superintendent of the Beans Cove Methodist Sunday school at a reorganization meeting Sunday afternoon.

Other oicers elected for the coming year are: Donald Perdew, secretary; Victor Perdew, treasurer; Cromwell Perdew, adult Bible class teacher; Mrs. Walter Miller, junior class teacher, and Mrs. Charles Rice, primary teacher.

This is the first time in thirteen years that the Beans Cove church has had a Sunday school. Members from this section formerly attended Sunday school at the Oakdale and Prosperity churches near here.

The late Emory C. Perdew was the first superintendent of the Sunday school.

Special Grand Jury To Hear Case Of Convict Who Shot Policeman

Buckhannon, W. Va., April 23 (AP) —A special grand jury was ordered summoned today to consider murder charges against Byzantine Hartman, 40 - year - old ex-convict who a state trooper said admitted killing a city patrolman and lamented that "my shells ran out before I could kill more policemen."

Judge John F. Brown directed that the jury commissioners meet tonight to select talesman who will hear a special charge Thursday morning.

Hartman was kept at the Lewis county jail in Weston, where he was taken for safekeeping after angry crowds gathered around the Upshur county jail here.

Wilbur Hoy Grubb, 46, also Upshur county jailer, was killed early Sunday morning after he was summoned by Hartman's mother, who said her son choked and threatened her, State Police Corporal Troy Alkire related.

Hartman, who was sentenced to a year in the penitentiary, escaped jail after the penalty was imposed. He was returned to serve the term after he was taken to an Ohio hospital half-frozen, and thinking he was dying, told attaches he was wanted here.

Ben Thomason, a neighbor who accompanied Grubb to the Hartman home, was wounded in the shooting.

Corporal Alkire said Hartman readily admitted shooting Grubb, saying he first shot the officer in the chest and shoulder, then returned after firing at Thomason, placed the shotgun against Grubb's head and killed him.

Jumping into a city police car, Hartman drove away, struck a tree and finally ran off the road, turning over three or four times, Alkire said. Officers found him on a street near the jail after he had gone to the jail and asked Mrs. Grubb for a gun and a knife, the officer added.

Hartman started fires in the jail twice after his arrest, once with papers and once with a mattress.

Funeral services for Grubb will be held tomorrow.

Firm Plays Host To 200 Workers At Buffet Lunch

Big Modern Building Replaces Old Structure Razed by Fire

Frostburg, April 23—In appreciation for the splendid cooperation given by the men and women who worked on the new Hafer building here since the fire which destroyed the old building last August, Jacob Hafer and members of his family entertained this evening at Firemen's hall, Water street, with a buffet luncheon and program. The affair was attended by about 200 persons, including those who helped raze the old structure and others employed on the construction of the new building, together with friends of the firm.

William Sisler, contractor who had charge of the construction work, was master of ceremonies and introduced the various entertainers.

The new Hafer furniture store and funeral home, one of the largest and most attractive business places in the community, will be opened for business tomorrow (Wednesday) morning.

The building, which extends from Main street through to Mechanic street, consists of three floors, and a basement under the entire structure.

The first floor contains the funeral home and a display room in the front where samples of everything on the upper floors are displayed. Customers will have the benefit of elevator service to the upper floors.

The second floor will be used for the display of bedroom furniture, bedding, children's furniture, and also includes a beautifully furnished apartment. The third floor will be used for the display of living room and kitchen furniture, rugs, linoleum and lamps.

The building, designed by Alfons Bach, New York architect, is featured by a beautiful plate glass front for the display of furniture and the entrance to the funeral home, which is reached through a long corridor decorated in a color scheme of peach blossom and adorned with a fluorescent lighting system.

All the floors of the building are covered with carpet and linoleum, giving the interior a home-like appearance. The chapel contains a Hammond organ which will be played all day Wednesday by Arthur Amtower, Cumberland, who is the organist at the Hafer funeral home, Cumberland. The building is air conditioned and contains every convenience found in the most modern business structures.

The Hafer firm, established here thirty-three years ago when Jacob Hafer, the senior member, purchased the business of Gehauf and Mayer, has enjoyed the confidence and generous patronage of residents of the community from the beginning.

Mr. Hafer and members of his family have always been active in the business, social, religious and fraternal affairs of the town and never failed to lend a helping hand in promoting local civic projects. The firm is favorably known among the furniture and undertaking manufacturers of the country and the announcement of the date for the opening of the new building was followed by the receipt of hundreds of congratulatory messages.

Kempton Citizens Push Campaign For New Highway

Senator Helmick Promises Co-Operation in Securing Project

Kempton, W. Va., April 23 —State Senator A. B. Helmick today had promised a delegation of Kempton and Thomas citizens his support in the campaign to secure the building of a new three-mile road extending from the Tucker county line.

Senator Helmick pledged his cooperation at a conference with the citizens at the office of the West Virginia Sand and Stone Company. The present highway, citizens claim, is in a deplorable condition, particularly during the winter months, when it is always hazardous, frequently impassable. This condition, they say, interferes with transportation of mine workers, teachers and mailmen, as well as delivery of needed commodities.

Residents of Kempton are 100 per cent behind the new road campaign and are backed by Thomas business men. The Davis Coal and Coke Company of Thomas, owners of the Kempton mine, is also supporting the move.

Leaders of the Kempton delegation were Chairman Pierce Warsaw, Arnold Wotring and William Kronik Jr.

The Thomas business leaders at the meeting were John DiBacco, Salvatore DiBacco, S. Fansler, Joseph Tatedo, Laurence Whipple, Sam Delitoss, Thomas DePollo, Dalton Kight, Cecil Thayer, Sam Chilansky and Abe DiBacco.

Ladies' Aid Meets

Mrs. Paul Dice was hostess, Friday night to members of the Ladies' Aid. Mrs. Lewis Duling had charge of the social hour, and Mrs. Joseph Kerosk was awarded a prize in an automobile contest.

Firemen pour tons of water into a blazing warehouse in South Baltimore, Md., where fire caused damage estimated at $10,000. Four firemen were injured and nearly 100 persons forced to flee from nearby homes. The flames threatened Baltimore General Hospital.

'Kangaroo Court' Principals Receive Indeterminate Jail Terms at Sutton

Sutton, W. Va., April 23 (AP)—A former Braxton county jail turnkey and three one-time prisoners were sentenced to indeterminate prison terms today for a "kangaroo court" conspiracy to assault and rob other inmates.

Curt Ellison, the former turnkey, was convicted of conspiracy to assault and take the property of John Dolan, whose story of mistreatment during a brief incarceration for a hunting infraction led to a grand jury investigation of jail conditions last fall.

Ellison was permitted to give bail pending an appeal to the State Supreme Court.

Judge Jake Fisher imposed what he called "general terms" based upon good behavior and other conditions upon Scott Friend, H. V. Hensley and Ed McClaughlin for conspiracy to assault and take the property of Dolan and John Friend.

Bradford Carpenter, another former prisoner who confessed to a misdemeanor charge, was sentenced to twelve months in the Braxton jail and fined $50 and costs on a morals charge.

Harley (Buck) King, who also pleaded guilty to a misdemeanor, received six months in jail, while Orfra Jarvis was placed on probation for five years.

In a civil action brought by Dolan against Sheriff R. W. Brosius and the sheriff's bonding company in which the plaintiff was awarded damages of $954, Judge Fisher overruled a defense motion to set aside the verdict.

Deer Crossings Need Protection, Warden Asserts

Another Deer Reported Killed by Automobile near Grantsville

Grantsville, April 23—A passing motorist stopped at the home of Game Warden Fred Livengood here this morning and deposited a dead doe on his immaculate front lawn. The animal, which Mr. Livengood estimated to be about a year old, had been struck by a car about midnight last night at the deer crossing near Keysers Ridge, five miles west of here.

The warden said this was the eighth or tenth deer that had been killed in such a manner recently on the two crossings in that vicinity, and he felt something should be done to protect not only the animals, but the motorist as well. Such a collision, he said, might result in the loss of a life, or at the least, cause considerable damage to a machine.

Mr. Livengood said he was writing to State Game Warden E. Lee LeCompte for permission to post signs at certain distances from these two crossings to warn approaching motorists. He will also present the matter at the next meeting of the local sportsmen's unit May 14, for their consideration.

George Smouse Dies

Mr. Hardegan is suffering from a severely mashed first finger on the left hand. He is confined to his home with the injury.

Jury Convicts C. K. Stanley; J. L. Parrill Wins Damage Suit

Keyser W. Va., April 23.—After slightly more than an hour's deliberation, a jury in Circuit court here today returned a verdict of guilty in the trial of Clarence K. Stanley on a drunken driving charge.

Stanley, represented by Attorney Herndon A. Athey, was found guilty of drunken driving in Police court here last July and was fined $50 and had his license revoked. He appealed to Circuit court.

The case, which was opened shortly after 10 o'clock this morning, went to the jury about 11. The Circuit court jurors delivered the verdict upholding the city's findings at 12:15 p. m.

The case was prosecuted by City Attorney Ernest A. See. Plaintiff's witnesses included Chief of City Police James E. Deatherman and Patrolman Estle Miers, who arrested Stanley shortly after midnight on the night of July 15, 1939.

Earlier this morning, another jury returned a verdict for the plaintiff in the case of John L. Parrill versus the city of Keyser. Parrill asked $1,000 damages from the city as compensation for time lost from work, hospital fees and repair bills, resulting from a fall sustained when he stumbled over a defect in the pavement on Armstrong street and crashed through a window in the Court Square Cafe, injuring an arm. He was awarded $150.

Parrill was represented by Attorney R. A. Welch, and City Attorney Ernest A. See represented the defense.

Streams Are Stocked

Game Warden Joe L. Hughes announced today that nine truckloads of brook and rainbow trout were released two weeks ago in streams near here. Hughes said the announcement was not made earlier because of the possibility of fishermen jumping the season, which opens Saturday. Another reason for withholding the information was that the fish were comparatively "tame," having been raised and fed in hatcheries and at first would have been easy prey for illegal anglers, he stated.

The fish were released in the following streams:

Abram's Creek—four truckloads of legal size (8-inch) rainbow trout; upper New Creek—two truckloads legal size rainbow trout; Howell's Run—one truckload legal size (7-inch) brook trout; Pine Swamp—one truckload fingerling rainbow trout, and Grayson's Gap—one truckload fingerling rainbow trout.

Hughes said that a truckload of seven and eight-inch trout runs 500 to 600 fish, and a truckload of fingerlings runs from 700 to 800.

WPA Official Visits

C. G. Dixon, Huntington, state property custodian for the Works Progress Administration, was here today visiting the Zone 1 WPA warehouse.

Desks have been moved into the second floor of the old silk mill building on the corner of East and Mozelle streets, which will be partitioned off for offices, and R. M. Gamble, acting warehouse superintendent, Eugene Merrill, acting property accountant, and G. Standard Pratt, accountant, are scheduled to begin work tomorrow.

A WPA official said this evening the warehouse would be operating in full swing "by the first of the month."

Fifty persons will be employed at the warehouse for the zone embracing the eleven easternmost counties in the state.

Business Men Meet

Members of the Keyser Business Men's Association at a meeting last night voted to close their establishments Wednesday afternoons from May 15 to August 28 this year.

After reading its report, the committee for Christmas street lighting was discharged, all bills having been paid in full.

J. M. Bright reported to the meeting that he had received a letter from Wilson T. Ballard, civil engineer for the Maryland State Roads Commission, stating that plans for the reconstruction of the Keyser-McCoole bridge across the Potomac have been completed and approved. Plans for the new span include an overhead approach on the north bank of the river, eliminating the Western Maryland railroad grade crossing. Bright said the engineer's letter stated.

Officers elected for the coming year at last night's meeting in the city offices include: G. O. Workman, president; Jake Shear, vice-president; and Calvin McCoole, secretary-treasurer.

GOP 'Elephant' Parades For Stewart Campaign

Frostburg, April 23 — Many persons in the community were surprised last night to see walking along the streets what they may have thought was a Ringling Brothers elephant escaped from his keeper.

The first appearance of the "elephant" caused the older folks to look at first with amazement and the children to jump with glee until they learned on closer inspection it was a phoney elephant—out doing his stuff with banners flying for A. Charles Stewart, candidate for the Republican nomination for the sixth district congressional seat.

The animal, made of cardboard and wire mesh is very realistic, with large movable ears, a trunk that curls up, and a natural-sounding shriek. The elephant, built by J. Millard Hughes, of Woodlawn, LaVale, is one of a number of animals he has constructed for various occasions.

The "Stewart for Congress" elephant will be seen in Oakland, Cumberland, Hagerstown, Frederick and surrounding towns.

Alumni To Hold Party April 29

Flintstone Association Completing Plans for Annual Affair

Flintstone, April 23—Plans are being completed for the annual spring party of the Flintstone Alumni Association to be held at Minke's Cottage Inn Monday from 8 to 10:30 p. m.

The alumni are pleased with themselves these days and with good reason. It was recently announced that this association is the first of its kind, so far as is known, to establish a scholarship fund in Allegany county.

The fund was started two years ago with contributions from alumni members and proceeds from parties. While adding to the scholarship fund, the organization is backing the purchase of an electric phonograph to be used in the school.

Meetings Scheduled

Various activities of interest will be held during the remainder of the week.

Tomorrow (Wednesday) evening at 8 p. m. the P.-T. A. will hold its monthly meeting in the school auditorium. This is a study for teachers and parents only. The subject will be "Elementary Problems," a discussion led by teachers of elementary grades.

The Future Farmers of America club and the Home Economic club will hold their monthly meetings in their respective departments at Flintstone high school Friday.

Sunday School Officers

Frank Rudy was elected superintendent of the Beans Cove Methodist Sunday school at a reorganization meeting Sunday afternoon.

Other oicers elected for the coming year are: Donald Perdew, secretary; Victor Perdew, treasurer; Cromwell Perdew, adult Bible class teacher; Mrs. Walter Miller, junior class teacher, and Mrs. Charles Rice, primary teacher.

This is the first time in thirteen years that the Beans Cove church has had a Sunday school. Members from this section formerly attended Sunday school at the Oakdale and Prosperity churches near here.

The late Emory C. Perdew was the first superintendent of the Sunday school.

Special Grand Jury To Hear Case Of Convict Who Shot Policeman

Buckhannon, W. Va., April 23 (AP) —A special grand jury was ordered summoned today to consider murder charges against Byzantine Hartman, 40 - year - old ex-convict who a state trooper said admitted killing a city patrolman and lamented that "my shells ran out before I could kill more policemen."

Judge John F. Brown directed that the jury commissioners meet tonight to select talesman who will hear a special charge Thursday morning.

Hartman was kept at the Lewis county jail in Weston, where he was taken for safekeeping after angry crowds gathered around the Upshur county jail here.

Wilbur Hoy Grubb, 46, also Upshur county jailer, was killed early Sunday morning after he was summoned by Hartman's mother, who said her son choked and threatened her. State Police Corporal Troy Alkire related.

Hartman, who was sentenced to a year in the penitentiary, escaped jail after the penalty was imposed. He was returned to serve the term after he was taken to an Ohio hospital half-frozen, and thinking he was dying, told attaches he was wanted here.

Ben Thomason, a neighbor who accompanied Grubb to the Hartman home, was wounded in the shooting.

Corporal Alkire said Hartman readily admitted shooting Grubb, saying he first shot the officer in the chest and shoulder, then returned after firing at Thomason, placed the shotgun against Grubb's head and killed him.

Jumping into a city police car, Hartman drove away, struck a tree and finally ran off the road, turning over three or four times, Alkire said. Officers found him on a street near the jail after he had gone to the jail and asked Mrs. Grubb for a gun and a knife, the officer added.

Hartman started fires in the jail twice after his arrest, once with papers and once with a mattress.

Funeral services for Grubb will be held tomorrow.

Big Modern Building Replaces Old Structure Razed by Fire

Frostburg, April 23—In appreciation for the splendid cooperation given by the men and women who worked on the new Hafer building here since the fire which destroyed the old building last August, Jacob Hafer and members of his family entertained this evening at Firemen's hall, Water street, with a buffet luncheon and program. The affair was attended by about 200 persons, including those who helped raze the old structure and others employed on the construction of the new building, together with friends of the firm.

William Sisler, contractor who had charge of the construction work, was master of ceremonies and introduced the various entertainers.

The new Hafer furniture store and funeral home, one of the largest and most attractive business places in the community, will be opened for business tomorrow (Wednesday) morning.

The building, which extends from Main street through to Mechanic street, consists of three floors, and a basement under the entire structure.

The first floor contains the funeral home and a display room in the front where samples of everything on the upper floors are displayed. Customers will have the benefit of elevator service to the upper floors.

The second floor will be used for the display of bedroom furniture, bedding, children's furniture, and also includes a beautifully furnished apartment. The third floor will be used for the display of living room and kitchen furniture, rugs, linoleum and lamps.

The building, designed by Alfons Bach, New York architect, is featured by a beautiful plate glass front for the display of furniture and the entrance to the funeral home, which is reached through a long corridor decorated in a color scheme of peach blossom and adorned with a fluorescent lighting system.

All the floors of the building are covered with carpet and linoleum, giving the interior a home-like appearance. The chapel contains a Hammond organ which will be played all day Wednesday by Arthur Amtower, Cumberland, who is the organist at the Hafer funeral home, Cumberland. The building is air conditioned and contains every convenience found in the most modern business structures.

The Hafer firm, established here thirty-three years ago when Jacob Hafer, the senior member, purchased the business of Gehauf and Mayer, has enjoyed the confidence and generous patronage of residents of the community from the beginning.

Mr. Hafer and members of his family have always been active in the business, social, religious and fraternal affairs of the town and never failed to lend a helping hand in promoting local civic projects. The firm is favorably known among the furniture and undertaking manufacturers of the country and the announcement of the date for the opening of the new building was followed by the receipt of hundreds of congratulatory messages.

HUGH CAREY McMAHON
ENDORSES
BRUCE

To My Friends in Allegany and Garrett Counties:

I believe that the best interests of the Democratic Party will be served by the nomination of Howard Bruce to the United States Senate. I have delayed making an announcement until I had time to investigate the standing of both men and I find that the outstanding ability of Mr. Bruce is unquestioned and due to his experience and ability, feel that it would be best for the people as a whole that he be nominated on May 6th. His connection with labor has always been fair and his endorsement of a plan to aid those past forty-five shows his humanitarian spirit and entitles him to the undivided support of all loyal Democrats. Be sure to vote for Mr. Bruce on May 6th.

Coney Girl, 18, Hurt When Struck by Truck

Frostburg, April 23—An 18-year-old Lonaconing girl was injured at about 8:30 o'clock tonight when she was struck by a truck as she crossed East Union street, near the English Baptist church.

The victim, Mrs. Milton Robertson, was taken to Miners hospital, where she was found to have suffered rib fractures and severe body bruises.

Police Chief Benjamin Thomas said the truck was driven by Austin J. Ward, of Cumberland. He added that he had turned the case over to State Police for further investigation.

County Softball Meeting Tonight

A special meeting of the Allegany County Softball League will be held this evening at 7:30 in the La Vale Firemen's Hall for the purpose of considering applications for the open berth in the eight-club circuit.

It is reported that two clubs will seek the franchise recently relinquished by the Harris Restaurant of Frostburg. All clubs interested in securing the spot should send representatives to the meeting. Final plans for the opening of the season this Friday will also be discussed.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX, Famous Authority on Problems of Love and Marriage — Distributed, 1939, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

Amazed at Cost

Dear Miss Fairfax:

Doubtless, it was because I remained a bachelor until my 39th year that I had no conception of what children cost in the way of medical attention. My wife has two youngsters—a girl and a boy—7 and 8 years old. It seems to me that they're constantly at the doctor's being snipped and repaired. We hurried home from our honeymoon so that the girl could go to the hospital and have her tonsils removed. Then the boy had to have a little operation. Barely had these bills been paid when it was adenoids, and then glasses, for both.

The children seem healthy enough, but why all this hospitalization? Please don't think I'm the cuel stepfather of fiction. I love them both, but the medical bills are so high, I have had to change a few cherished plans.

STEPFATHER.

It seems to me that this phase is about over. In fact, I can't think of anything else these children would have to have done for them unless they break a leg or an arm. I'm glad you love them because the love given a child is always repaid. Doubtless, too, your wife is appreciative for all you've done.

* * *

Again, the Eternal Triangle

Dear Miss Fairfax:

It's a case of a man, his wife and the other woman. I am the other woman. The husband and wife do not love each other, but the husband does love his children, and for that reason hesitates to break up the home and marry me.

I am 27, and have been divorced for five years. My little son lives with my mother. His father pays a liberal sum for his board, but pride keeps me from taking any of that. My mother wants me to go back to my husband, but I don't love him. We are all under 30 years of age, and I suppose all of us feel entitled to a little happiness—all of us, that is, except the man's wife, who has no love affairs. She is one of those quiet, mouse-like type of woman and is contented to drift along even though she knows her husband doesn't care for her.

THE OTHER WOMAN.

Very likely all of us do feel entitled to happiness, but the question is are we going to take it at someone else's expense? The wife probably gets scant happiness in realizing her husband is untrue to her, but she knows she's doing the right thing by maintaining a home for her children.

You are contented to let your son grow up apart from you, so it would seem you have not the maternal instinct of the "mousey" lady. There is also the big "IF" that the husband because of his children does not wish to break up his home and marry you. It seems to me you'll be wise to find your happiness somewhere outside of this husband and father.

Driver Fined

Homer C. Butler, Jennings, was fined $25 and costs yesterday in Trial Magistrates court here for failing to report an accident. The charges were preferred by W. Lee Elgin, Commissioner of Motor Vehicles.

The charge grew out of an accident which occurred March 4, when the car Butler was driving skidded into a telephone pole at the east end of town, injuring one of his passengers.

Young Butler, who is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Elroy Butler, Jennings, was apparently unaware that the accident should have been reported within twenty-four hours. State Trooper Carl G. Storm made the arrest.

Officer Storm also apprehended Algel B. Cornell, Bentlyville, Pa., on Long Stretch yesterday afternoon for exceeding the speed limit. His fine was fixed at $10 and costs.

Radcliffe To Visit

Climaxing a three-day tour of Western Maryland counties, Senator George L. Radcliffe will carry his campaign for the Democratic senatorial renomination into Garrett County tomorrow (Wednesday).

The senator and his party are expected at Grantsville between 9 and 9:30 o'clock, stopping briefly at the Casselman hotel and going on to the Broadwater Brothers general store, where he will be greeted by local supporters, party leaders and voters.

A group of friends from Oakland are expected to join them here and accompany the senator and his party on a visit to the larger places in the county, arriving at Oakland for dinner. The visitors will return to Baltimore tomorrow night.

HUGH CAREY McMAHON
ENDORSES
BRUCE
To My Friends in Allegany and Garrett Counties:
I believe that the best interests of the Democratic Party will be served by the nomination of Howard Bruce to the United States Senate. I have delayed making an announcement until I had time to investigate the standing of both men and I find that the outstanding ability of Mr. Bruce is unquestioned and due to his experience and ability, feel that it would be best for the people as a whole that he be nominated on May 6th. His connection with labor has always been fair and his endorsement of a plan to aid those past forty-five shows his humanitarian spirit and entitles him to the undivided support of all loyal Democrats. Be sure to vote for Mr. Bruce on May 6th.

Steel Stocks Lead Market Higher In Day Marked by Careful Buying

Associated Press Average Is Off Slightly at the Close

By FREDERICK GARDNER

New York, April 23 (AP)—Stocks loafed along indecisively until the final hour in today's market when steels stepped out in front for a fairly brisk rally.

Bethlehem Steel led the metal group with a net gain of 3⅜ points at 84½, a new 1940 top. U. S. Steel and Youngstown Sheet and Tube moved up more than a point.

The upturn was highly selective. From the start specialties were out in front, but leaders had difficulty in retaining even small fractional improvement. Aircraft lagged and rails, utilities and coppers failed to get far ahead. Motors did better, along with a few air transports.

The Associated Press average of sixty stocks was up .3 of a point at 50.3, with the industrail accounting for virtually all of the advances. Transfers amounted to 881,170 shares.

Among gainers were Chrysler, General Motors, Sears Roebuck, American Woolen, Celanese, Standard Oil of N. J., American Car & Foundry, Eastern Air Lines, American Airlines, Douglas Aircraft and Dupont.

Under water were Boeing, United Aircraft, Sperry, American Can, American Telephone, Western Union and others.

Leaning forward in the curb as much as a point or so were Scovill Mfg., American Republics, Electric Bond & Share, American Gas, Sherwin Williams and Pennroad. Volume in this market was around 212,000 shares.

THE AWFUL PRICE YOU PAY FOR BEING NERVOUS

Read These Important Facts!

Quivering nerves can make you old, haggard, cranky—can make your life a nightmare of jealousy, self pity and "the blues."

Often such nervousness is due to female functional disorders. So take famous Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to help calm unstrung nerves and lessen functional "irregularities." For over 60 years relief-giving Pinkham's Compound has helped tens of thousands of grandmothers, mothers and daughters "in time of need."

Pinkham's Compound positively contains no opiates or habit forming ingredients—it is made from nature's own wholesome roots and herbs each with its own special work to perform. One of the most effective "woman's" tonics made! In liquid or handy to carry tablet form (similar formula). Try it!

Theaters Today

Maryland Will Have Tracy and Lamarr

Spencer Tracy and Hedy Lamarr are the stars of "I Take This Woman," which opens tomorrow at the Maryland.

In the cast is a slow-thinking, slow-moving Negro janitor. After Director W. S. Van Dyke II had rehearsed Willie for ten minutes in trying to get him to do a "dumb scene" and the actor continued to fail in following instructions, Willie grinned at the director and said, "I's sorry, boss. Guess I's jest livin' mah role too much to git it through mah haid."

The Selznick International production of "Rebecca," starring Laurence Olivier and Joan Fontaine, closes today at the Maryland. The feature starts at 11:50 a. m., and at 2:15, 4:35, 7 and 9:20 p. m.

Comedy Attraction Is Booked at Liberty

The Warner Brothers comedy, "Three Cheers for the Irish", opens today at the New Liberty theater. Heading the cast are such popular off-spring of Erin as Priscilla Lane, Thomas Mitchell, Dennis Morgan and Alan Hale.

With the tang of St. Patrick's day in his role, Mitchell plays the warm character of a New York cop. Gruff, real, lovable Peter Casey celebrates his twenty-fifth year on the force with one bane in his otherwise happy existence—a rookie policeman, played by Morgan, whose unforgivable taint is his being a Scotsman. And, to add insult to injury he is given Casey's job when the old-timer is summarily pensioned.

One of Casey's daughters, Priscilla's role, doesn't mind Morgan's Scotch burr, and as a matter of record she kind of likes it. Which causes all sorts of complications in the Casey household. He is forbidden to see the girl, but eventually, of course, true love triumphs.

Meanwhile the houseful of Casey girls push through a plan to have their "Pop" elected Alderman. Priscilla, the homey one, handles the records. The gay colleen, portrayed by Virginia Grey, puts her "oomph" into the campaign. Irene Hervey plays the beautiful but not too brainy daughter who messes things up beautifully by accepting a campaign contribution from a notorious racketeer. It takes "Pop" Casey and his staunch friend, played by Alan Hale, to straighten things out in their own Irish way.

Little and Orchestra Will Be at the Strand

"Little Jack Little" will appear tomorrow at the Strand theater.

"It's Only a Shanty in Old Shanty Town—the roof is so slanted it touches the ground . . ." is only one of the many popular hits written by Little Jack Little who brings his Bolero Rhythm orchestra to the Strand stage through arrangements completed by the Consolidated Radino Artists, Inc.

Other hits written by Little Jack Little include "Hold Me," "Jealous," "You're a Heavenly Thing," "At the Baby Parade," "There's Oceans of Love by the Beautiful Sea" and others.

The new arrangements with a Bolero rhythm on these old favorites is said to arouse greater popularity for them as presented by the Little Jack Little orchestra.

The genial leader will present some of his newer unpublished tunes at all performances tomorrow. Little Jack Little appears at 2, 4, 7 and 9:15 p. m.

The screen show will be "Saint's Double Trouble" with George Sanders, Bela Lugosi and Helen Whitney.

Embassy Has British Civil Service Picture

"The Sun Never Sets," a drama featuring Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., and Basil Rathbone, is showing at the Embassy theater. The story of the picture is based on the British civil service, which administers to 500 million people over thirteen million square miles of the Empire.

The Gold Coast of Africa was the torrid locale chosen as the background for the W. P. Lipscomb screenplay, a story of personal and governmental conflict. Rathbone and Fairbanks portray brothers, the former a veteran, duty-bound colonial administrator and the latter a headstrong tyro in the service. They are at odds until an international emergency pits them together, as representatives of democracy against a powerful proponent of government which, to quote the screenplay, "dragoons the individual."

Virginia Field is seen as Fairbank's fiancee, Barbara O'Neil, as Rathbone's wife and Lionel Atwill, as the foe of Empire policy. C. Aubrey Smith, Melville Cooper and Mary Forbes have other roles.

The second feature on the program is Charles Boyer in "Algiers" with Hedy Lamarr and Sigrid Gurie.

IN MARYLAND FEATURE

Spencer Tracy and Hedy Lamarr in "I Take This Woman," Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picture opening tomorrow at the Maryland theater.

Two Features Are Offered at Garden

"The Old Dark House" opens today at the Garden theater.

The story is by J. B. Priestley who has been scaring folks for lo these many years. And it was made by James Whale, who directed "Journey's End" and "Frankenstein."

Karloff is seen in an even more terrifying characterization than his unforgettable monster role in "Frankenstein" in this story of a lonely dark house and its weird inhabitants.

The histories of many great American merchants who built huge fortunes for their children to squander have been fictionally welded into one dramatic theme for "Three Sons," also showing at the Garden.

Edward Ellis has the leading role, supported by William Gargan, Kent Taylor, J. Edward Bromberg, Katharine Alexander, Virginia Vale and Robert Stanton.

On New York state farms which have kept cost accounts, the cost of production per bushel of potatoes for the five- year period, 1934-38, was forty-five cents, according to an economist of the New York State College of Agriculture.

Steel Stocks Lead Market Higher In Day Marked by Careful Buying

Associated Press Average Is Off Slightly at the Close

By FREDERICK GARDNER

New York, April 23 (AP)—Stocks loafed along indecisively until the final hour in today's market when steels stepped out in front for a fairly brisk rally.

Bethlehem Steel led the metal group with a net gain of 3⅝ points at 84½, a new 1940 top. U. S. Steel and Youngstown Sheet and Tube moved up more than a point.

The upturn was highly selective. From the start specialties were out in front, but leaders had difficulty in retaining even small fractional improvement. Aircraft lagged and rails, utilities and coppers failed to get far ahead. Motors did better, along with a few air transports.

The Associated Press average of sixty stocks was up .3 of a point at 50.3, with the industrail accounting for virtually all of the advances. Transfers amounted to 881,170 shares.

Among gainers were Chrysler, General Motors, Sears Roebuck, American Woolen, Celanese, Standard Oil of N. J., American Car & Foundry, Eastern Air Lines, American Airlines, Douglas Aircraft and Dupont.

Under water were Boeing, United Aircraft, Sperry, American Can, American Telephone, Western Union and others.

Leaning forward in the curb as much as a point or so were Scovill Mfg., American Republics, Electric Bond & Share, American Gas, Sherwin Williams and Pennroad. Volume in this market was around 212,000 shares.

THE AWFUL PRICE YOU PAY FOR BEING NERVOUS

Read These Important Facts!

Quivering nerves can make you old, haggard, cranky—can make your life a nightmare of jealousy, self pity and "the blues."

Often such nervousness is due to female functional disorders. So take famous Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to help calm unstrung nerves and lessen functional "irregularities." For over 60 years relief-giving Pinkham's Compound has helped tens of thousands of grandmothers, mothers and daughters "in time of need."

Pinkham's Compound positively contains no opiates or habit forming ingredients—it is made from nature's own wholesome roots and herbs each with its own special work to perform. One of the most effective "woman's" tonics made! In liquid or handy to carry tablet form (similar formula). Try it!

Theaters Today

Maryland Will Have Tracy and Lamarr

Spencer Tracy and Hedy Lamarr are the stars of "I Take This Woman," which opens tomorrow at the Maryland.

In the cast is a slow-thinking, slow-moving Negro janitor. After Director W. S. Van Dyke II had rehearsed Willie for ten minutes in trying to get him to do a "dumb scene" and the actor continued to fail in following instructions, Willie grinned at the director and said, "I's sorry, boss. Guess I's jest livin' mah role too much to git it through mah haid."

The Selznick International production of "Rebecca," starring Laurence Olivier and Joan Fontaine, closes today at the Maryland. The feature starts at 11:50 a. m. and at 2:15, 4:35, 7 and 9:20 p. m.

Comedy Attraction Is Booked at Liberty

The Warner Brothers comedy, "Three Cheers for the Irish", opens today at the New Liberty theater. Heading the cast are such popular off-spring of Erin as Priscilla Lane, Thomas Mitchell, Dennis Morgan and Alan Hale.

With the tang of St. Patrick's day in his role, Mitchell plays the warm character of a New York cop. Gruff, real, lovable Peter Casey celebrates his twenty-fifth year on the force with one bane in his otherwise happy existence—a rookie policeman, played by Morgan, whose unforgivable taint is his being a Scotsman. And, to add insult to injury he is given Casey's job when the old-timer is summarily pensioned.

One of Casey's daughters, Priscilla's role, doesn't mind Morgan's Scotch burr, and as a matter of record she kind of likes it. Which causes all sorts of complications in the Casey household. He is forbidden to see the girl, but eventually, of course, true love triumphs.

Meanwhile the houseful of Casey girls push through a plan to have their "Pop" elected Alderman. Priscilla, the homey one, handles the records. The gay colleen, portrayed by Virginia Grey, puts her "oomph" into the campaign. Irene Hervey plays the beautiful but not too brainy daughter who messes things up beautifully by accepting a campaign contribution from a notorious racketeer. It takes "Pop" Casey and his staunch friend, played by Alan Hale, to straighten things out in their own Irish way.

Little and Orchestra Will Be at the Strand

"Little Jack Little" will appear tomorrow at the Strand theater.

"It's Only a Shanty in Old Shanty Town—the roof is so slanted it touches the ground . . ." is only one of the many popular hits written by Little Jack Little, who brings his Bolero Rhythm orchestra to the Strand stage through arrangements completed by the Consolidated Radino Artists, Inc.

Other hits written by Little Jack Little include "Hold Me," "Jealous," "You're a Heavenly Thing," "At the Baby Parade," "There's Oceans of Love by the Beautiful Sea" and others.

The new arrangements with a Bolero rhythm on these old favorites is said to arouse greater popularity for them as presented by the Little Jack Little orchestra.

The genial leader will present some of his newer unpublished tunes at all performances tomorrow. Little Jack Little appears at 2, 4, 7 and 9:15 p. m.

The screen show will be "Saint's Double Trouble" with George Sanders, Bela Lugosi and Helen Whitney.

Embassy Has British Civil Service Picture

"The Sun Never Sets," a drama featuring Douglas Fairbanks, Jr. and Basil Rathbone, is showing at the Embassy theater. The story of the picture is based on the British civil service, which administers to 500 million people over thirteen million square miles of the Empire.

The Gold Coast of Africa was the torrid locale chosen as the background for the W. P. Lipscomb screenplay, a story of personal and governmental conflict. Rathbone and Fairbanks portray brothers, the former a veteran, duty-bound colonial administrator and the latter a headstrong tyro in the service. They are at odds until an international emergency pits them together, as representatives of democracy against a powerful proponent of government which, to quote the screenplay, "dragoons the individual."

Virginia Field is seen as Fairbank's fiancee, Barbara O'Neil, as Rathbone's wife and Lionel Atwill, as the foe of Empire policy. C. Aubrey Smith, Melville Cooper and Mary Forbes have other roles.

The second feature on the program is Charles Boyer in "Algiers" with Hedy Lamarr and Sigrid Gurie.

IN MARYLAND FEATURE

Spencer Tracy and Hedy Lamarr in "I Take This Woman," Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picture opening tomorrow at the Maryland theater.

Two Features Are Offered at Garden

"The Old Dark House" opens today at the Garden theater.

The story is by J. B. Priestley who has been scaring folks for lo these many years. And it was made by James Whale, who directed "Journey's End" and "Frankenstein."

Karloff is seen in an even more terrifying characterization than his unforgettable monster role in "Frankenstein" in this story of a lonely dark house and its weird inhabitants.

The histories of many great American merchants who built huge fortunes for their children to squander have been fictionally welded into one dramatic theme for "Three Sons," also showing at the Garden.

Edward Ellis has the leading role supported by William Gargan, Kent Taylor, J. Edward Bromberg, Katharine Alexander, Virginia Vale and Robert Stanton.

On New York state farms which have kept cost accounts, the cost of production per bushel of potatoes for the five-year period, 1934-38, was forty-five cents, according to an economist of the New York State College of Agriculture.

Lovill Dean Defeats Yankees Second Time

Chubby Southpaw Hurls Shutout Over Champions

Athletics Win 3 to 0 Victory as Bump Hadley Goes Wild

New York, April 23 (AP)— Lovill Dean, the Philadelphia Athletics' chubby southpaw, has the World Champion New York Yankees' number and it's zero.

He shut them out on four hits today, 3 to 0, for his second verdict of the season over the club everybody figured to be irresistable this season. His first was a ten-inning 2 to 1 decision at Philadelphia in last Tuesday's American League opener.

Today his mound opponent was Bump Hadley and the skirmishing was fierce for eight innings. The A's also were held to four hits, but they scored all of their runs without the benefit of a single safety.

Hadley went to pieces in the ninth and filled the bases with three passes, one of them purposely after he had wild-pitched. Manager Joe McCarthy quickly summoned young Marius Russo, a left-hander, to duty and after striking out pinch-hitter Sam Chapman, Russo forced in two more runs with walks and Spud Chandler had to come in to retire the side.

Pirates Ask Reds To Transfer Games

Pittsburgh, April 23 (AP) — The Pittsburgh Pirates tonight asked the Cincinnati Reds to transfer to Pittsburgh two of three games scheduled for Cincinnati next Saturday and Sunday.

Crosley Field, the Red's park, has been flooded by the Ohio river, and may be unfit for use this weekend. If the games are transferred to Pittsburgh, they will take the place of two games between the Pirates and Reds which were rained out here last week. The games scheduled at Cincinnati would be played later.

Packers Sign Nebraska End

Green Bay, Wis., April 23 (AP)—George Seeman, Nebraska end for the last three seasons, has signed a contract with the Green Bay Packers, National Professional Football League champions, the club announced today.

Blades' Way of Using His Pitchers Analyzed

By JOHN LARDNER

New York, April 23 (NANA)—Put yourself in the shoes of a Big League manager (without bothering to change your socks; this is just for a minute). What would you do in a case like this?

You are two runs behind in an early inning, your starting pitcher having just walked three men in a row to force in the second run. The bases being full, with nobody out, you send your starter to the showers and call in another pitcher. He performs the remarkable feat of retiring the side without a further score—one pop foul, one double play.

This second pitcher goes through the next two innings unscathed, giving only one hit. Meanwhile your own team has been scoring and the count is now 5 to 2 in your favor in the sixth inning.

Your pitcher begins his sixth inning duties by yielding two consecutive two-base hits, for one run. The score becomes 5 to 3, and there is a man on second with none out and the bottom of the batting order coming up.

Would You Yank Him?

What would you do? Would you yank the pitcher? Or would you leave him in there?

I think nine out of ten managers would leave him in there, especially if (as in this case) he's a good man. But Ray Blades, of the St. Louis Cardinals, didn't even hesitate the other day. He yanked the pitcher—Max Lanier—and furthermore, he used three additional pitchers before the ball game was over, with the Cards beating the Chicago Cubs, 5 to 4.

That is the Blades system, unique in present-day baseball and, as far as I know, in baseball of any period. Blades doesn't wait for trouble to happen. Four or five pitchers is a good day's average with him, even in winning, and those pitchers will be the best he has. He doesn't hesitate to throw his ace in there in a late inning to pitch to one man and to yank his ace at the start of the next inning in favor of another pitcher.

There is something to be said in favor of this system. When danger threatens, there is always a fresh man throwing his fast ball or his curve, as the case may be, to head it off. Working only two or three innings a day, these fellows are ready for daily or at least thrice-weekly duty.

On the other hand, the system has its drawbacks. If it were flawless, everyone else would be using it, while the fact is that nobody else does.

It makes it impossible for the manager to construct a regular routine for his starting pitchers. It may destroy the confidence of certain pitchers to be hauled out of there when they think they are doing all right. And—foremost—the manager exposes himself to chance. The more guesses you make, the more often you'll be wrong. The more bets you make, the more you can lose. That is why most baseball managers—and most gamblers—prefer to stake their chips on one proven combination, to stand or fall with it.

Playing Game His Own Way

I'm not discussing the case simply because young Lanier was this department's choice for rookie-of-the-year. After all, Lanier got credit for winning the ball game, and deservedly. At this rate of exchange, he'll win many another, though, of course, he'll lose a lot of them too.

But the question is, can pitchers who are in there for a short stint every other day, as Cooper, Lanier, McGee, Bowman, and Davis are apt to be for the Cardinals, ever realize their full value as pitchers? For the dyed-in-the-wool relief men, like Jack Russell and Dusty Shoun, it's another matter. But the men I speak of are starting pitchers by designation. No pitcher in history ever went the route every time without allowing an occasional run, without getting into tight spots. For most, this is the signal to bear down, to win if they can. For Cooper, Lanier, McGee, and Bowman, it means the showers.

And with no offense intended, Blades has repeatedly told his hurlers that he does not yank them in a spirit of criticism. He is merely playing the game his own way.

If they are satisfied and learn to do their best pitching under such circumstances, that's fine. If not, we Cardinal rooters may not get the pennant we were sort of expecting.

I can't say Blades didn't warn us. "I've got some good pitchers, and I'm going to use them plenty," he told me last month. "They're no good to me on the bench. The secret of winning in baseball is to have the right pitcher out there in the box at the right time."

Maybe so, maybe so. I only hope that Raymond is consulting the right kind of ouija-board.

Ellerslie Softball Team To Practice

The Ellerslie Merchants of the Allegany County Softball League will practice every evening this week at 5 o'clock on the home field, Manager John Shroyer has announced.

Ellerslie opens its league slate Friday against Corriganville on the latter field, and will tangle with the Liberty Dairy ten in an exhibition game Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock at Ellerslie.

Backwaters of The Ohio Flood Crosley Field

Two Games with Cardinals Are Postponed Due to High Water

By PAUL B. MASON

Cincinnati, April 23 (AP)—Home plate at Crosley Field slipped from sight beneath backwaters of the Ohio river tonight and, for the first time in major league history, a ball game was washed out by flood.

Two, in fact. Today's game with the St. Louis Cardinals was postponed until May 13, a hitherto open date to be observed as ladies' day, and tomorrow's was set for May 25.

Ival Goodman, Harry Craft and young Mike McCormick would have needed a johnboat to shag outfield flies at game time; Ernie Lombardi would have found hipboots handy back of the plate and Paul Derringer, scheduled to hurl against Mort Cooper, would have been something of a modern Crusoe. Only the outfield terraces were dry.

With the Ohio river edging to the fifty-nine-foot mark—seven above flood stage and within one foot of a predicted crest—the whole field likely will be covered by daybreak.

General Manager Warren C. Giles inspected the park this morning, stepped gingerly over row upon row of lower tier seats to avoid a knee-deep ducking and gave up hope of playing before Saturday after a two-game series in Chicago.

Then, allowing that Ol' Man River has tired of his spring "mudslinging," there'll be the first of three games with Pittsburgh.

Once the stream becomes stationary or starts falling a giant siphon, fashioned from firehose, will be connected to field-drains. It cannot be used before, Giles explained, because of possible danger to sewers underlying the park.

Five inches of sand were dumped onto the diamond proper to protect the surface after the inundation.

The Reds visited the park shortly before noon for brief throwing practice.

But Manager Bill McKechnie was disgruntled and dour.

"That's enough," he barked, after a while, "let's get out before some photographer comes along with a supply of fish poles. If he does that, I might get mad."

Giles disclosed tonight that the Pittsburgh Pirates had asked the Reds to transfer the Saturday and Sunday games there if the field is still unfit for playing, but he wired back that the Reds were going to play here then, flood or no.

He added that he didn't think the transfer could be worked out satisfactorily even if the teams couldn't play here.

Pirates Rally In Ninth Inning To Beat Cubs

Paul Waner Drives in Two Scores with Pinch-hit Single

Pittsburgh, April 23 (AP) — The Pittsburgh Pirates came from behind today in a ninth inning rally to score two runs and beat Chicago 3 to 2 for their third consecutive victory.

With the bases loaded in the ninth hitter Paul Waner rapped out a clean single scoring Arky Vaughan and Deb Garms. The play at the plate on Garms was close and the Cubs protested vigorously but to no avail.

Baker Pleased With the Tigers

By EARL HILLIGAN

Chicago, April 23 (AP) — A fair share of luck, Manager Del Baker believes, may turn his Detroit Tiger jig-saw puzzle into a very compelling baseball picture this season.

The Detroit Club has more "ifs" right now than a Tiger has stripes and no one knows this better than Baker, a quiet-spoken chap who refuses to become excited about the possibilities of his team.

"The guess of any Joe Bloke as to where we'll finish this season is just as good as your's or mine," Baker smiled. "It's foolish for any manager to flatly state he's going to land in any spot at this time of the year.

"But I will say that if we get a fair share of the game's breaks we'll give every team trouble. I'm not worried about how we'll hit, the kind of catching we'll get nor how Hank Greenberg and the rest of our outfield will go. I'm satisfied Greenberg will become a fine outfielder."

Baker paused a moment, then scribbled the names of Rudy York, Charley Gehringer, Dick Bartell and Frank Higgins, who make up his infield. Then he added the name of Lyn (Schoolboy) Rowe.

"York will improve defensively at first base," Baker continued, "and he'll hit. Gehringer may surprise everybody with an excellent year. Bartell's been going great. Higgins has had trouble, but he's a good ball player and will come around.

"Rowe was faster last Sunday than at any time in three years, and I'm going to start him in order. If he comes through regularly and injury doesn't cripple our infield, we may produce quite a team. It's all up to the breaks."

1940 Olympic Games Are Off

Helsinki, April 23 (AP)—The 1940 Olympic Games were officially cancelled today at a joint meeting of the organizing committee and the permanent Finnish Olympic committee.

The two committees decided the international crisis made it impossible to stage the games this summer. Finland, however, will petition the International Olympic committee for permission to arrange the Olympics immediately after European hostilities cease.

This decision had been expected for some time though there was some hope the games might be held after Russia and Finland signed their peace treaty.

The games were the first to be cancelled since Berlin had to give up the 1916 Olympic because of the World war. The 1940 games originally were awarded to Tokyo but Japan forfeited them because of her war with China. Finland agreed in July, 1938, to take them over.

Japan at the same time gave up the winter games. They were awarded to Garmish-Partenkirchen, Germany, scene of the 1936 winter games but Germany cancelled them several months ago.

Leonard Thinks Joe Louis Will Lose Crown Soon

Picks Arturo Godoy or Bob Pastor as Next Heavyweight Champion

Charleston, W. Va., April 23 (AP)—Benny Leonard—convinced "Joe Louis is slipping"—put the finger today on Arturo Godoy or Bob Pastor as the next heavyweight champion of the world.

Someone is "going to lick Louis shortly" and "it'll be Godoy—or Pastor, if he is given a chance," said Leonard.

The forty-four-year-old former lightweight champion, crafty enough to retire undefeated, believes Louis is not the old Louis, cobrafast, and the deadly hammerer who stretched out Schmeling and trip-hammered the title from Braddock.

"Louis has had too much easy living; too much money; and Louis has become over-confident.

"He has no incentive to train."

Between Godoy and Pastor, Leonard's ring-wise choice is Pastor—as a fighter.

Both men, in fights with Louis, went the full distance, Pastor lasting ten rounds in 1938, and Godoy, a Chilean, fifteen rounds in February. Both lost by decisions.

The South American tentatively is scheduled for a return fight this summer.

"If Godoy had fought a little in the last rounds" in Leonard's opinion "he would have won the title that night."

"I guess he has learned by now that if he crowds Louis, Louis has a one-track mind. Louis doesn't know what to do."

Leonard is here to referee a non-title engagement between Lou Ambers, lightweight champion, and Normal Quarles on Thursday.

The SPORT TRAIL

By WHITNEY MARTIN

New York, April 23 (AP) — The funeral silence into which golf tournament galleries are cowed by the booming "ouiet, please" of pompous gents with red arm bands is a lot of hooey in the opinion of Fred Corcoran, and he's going to prove it. He's not only going to let the spectators breathe; he's going to let them breathe through horns if they want to.

"Sure," says the baseball-minded P.G.A. tournament manager, "I'm going to get a band to follow an exhibition match at Norwalk, Conn., May 12, just to show that all this shush-shushing is needless.

"Gene Sarazen and Jimmy Demaret are going to play in the exhibition, a charity affair, and we're trying to line up a couple of celebrities to fill out the foursome. We'd like to get Babe Ruth and Gene Tunney if possible.

"I talked to a lot of the pros on the winter tour and most of them agreed this idea that absolute silence is necessary on a golf tournament is all a myth. The pros don't care how much noise the fans make as long as they come in at the gate.

"I don't mean that the fans should stage riots or shoot off cannon crackers when a player is driving or putting, but I see no harm in them carrying on ordinary conversations or otherwise acting like human beings."

It's almost unbelievable, that silence about the greens in a big golf tourney. A distant train whistle echoes and re-echoes over the countryside. An airplane droning far overhead brings silent, reproachful glances. As Jess Guilford said: "You can hear a chickadee sneeze." And all for what? That's what Fred Corcoran wants to know.

"A good athlete has to concentrate," he points out, "and when he concentrates he isn't conscious of what goes on around him. Ty Cobb once said that 50,000 people could be screaming at him as he stepped to the plate and he wouldn't hear a thing.

"You'd think a broadcasting station was just ready to go on the air the way the quiet rule is enforced, and the new fans who are coming more and more to golf tournaments can't understand it. They aren't used to being shushed around."

Corcoran also points out that other traditions of golf which meant nothing have gradually fallen before common sense.

"And I'm going to show that this silence idea is the bunk, too. I just talked to John Cavanagh, chairman of the exhibition match, and Sarazen, and they said the idea was swell. So we'll have real swing music."

Lovill Dean Defeats Yankees Second Time

Chubby Southpaw Hurls Shutout Over Champions

Athletics Win 3 to 0 Victory as Bump Hadley Goes Wild

New York, April 23 (AP)— Lovill Dean, the Philadelphia Athletics' chubby southpaw, has the World Champion New York Yankees' number and it's zero.

He shut them out on four hits today, 3 to 0, for his second verdict of the season over the club everybody figured to be irresistable this season. His first was a ten-inning 2 to 1 decision at Philadelphia in last Tuesday's American League opener.

Today his mound opponent was Bump Hadley and the skirmishing was fierce for eight innings. The A's also were held to four hits, but they scored all of their runs without the benefit of a single safety.

Hadley went to pieces in the ninth and filled the bases with three passes, one of them purposely after he had wild-pitched. Manager Joe McCarthy quickly summoned young Marius Russo, a left-hander, to duty and after striking out pinch-hitter Sam Chapman, Russo forced in two more runs with walks and Spud Chandler had to come in to retire the side.

Pirates Ask Reds To Transfer Games

Pittsburgh, April 23 (AP) — The Pittsburgh Pirates tonight asked the Cincinnati Reds to transfer to Pittsburgh two of three games scheduled for Cincinnati next Saturday and Sunday.

Crosley Field, the Red's park, has been flooded by the Ohio river, and may be unfit for use this weekend. If the games are transferred to Pittsburgh, they will take the place of two games between the Pirates and Reds which were rained out here last week. The games scheduled at Cincinnati would be played later.

For Cooper, Lanier, McGee, and Bowman, it means the showers.

And with no offense intended, Blades has repeatedly told his hurlers that he does not yank them in a spirit of criticism. He is merely playing the game his own way.

If they are satisfied and learn to do their best pitching under such circumstances, that's fine. If not, we Cardinal rooters may not get the pennant we were sort of expecting.

I can't say Blades didn't warn us.

"I've got some good pitchers, and I'm going to use them plenty," he told me last month. "They're no good to me on the bench. The secret of winning in baseball is to have the right pitcher out there in the box at the right time."

Maybe so, maybe so. I only hope that Raymond is consulting the right kind of ouija-board.

Ellerslie Softball Team To Practice

The Ellerslie Merchants of the Allegany County Softball League will practice every evening this week at 5 o'clock on the home field, Manager John Shroyer has announced.

Ellerslie opens its league slate Friday against Corriganville on the latter field, and will tangle with the Liberty Dairy ten in an exhibition game Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock at Ellerslie.

Backwaters of The Ohio Flood Crosley Field

Two Games with Cardinals Are Postponed Due to High Water

By PAUL B. MASON

Cincinnati, April 23 (AP)—Home plate at Crosley Field slipped from sight beneath backwaters of the Ohio river tonight and, for the first time in major league history, a ball game was washed out by flood.

Two, in fact. Today's game with the St. Louis Cardinals was postponed until May 13, a hitherto open date to be observed as ladies' day, and tomorrow's was set for May 25.

Ival Goodman, Harry Craft and young Mike McCormick would have needed a johnboat to shag outfield flies at game time; Ernie Lombardi would have found hipboots handy back of the plate and Paul Derringer, scheduled to hurl against Mort Cooper, would have been something of a modern Crusoe. Only the outfield terraces were dry.

With the Ohio river edging to the fifty-nine-foot mark—seven above flood stage and within one foot of a predicted crest—the whole field likely will be covered by daybreak.

General Manager Warren C. Giles inspected the park this morning, stepped gingerly over row upon row of lower tier seats to avoid a knee-deep ducking and gave up hope of playing before Saturday after a two-game series in Chicago.

Then, allowing that Ol' Man River has tired of his spring "mudslinging," there'll be the first of three games with Pittsburgh.

Once the stream becomes stationary or starts falling a giant siphon, fashioned from firehose, will be connected to field-drains. It cannot be used before, Giles explained, because of possible danger to sewers underlying the park.

Five inches of sand were dumped onto the diamond proper to protect the surface after the inundation.

The Reds visited the park shortly before noon for brief throwing practice.

But Manager Bill McKechnie was disgruntled and dour.

"That's enough," he barked, after a while, "let's get out before some photographer comes along with a supply of fish poles. If he does that, I might get mad."

Giles disclosed tonight that the Pittsburgh Pirates had asked the Reds to transfer the Saturday and Sunday games there if the field is still unfit for playing, but he wired back that the Reds were going to play here then, flood or no.

He added that he didn't think the transfer could be worked out satisfactorily even if the teams couldn't play here.

Pirates Rally In Ninth Inning To Beat Cubs

Paul Waner Drives in Two Scores with Pinch-hit Single

Pittsburgh, April 23 (AP) — The Pittsburgh Pirates came from behind today in a ninth inning rally to score two runs and beat Chicago 3 to 2 for their third consecutive victory.

With the bases loaded in the ninth hitter Paul Waner rapped out a clean single scoring Arky Vaughan and Deb Garms. The play at the plate on Garms was close and the Cubs protested vigorously but to no avail.

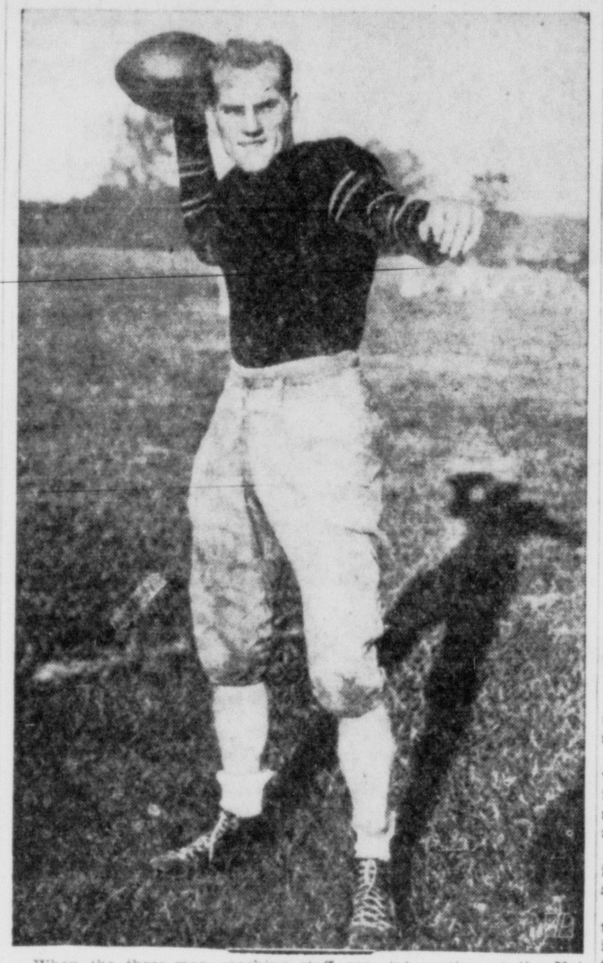
Grimm in Radio Work

Charlie Grimm, ex-Cub manager, missed in 1940 his first training camp in twenty-four years because of radio work.

ONCE PERFORMER -- NOW TUTOR



When the three-man coaching staff goes into action at the University of Maryland this fall Al Woods, a former ground-gaining back for the Terps, will teach the 1940 squad what he learned in his varsity days before graduation in 1935. He and two other alumni are replacing the "head-coach" system at College Park.

Baker Pleased With the Tigers

By EARL HILLIGAN

Chicago, April 23 (AP) — A fair share of luck, Manager Del Baker believes, may turn his Detroit Tiger jig-saw puzzle into a very compelling baseball picture this season.

The Detroit Club has more "ifs" right now than a Tiger has stripes and no one knows this better than Baker, a quiet-spoken chap who refuses to become excited about the possibilities of his team.

"The guess of any Joe Bloke as to where we'll finish this season is just as good as your's or mine," Baker smiled. "It's foolish for any manager to flatly state he's going to land in any spot at this time of the year.

"But I will say that if we get a fair share of the game's breaks we'll give every team trouble. I'm not worried about how we'll hit, the kind of catching we'll get nor how Hank Greenberg and the rest of our outfield will go. I'm satisfied Greenberg will become a fine outfielder."

Baker paused a moment, then scribbled the names of Rudy York, Charley Gehringer, Dick Bartell and Frank Higgins, who make up his infield. Then he added the name of Lyn (Schoolboy) Rowe.

"York will improve defensively at first base," Baker continued, "and he'll hit. Gehringer may surprise everybody with an excellent year. Bartell's been going great. Higgins has had trouble, but he's a good ball player and will come around.

"Rowe was faster last Sunday than at any time in three years, and I'm going to start him in order. If he comes through regularly and injury doesn't cripple our infield, we may produce quite a team. It's all up to the breaks."

John Borican, outstanding middle distance runner, is an artist and makes his living painting portraits in oil.

1940 Olympic Games Are Off

Helsinki, April 23 (AP)—The 1940 Olympic Games were officially cancelled today at a joint meeting of the organizing committee and the permanent Finnish Olympic committee.

The two committees decided the international crisis made it impossible to stage the games this summer. Finland, however, will petition the International Olympic committee for permission to arrange the Olympics immediately after European hostilities cease.

This decision had been expected for some time though there was some hope the games might be held after Russia and Finland signed their peace treaty.

The games were the first to be cancelled since Berlin had to give up the 1916 Olympic because of the World war. The 1940 games originally were awarded to Tokyo but Japan forfeited them because of her war with China. Finland agreed in July, 1938, to take them over.

Japan at the same time gave up the winter games. They were awarded to Garmish-Partenkirchen, Germany, scene of the 1936 winter games but Germany cancelled them several months ago.

Clary Club Tossers Called for Practice

Frostburg, April 23. — The Clary Club softball team of the Allegany County League will practice at 5 o'clock today and Thursday afternoons on the Hoffman Field, it was announced today.

The league race opens Saturday and all players under contract, as well as others desiring to try for the team, will be expected to report for the two practice sessions.

Leonard Thinks Joe Louis Will Lose Crown Soon

Picks Arturo Godoy or Bob Pastor as Next Heavyweight Champion

Charleston, W. Va., April 23 (AP)—Benny Leonard—convinced "Joe Louis is slipping"—put the finger today on Arturo Godoy or Bob Pastor as the next heavyweight champion of the world.

Someone is "going to lick Louis shortly" and "it'll be Godoy—or Pastor, if he is given a chance," said Leonard.

The forty-four-year-old former lightweight champion, crafty enough to retire undefeated, believes Louis is not the old Louis, cobrafast, and the deadly hammerer who stretched out Schmeling and trip-hammered the title from Braddock.

"Louis has had too much easy living; too much money; and Louis has become over-confident.

"He has no incentive to train."

Between Godoy and Pastor, Leonard's ring-wise choice is Pastor—as a fighter.

Both men, in fights with Louis, went the full distance, Pastor lasting ten rounds in 1938, and Godoy, a Chilean, fifteen rounds in February. Both lost by decisions.

The South American tentatively is scheduled for a return fight this summer.

"If Godoy had fought a little in the last rounds" in Leonard's opinion "he would have won the title that night."

"I guess he has learned by now that if he crowds Louis, Louis has a one-track mind. Louis doesn't know what to do."

Leonard is here to referee a non-title engagement between Lou Ambers, lightweight champion, and Normal Quarles on Thursday.

No Strain on Harriers

Cross-country running is popularly supposed to strain an athlete's heart, but Tom Jones, Wisconsin coach, has evidence to the contrary. Of hundreds of harriers to run for Jones since 1911, all are alive today but one. He died in an auto crash.

The SPORT TRAIL

By WHITNEY MARTIN

New York, April 23 (AP) — The funeral silence into which golf tournament galleries are cowed by the booming "quiet, please" of pompous gents with red arm bands is a lot of hooey in the opinion of Fred Corcoran, and he's going to prove it. He's not only going to let the spectators breathe; he's going to let them breathe through horns if they want to.

"Sure," says the baseball-minded P.G.A. tournament manager, "I'm going to get a band to follow an exhibition match at Norwalk, Conn., May 12, just to show that all this shush-shushing is needless.

"Gene Sarazen and Jimmy Demaret are going to play in the exhibition, a charity affair, and we're trying to line up a couple of celebrities to fill out the foursome. We'd like to get Babe Ruth and Gene Tunney if possible.

"I talked to a lot of the pros on the winter tour and most of them agreed this idea that absolute silence is necessary on a golf tournament is all a myth. The pros don't care how much noise the fans make as long as they come in at the gate.

"I don't mean that the fans should stage riots or shoot off cannon crackers when a player is driving or putting, but I see no harm in them carrying on ordinary conversations or otherwise acting like human beings."

It's almost unbelievable, that silence about the greens in a big golf tourney. A distant train whistle echoes and re-echoes over the countryside. An airplane droning far overhead brings silent, reproachful glances. As Jess Guilford said: "You can hear a chickadee sneeze." And all for what? That's what Fred Corcoran wants to know.

"A good athlete has to concentrate," he points out, "and when he concentrates he isn't conscious of what goes on around him. Ty Cobb once said that 50,000 people could be screaming at him as he stepped to the plate and he wouldn't hear a thing.

"You'd think a broadcasting station was just ready to go on the air the way the quiet rule is enforced, and the new fans who are coming more and more to golf tournaments can't understand it. They aren't used to being shushed around."

Corcoran also points out that other traditions of golf which meant nothing have gradually fallen before common sense.

"And I'm going to show that this silence idea is the bunk, too. I just talked to John Cavanagh, chairman of the exhibition match, and Sarazen, and they said the idea was swell. So we'll have real swing music."

North End Tossers Will Drill Today

"Sparky" Chisholm's North End Merchants, city softball champions of 1939, will hold their first practice session of the season this evening at 5:30 on the North End Playground field. Most of last year's regulars have been signed for 1940, but newcomers will receive trials if they report for early drills.

Bimelech Favored To Win Kentucky Derby

Jim Fitzsimmons Latest Recruit to Bimelech Band

Woodward Trainer Says Bradley Colt Is the Leading Contender

New York, April 23 (AP) — Nothing counts this year until you beat Bradley, and since the colonel's Bimelech won't be around on Saturday for the Wood Memorial, the chances are that the pretenders to the three-year-old crown will be racing for second-best honors.

Even so, a nice field of perhaps a dozen colts is shaping up for the Wood with Fenelon and Merry Knight, Flight Command and Carrier Pigeon, Calory and Andy K. getting the most attention.

"Sunny Jim" Fitzsimmons, who trains for William Woodward and the Phipps family, is the newest threat to the Bimelech band and when this wily old-timer admits the chase is pretty hopeless it really is especially when he has such a pair as Fenelon and Merry Knight in tow.

"Bimelech was the best two-year-old," he said. "He had no strong contenders then, and there is no reason why he should face any this season. The colonel's colt is high class, and no flash in the pan."

He added that he was hoping Fenelon or Merry Knight or Asp would win the Derby, but that he wasn't "building up any false hopes."

C. V. Whitney's pair — Flight Command and Carrier Pigeon — will command strong support in the betting and a sixteenth Wood, the latter's last main test for the Derby, is more than around the next corner now.

Yesterday at Belmont on a muddy, holding track Carrier Pigeon worked a mile in 1:42, and the clockers described it as "impressive." Still, Fenelon beat him a neck last time.

Andy K., for a long time second choice in the Derby future book, ran all over the track at Havre De Grace on Saturday, winding up third, and unless Sonny Workman can keep him from wanting to see what's on the other side of the outside rail it isn't likely he will cut much of a figure.

Another contender, and one who has been working well for many weeks, is J. H. (Jock) Whitney's Calory. Race-goers haven't forgotten his game second to Bimelech in the Belmont Futurity last year.

Other likely starters are: Parker Corning's Straight Lead and Arnold Hanger's Dit, both trained by Max Hirsch; J. F. Byer's Robert E. Lee, which was undefeated in England last year; and Mrs. E. Graham Lewis' General Manager and Jacopar.

If a Bimelech had come up from Kentucky, the Wood might have turned into a parade, but from the looks of the field now it's wide open, for nothing in it has yet showed real class.

Dodgers Wallop Bees 8 to 3 to Stay Undefeated

Three Home Runs Enable Brooklyn To Remain Tied for Lead

Brooklyn, April 23 (AP) — The Dodgers exploded like a case of dynamite under the Boston Bees today with three home runs that brought an 8 to 3 victory and kept Brooklyn undefeated and tied for the National League lead.

It was an explosive battle from the very start, when a double, a single and Max West's homer over the right field wall earned the Dodgers their total of three runs in the first inning. It was the first time the Dodgers had been scored on this season.

Brooklyn's rookie delegation came through with a five-run second inning and followed with three more in the sixth.

Tex Carlton, after surviving the storm in the first, went the route for Brooklyn and shut out the Bees in the last eight innings.

Don Budge Wins Easily in White Sulphur Tourney

Richard Skeen, Defending Champion, Extended by Carl Bowyer

White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., April 23 (AP)—It was just an easy warmup today for Donald Budge of California as he disposed of one of the four unranked amateurs in the fourth U. S. Open Tennis tourney 6-0, 6-1, 6-0.

The professional standout was attraction No. 1 for the gallery of approximately 150 persons who saw the match, finished in a drizzle of rain. The victim, Byrne Bauer of White Sulphur Springs, expressed surprise that he got one game.

Not so easy was the going for Richard Skeen of California, defending champion and seeded No. 2. Puffing and blowing, Skeen took the first set from Carl Bowyer of White Sulphur Springs 6-3 but was forced to play twenty-five more games before finishing 9-7, 6-3.

Skeen had less difficulty disposing of Mervin Stump of Erie, Pa., in a second round match, 6-1, 6-3, 6-3.

In the only other completed match of the day before drizzling rain halted play, John Nogrady of New York, eliminated Herbert Stead of Harrisville, Rhode Island, 8-6, 6-3, 6-0.

Drawings for the doubles matches will be held tomorrow morning.

Barnes Shows Up Well

Polished form was exhibited by Bruce Barnes of Austin, Texas, the 1938 titlist who was seeded in third place, in eliminating Al Sloane of Charlottesville, Va., in straight sets, 6-3, 6-3, 6-4.

Herman Peterson of Wilmington, Del. seeded No 4, ran into another soft ball player in Bill Weissbuch, Beverly Hills, Cal., and the two entertained with a pretty exhibition of the art for more than two hours before Peterson won 6-3, 7-5, 6-0.

The upset of the day was turned in by Kenneth Napier of Phoenix, Ariz., who put Francis T. Hunter of New York out of the running with a red-hot game Hunter was unable to stem. He kept Hunter constantly on the run to win 8-6, 7-5, 6-4.

Wilmer Hines, Charleston pro who formerly was a Davis Cup player, advanced to the second round in the tournament by defeating Phil Greenstein of Cleveland 6-2, 6-3, 7-5.

David Rains of White Sulphur Springs eliminated a fellow amateur, Robert Burgess of Norfolk, Va., 10-8, 6-0, 7-5. While Bill Seaman, New York simon-pure dropped before Tobey Hansen of Hot Springs, Va., 6-2, 6-2, 6-2 to leave Rains the only amateur now in the running.

Kenney Wins Long Match

The longest match was won by Ed Kenney of Palm Beach, Fla., who played for more than three hours before turning back Al Hopper of Forest Hills, L. I., 6-4, 2-6, 6-8, 9-7, 6-3.

Other results included:

Mervin Stump of Erie, Pa., ousted Otto Bernardin of Durham, N. C. 6-3, 6-0, 6-1; Bernie Coughlan of Santa Monica, Cal., defeated Leon Thomas of Miami, Fla., 6-2, 6-3, 6-4; John Faunce of Hollywood, Cal., eliminated Igor de Nissoff of Stratford, Conn., 6-3, 6-2, 6-1; John Hendrix of Miami downed Sam Nutty of White Sulphur Springs, 6-4, 6-1, 6-3; Frank Fericha of Stratford, Conn., turned back James McDougall of Seal Harbor, Me., 6-4, 7-5, 6-4.

Western Maryland Defeats Loyola

Westminster, Md., April 23 (AP)—Western Maryland college won its first baseball game in three starts this season today, defeating Loyola, 7-5, in a Maryland Collegiate League engagement.

Loyola wiped out an early Western Maryland lead with three runs in the first half of the eighth inning, but pitcher Tewey weakened in the last half and the home club came back with three tallies to clinch the decision.

Bricker, Western Maryland catcher, hit a triple, double, single and stole three bases to lead the hitters.

The Sportlight

by GRANTLAND RICE

The No-Man's-Land of Sport

(As the duffer sees it).

What do I see as I stand on the tee
facing the tougher terrain?
Traps to the left of me, pits to the right—
Nothing but sorrow and trouble in sight,
Nothing but bitterness, blasting and blight,
Nothing but heartache and pain.
Nothing but heelprints where horror careens—
Where are the fairways—and where are the greens?

Where do I walk as I shudder or balk? Strolling on velvety grass?
Not on your life, as I'm up to my chin
Out in some jungle that rhinos can't win.
Deep in a swamp that is far from the pin.
Out where the leopards can't pass.
Up to my neck where a thorny bush leans—
Where are the fairways—and where are the greens?

About Those Texans

What is the remainder of the golfing world going to do about these Texas Rangers? The big Goodall Round Robin, man against man, battle at Fresh Meadow, Long Island, is now only a short span away and just beyond that we have the U. S. Open in Cleveland, which promises to be the high mark of all opens. And the remainder of the field is still wondering just how it is going to collar Jimmy Demaret, Ben Hogan, Byron Nelson, Ralph Guldahl and Dick Metz, all Texas-born and bred in the ways of golf.

The remainder of the outside platoon enters such fine golfers as Sammy Snead, Henry Picard, Ed Dudley, Harry Cooper (also Texas-bred in golf), Craig Wood, Olin Dutra, Jimmy Thompson, Horton Smith, Billy Burke, Gene Sarazen, Denny Shute, Lawson Little, Ed Oliver, Paul Runyan, Johnny Revolta, Ky Laffoon and fifty others.

But Texas is still the mop-up state.

For example, Texas entries have won the last three U. S. Opens. Guldahl won in 1937 and 1938. Nelson came through in 1939. It has been four years since anyone outside of Texas landed on top. This seems to be packing quite a chunk of golfing fame into one state.

This Isn't All

So far the big Texas sweep has belonged to 1940. In the big tournaments played since the first of the year Jimmy Demaret has won six, Ben Hogan has won three and Byron Nelson and Lloyd Mangrum have picked up one each—eleven major successes from something like fourteen shows, with big Ralph Guldahl just coming back to his game as the spring program ended.

Jimmy Demaret and Ben Hogan were the two outstanding stars with nine wins and a flock of seconds. They were far in front among the money winners and in the pursuit of the Vardon Trophy.

When Demaret, not only club professional but also greenkeeper, at Houston, had to fly back from Florida, Ben Hogan and Lloyd Mangrum from Texas, picked up where Jimmy left off. They won the next four big tournaments until the Masters' at Augusta, where Demaret and Mangrum ran 1-2.

It was at Augusta that Mangrum's 64—8 under par over a difficult championship course — went into the records as one of the greatest rounds ever played. For this reason, he hit every green in par, and he hit four greens one under par.

About Ben Hogan

While Jimmy Demaret moves along at a whirlwind clip, little Ben Hogan is still close on his trail. I say little Ben Hogan because he weighs only 138 pounds, fully dressed, which means no better than 132 stripped.

"I was always afraid to strip in weighing," he told me, "because I was afraid some wind might come up and blow me away."

Yet Hogan is one of the big hitters of all golf. I mean up with Thompson and Snead, the Twin Howitzers. Little Ben gets 280 yards off the tee.

Not only that but he led the classy winter and spring field with an average of 70.5 strokes per round through fourteen medal play tournaments. He broke 70 no less than twenty times in eleven tournaments. At Pinehurst, Greensboro and Asheville, he led the field by a killing margin of 15 strokes.

He played four major tournaments against brilliant fields, a matter of 288 holes, just 32 under par. This is one of the great scoring records of all time.

Playing from California through Arizona, Texas, Louisiana, Florida, North Carolina, South Carolina and Georgia, under bad weather conditions, over changing greens, his average was better than 50 under par.

About Hogan

You'll hear more about Hogan at the Round Robin and the Open. He is strong and wiry, with a pair of fine hands and strong wrists. His hands, especially his left, is thickly calloused and often blistered, because he can't operate with a glove, as the majority do.

One of the main features of his swing is the use he makes of his left thumb. This thumb is moved in an extended position well up the shaft. It isn't squeezed in against the left forefinger. It is spread at least an inch upward.

"This gives me more leverage than most golfers get," Hogan told me. "It doesn't lock or tie up my backswing."

If you follow Hogan you will see that his backswing is much fuller than most golfers use. The clubhead dips far below the horizontal. He takes a tremendous turn with the upper part of his body, so that the left shoulder and back come far around.

And if you are looking for another answer I can slip it along to you—from two to four hours a day at practice. The game has known no harder worker.

Redraw Wins Rolloff and General Textile Title

The Redraws won the rolloff and the championship in the General Textile League on the Diamond Alleys, defeating the Twisting in three of five games, and having a margin of 100 pins in the total five game score.

Redraws won the first by 23 pins and the second by 32, taking the fifth by 76 maples. Twisting took the third by 23 and the fourth by eight pins.

Thomas Thompson of Twisting had high set of 630 while George Daniels, his teammate, had high single game with 148.

Harvey topped the Redraw duckmen with 137-613.

Rank Amateur Is Thrilled in His Match with Budge

Byrne Bauer Says Way To Play Champ Is "Fire and Fall Back"

White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., April 23 (AP) — An unranked "rank" amateur faced one of the world's great tennis players today and came off with this bit of philosophy on how to play Budge:

"Fire and then fall back."

"My idea," explained Byrne Bauer of White Sulphur Springs, "was to get as many balls back to the red-headed giant as possible in order to watch his reported speed and grace from across the net."

"It was a vantage point," conceded Bauer, "I never could have hoped

Allegany High's Baseball Team Defeats Hyndman

Campers Open Season by Turning Back Visitors 8 to 5

The Allegany high school baseball team opened the 1940 season here yesterday afternoon by defeating Hyndman high 8 to 5 at the Campers home field.

The locals scored three times in the first inning, once in the fifth and four in the sixth, while the visitors counted once in the first, twice in the third and two in the sixth.

George Gentz was the only Allegany player to make a hit until the sixth inning when Gaffney started a rally clouting a ground rule double over the left field fence. Allegany made six while Hynd-

Bimelech Favored To Win Kentucky Derby

Jim Fitzsimmons Latest Recruit to Bimelech Band

Woodward Trainer Says Bradley Colt Is the Leading Contender

New York, April 23 (AP) — Nothing counts this year until you beat Bradley, and since the colonel's Bimelech won't be around on Saturday for the Wood Memorial, the chances are that the pretenders to the three-year-old crown will be racing for second-best honors.

Even so, a nice field of perhaps a dozen colts is shaping up for the Wood with Fenelon and Merry Knight, Flight Command and Carrier Pigeon, Calory and Andy K getting the most attention.

"Sunny Jim" Fitzsimmons, who trains for William Woodward and the Phipps family, is the newest threat to the Bimelech band and when this wily old-timer admits the chase is pretty hopeless it really is especially when he has such a pair as Fenelon and Merry Knight in tow.

Bimelech was the best two-year-old, he said. "He had no strong contenders then, and there is no reason why he should face any this season. The colonel's colt is high class, and no flash in the pan."

He added that he was hoping Fenelon or Merry Knight or Asp would win the Derby, but that he wasn't "building up any false hopes."

C. V. Whitney's pair — Flight Command and Carrier Pigeon — will command strong support in the Wood and a sixteenth Wood, the latter's last main test for the Derby, no more than around the next corner now.

Yesterday at Belmont on a muddy, holding track Carrier Pigeon worked a mile in 1:42, and the trackers described it as "impressive."

Fenelon beat him a neck last fall.

Andy K., for a long time second choice in the Derby future book, is all over the track at Havre De Grace on Saturday, winding up third, and unless Sonny Workman can keep him from wanting to see what's on the other side of the outside rail it isn't likely he will cut much of a figure.

Another contender, and one who has been working well for many weeks, is J. H. (Jock) Whitney's Calory. Race-goers haven't forgotten his game second to Bimelech in the Belmont Futurity last year.

Other likely starters are: Parker Corning's Straight Lead and Arnold Hanger's Dit, both trained by Max Hirsch; J. P. Byer's Robert E. Lee, which was undefeated in England last year; and Mrs. E. Graham Phipps' General Manager and Jacopic.

If a Bimelech had come up from Kentucky, the Wood might have turned into a parade, but from the looks of the field now it's wide open, for nothing in it has yet showed real class.

Dodgers Wallop Bees 8 to 3 to Stay Undefeated

Three Home Runs Enable Brooklyn To Remain Tied for Lead

Brooklyn, April 23 (AP) — The Dodgers exploded like a case of ammunite under the Boston Bees today with three home runs that brought an 8 to 3 victory and kept Brooklyn undefeated and tied for the National League lead.

It was an explosive battle from very start, when a double, a single and Max West's homer over the right field wall earned the Dodgers their total of three runs in the first inning. It was the first time the Dodgers had been scored on this season.

Brooklyn's rookie delegation came through with a five-run second inning and followed with three more in the sixth.

Tex Carlton, after surviving the trouble in the first, went the route for Brooklyn and shut out the Bees in the last eight innings.

Richard Skeen, Defending Champion, Extended by Carl Bowyer

White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., April 23 (AP)—It was just an easy warmup today for Donald Budge of California as he disposed of one of the four unranked amateurs in the fourth U. S. Open Tennis tourney 6-0, 6-1, 6-0.

The professional standout was attraction No. 1 for the gallery of approximately 150 persons who saw the match, finished in a drizzle of rain. The victim, Byrne Bauer of White Sulphur Springs, expressed surprise that he got one game.

Not so easy was the going for Richard Skeen of California, defending champion and seeded No. 2. Puffing and blowing, Skeen took the first set from Carl Bowyer of White Sulphur Springs 6-3 but was forced to play twenty-five more games before finishing 9-7, 6-3.

Skeen had less difficulty disposing of Mervin Stump of Erie, Pa., in a second round match, 6-1, 6-3, 6-3.

In the only other completed match of the day before drizzling rain halted play, John Nogrady of New York, eliminated Herbert Stead of Harrisville, Rhode Island, 8-6, 6-3, 6-0.

Drawings for the doubles matches will be held tomorrow morning.

Barnes Shows Up Well

Polished form was exhibited by Bruce Barnes of Austin, Texas, the 1938 titlist who was seeded in third place, in eliminating Al Sloane of Charlottesville, Va., in straight sets, 6-3, 6-3, 6-4.

Herman Peterson of Wilmington, Del. seeded No 4, ran into another soft ball player in Bill Weissbuch, Beverly Hills, Cal., and the two entertained with a pretty exhibition of the art for more than two hours before Peterson won 6-3, 7-5, 6-0.

The upset of the day was turned in by Kenneth Napier of Phoenix, Ariz., who put Francis T. Hunter of New York out of the running with a red-hot game Hunter was unable to stem. He kept Hunter constantly on the run to win 8-6, 7-5, 6-4.

Wilmer Hines, Charleston pro who formerly was a Davis Cup player, advanced to the second round in the tournament by defeating Phil Greenstein of Cleveland 6-2, 6-3, 7-5.

David Rains of White Sulphur Springs eliminated a fellow amateur, Robert Burgess of Norfolk, Va., 10-8, 6-0, 7-5. While Bill Seaman, New York simon-pure dropped before Tobey Hansen of Hot Springs, Va., 6-2, 6-2, 6-2 to leave Rains the only amateur now in the running.

Kenney Wins Long Match

The longest match was won by Ed Kenney of Palm Beach, Fla., who played for more than three hours before turning back Al Hopper of Forest Hills, L. I., 6-4, 2-6, 6-8, 9-7, 6-3.

Other results included:

Mervin Stump of Erie, Pa., ousted Otto Bernardin of Durham, N. C., 6-3, 6-0, 6-1; Bernie Coughlan of Santa Monica, Cal., defeated Leon Thomas of Miami, Fla., 6-2, 6-3, 6-4; John Faunce of Hollywood, Cal., eliminated Igor de Nissoff of Stratford, Conn., 6-3, 6-2, 6-1; John Hendrix of Miami downed Sam Nutty of White Sulphur Springs, 6-4, 6-1, 6-3; Frank Fericha of Stratford, Conn., turned back James McDougall of Seal Harbor, Me., 6-4, 7-5, 6-4.

Western Maryland Defeats Loyola

Westminster, Md., April 23 (AP)—Western Maryland college won its first baseball game in three starts this season today, defeating Loyola, 7-5, in a Maryland Collegiate League engagement.

Loyola wiped out an early Western Maryland lead with three runs in the first half of the eighth inning, but pitcher Tewey weakened in the last half and the home club came back with three tallies to clinch the decision.

Bricker, Western Maryland catcher, hit a triple, double, single and stole three bases to lead the hitters.

Score by innings:

LOYOLA	000	110	030	—	5	7	2
W. MARYLAND	031	000	03x	—	7	9	5

Tewey, Ward, Flynn and Brady; Catington and Bricker.

The Sportlight by GRANTLAND RICE

The No-Man's-Land of Sport

(As the duffer sees it).

What do I see as I stand on the tee
facing the tougher terrain?
Traps to the left of me, pits to the right—
Nothing but sorrow and trouble in sight,
Nothing but bitterness, blasting and blight,
Nothing but heartache and pain.
Nothing but heelprints where horror careens—
Where are the fairways—and where are the greens?

Where do I walk as I shudder or balk? Strolling on velvety grass?
Not on your life, as I'm up to my chin
Out in some jungle that rhinos can't win.
Deep in a swamp that is far from the pin.
Out where the leopards can't pass.
Up to my neck where a thorny bush leans—
Where are the fairways—and where are the greens?

About Those Texans

What is the remainder of the golfing world going to do about these Texas Rangers? The big Goodall Round Robin, man against man, battle at Fresh Meadow, Long Island, is now only a short span away and just beyond that we have the U. S. Open in Cleveland, which promises to be the high mark of all opens. And the remainder of the field is still wondering just how it is going to collar Jimmy Demaret, Ben Hogan, Byron Nelson, Ralph Guldahl and Dick Metz, all Texas-born and bred in the ways of golf.

The remainder of the outside platoon enters such fine golfers as Sammy Snead, Henry Picard, Ed Dudley, Harry Cooper (also Texas-bred in golf), Craig Wood, Olin Dutra, Jimmy Thompson, Horton Smith, Billy Burke, Gene Sarazen, Denny Shute, Lawson Little, Ed Oliver, Paul Runyan, Johnny Revolta, Ky Laffoon and fifty others.

But Texas is still the mop-up state.

For example, Texas entries have won the last three U. S. Opens. Guldahl won in 1937 and 1938. Nelson came through in 1939. It has been four years since anyone outside of Texas landed on top. This seems to be packing quite a chunk of golfing fame into one state.

This Isn't All

So far the big Texas sweep has belonged to 1940. In the big tournaments played since the first of the year Jimmy Demaret has won six, Ben Hogan has won three and Byron Nelson and Lloyd Mangrum have picked up one each—eleven major successes from something like fourteen shows, with big Ralph Guldahl just coming back to his game as the spring program ended.

Jimmy Demaret and Ben Hogan were the two outstanding stars with nine wins and a flock of seconds. They were far in front among the money winners and in the pursuit of the Vardon Trophy.

When Demaret, not only club professional but also greenkeeper, at Houston, had to fly back from Florida, Ben Hogan and Lloyd Mangrum from Texas picked up where Jimmy left off. They won the next four big tournaments until the Masters' at Augusta, where Demaret and Mangrum ran 1-2.

It was at Augusta that Mangrum's 64—8 under par over a difficult championship course — went into the records as one of the greatest rounds ever played. For this reason, he hit every green in par, and he hit four greens one under par.

About Ben Hogan

While Jimmy Demaret moves along at a whirlwind clip, little Ben Hogan is still close on his trail. I say little Ben Hogan because he weighs only 138 pounds, fully dressed, which means no better than 132 stripped.

"I was always afraid to strip in weighing," he told me, "because I was afraid some wind might come up and blow me away."

Yet Hogan is one of the big hitters of all golf. I mean up with Thompson and Snead, the Twin Howitzers. Little Ben gets 280 yards off the tee.

Not only that but he led the classy winter and spring field with an average of 70.5 strokes per round through fourteen medal play tournaments. He broke 70 no less than twenty times in eleven tournaments. At Pinehurst, Greensboro and Asheville, he led the field by a killing margin of 15 strokes.

He played four major tournaments against brilliant fields, a matter of 288 holes, just 32 under par. This is one of the great scoring records of all time.

Playing from California through Arizona, Texas, Louisiana, Florida, North Carolina, South Carolina and Georgia, under bad weather conditions, over changing greens, his average was better than 50 under par.

About Hogan

You'll hear more about Hogan at the Round Robin and the Open. He is strong and wiry, with a pair of fine hands and strong wrists. His hands, especially his left, is thickly calloused and often blistered, because he can't operate with a glove, as the majority do.

One of the main features of his swing is the use he makes of his left thumb. This thumb is moved in an extended position well up the shaft. It isn't squeezed in against the left forefinger. It is spread at least an inch upward.

"This gives me more leverage than most golfers get," Hogan told me. "It doesn't lock or tie up my backswing."

If you follow Hogan you will see that his backswing is much fuller than most golfers use. The clubhead dips far below the horizontal. He takes a tremendous turn with the upper part of his body, so that the left shoulder and back come far around.

And if you are looking for another answer I can slip it along to you—from two to four hours a day at practice. The game has known no harder worker.

Redraw Wins Rolloff and General Textile Title

The Redraws won the rolloff and the championship in the General Textile League on the Diamond Alleys, defeating the Twisting in three of five games, and having a margin of 100 pins in the total five game score.

Redraws won the first by 23 pins and the second by 32, taking the fifth by 76 maples. Twisting took the third by 23 and the fourth by eight pins.

Thomas Thompson of Twisting had high set of 630 while George Daniels, his teammate, had high single game with 148.

Harvey topped the Redraw duckmen with 137-613.

Rank Amateur Is Thrilled in His Match with Budge

Byrne Bauer Says Way To Play Champ Is "Fire and Fall Back"

White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., April 23 (AP) — An unranked "rank" amateur faced one of the world's great tennis players today and came off with this bit of philosophy on how to play Budge:

"Fire and then fall back."

"My idea," explained Byrne Bauer of White Sulphur Springs, "was to get as many balls back to the red-headed giant as possible in order to watch his reported speed and grace from across the net."

"It was a vantage point," conceded Bauer, "I never could have hoped

Allegany High's Baseball Team Defeats Hyndman

Campers Open Season by Turning Back Visitors 8 to 5

The Allegany high school baseball team opened the 1940 season here yesterday afternoon by defeating Hyndman high 8 to 5 at the Campers home field.

The locals scored three times in the first inning, once in the fifth and four in the sixth, while the visitors counted once in the first, twice in the third and two in the sixth.

George Gesta was the only Allegany player to make a hit until the sixth inning when Gaffney started a rally clouting a ground rule double over the left field fence. Allegany made six while Hynd-

Radcliffe Tours County, Stresses His Experience

Senator Pokes Fun at Walsh As Forgetful

Spends Strenuous Day Campaigning In Many Towns

Howard Bruce, striving to unseat George L. Radcliffe as U. S. Senator, yesterday was described as a "man without an issue" by the Senator in his stumping tour of Allegany county.

Miners, farmers, factory workers, WPA workers and professional men and women who congregated along the Senator's line of march yesterday heard Radcliffe declare "Bruce would merely be an experiment as a U. S. Senator."

"He has endorsed practically everything I have accomplished in Washington," the Senator continued. "He now comes before you with nothing new to offer in the way of a program."

Says Experience Counts

Reminding his listeners that these are troublesome times, Senator Radcliffe said that "having experience counts in the business of being a Senator the same as any other line of work or occupation."

Returning to Cumberland last night, Radcliffe summed up the series of short addresses he had been making all day in an impromptu radio address.

Says Walsh Forgetful

Referring to a recent blast at his record by Attorney General William C. Walsh, Senator Radcliffe humorously remarked, "I consider it not so much a change of heart as a lapse of memory."

(Walsh remarked that he couldn't think of a Senator who had made less of a record than Radcliffe.

Radcliffe, earlier in the day, had recalled a former speech made by Walsh at Cambridge, the senator's home town, when he lauded Senator Radcliffe's record. The Senator said he had documentary proof of the address.

Tells of His Record

Speaking informally, the speaker then outlined the various duties that have occupied his time while serving as U. S. Senator.

He referred to the trust and confidence President Roosevelt had shown in him, traced his activities as a member of the banking and currency and finance committees and the work he has done in connection with public works projects.

Radcliffe enumerated the various bills he had supported including the Wagner Labor Act which he characterized "as a big step in the right direction; not perfect, but then, few bills are when first passed." He listed the Guffy Coal bill, the Social Security Act and the Railroad Retirement Act as other measures which he helped shape up and actively supported.

Must Remain at Peace

Speaking on the foreign situation, Senator Radcliffe asserted "we must remain at peace and we are going to."

Commenting on preparedness, he declared "we must play safe and put our country in the proper condition of preparedness."

Concluding his extemporaneous radio talk, Senator Radcliffe asked Western Maryland voters to look at his record, a record that has been endorsed by Bruce himself in the past, he said.

Referring to his rival again, Radcliffe asserted "as we approach primary day, Bruce is a man without a case. He wants to be a senator, which is natural, but he has nothing to offer."

Following his radio talk, the senator and his lieutenants left for Frostburg where he made another short address and met a group of supporters at the Gunter hotel.

Visits in LaVale

The party then started back for Cumberland, stopping at the LaVale fire station where Radcliffe spoke briefly and met the members of the department.

The lobby of the Algonquin hotel and the Radcliffe-for-Senator headquarters were filled with people when the senator arrived back in town for another reception.

Affable and still full of pep despite an unusually long day, the senator met most of the people at the Algonquin, chatted briefly with a majority of them.

Few Women Present

The group at the Algonquin hotel, it was interesting to note, was comprised mostly of men with very few women being on hand.

From the Algonquin, Senator Radcliffe went to the American Legion home after which he visited the Veterans of Foreign Wars headquarters.

The county tour started from the Algonquin Hotel at 9:30 a. m. yesterday morning when the Senator and his supporters rolled out of town with the sound car blaring out a triumphal march.

The group went through the railroad shops and then went to Luke, where Senator Radcliffe visited the paper mill and later addressed a large crowd of employes at the Devon club.

Pomises Mt. Savage School Aid

From there, the tour continued to Westernport, Barton, Lonaconing, Vale Summit, Corriganville, Ellerslie and Mt. Savage with Senator Radcliffe making short addresses at a majority of the stopping-off points.

At Mt. Savage he spoke for fifteen minutes at the town's war memorial, emphasized his work and interest in the various veterans' groups and declared he would be glad to do his best to help Mt. Savage citizens to obtain an adequate school expansion program.

Senator Radcliffe will visit the Savage River Dam today and will then go into Garrett county. He will go directly to Baltimore from Grantsville after another day of meeting people and making speeches.

County Campaign Managers Put On Side Show to Main Political Bout

The battle of the campaign managers went another round last night.

This time it was the turn of M. F. Prendergast to return the punches landed the night before by Edward J. Ryan, who called Prendergast "disgruntled" because he wasn't made county commissioner.

Taking to the air last night to introduce Senator Radcliffe, Chairman Prendergast announced, "I can readily forgive the chairman of the Bruce campaign in the county because he has not been a Democrat sufficiently long to know much about the Democrats of the county.

Ryan "Switches" Partys

"Just a few years ago," Prendergast continued, "he ran for office on the Republican ticket in the county. He made no headway there, then joined the Democratic party. The ink was scarcely dry on the paper on which he changed his party affiliation before he was again filing papers as a candidate for office, this time on the Democratic ticket.

"The gentlemen who know why I made application for the office of county commissioner also know that I did not want the office. I filed my application simply because I would not stand back and have word come from Baltimore that this or that person could not have the office. Even Mr. Patrick J. "Derby" Stakem, who was appointed commissioner, knows why I filed for the office."

Prefers to "Ignore" Attack

Prendergast prefaced his broadside at Ryan by remarking, "after the very pleasant tour of the county today by Senator Radcliffe who will speak in the interest of his nomination at the primary elections on May 6, I will ignore at this time the reference made to me as chairman of the Re-Elect Radcliffe campaign in Allegany county.

After sufficiently "ignoring" the reference, Prendergast concluded, "but I would impress you with the fact that we are so pleased with the reception accorded Senator Radcliffe in the county today that we will not indulge in any further discussion of personalities."

City Collects $80 Cash Gate On Big Fight

Mechanic Street Battle Outshines European War

The four battle-scarred veterans of the Battle of North Mechanic street assembled in Police court yesterday to hear the referee's decision.

Magistrate Frank A. Perdew, surveying the wreckage lined up before him, decided it had been a pretty good fight while it lasted, but he didn't distribute any medals.

Instead, he ordered each of the four battered belligerents to pay $20 in fines. Since each had already put up $20 in cold cash to get out of jail earlier in the day, there was no more collecting to do.

So the opposing forces were demobilized and sent home to do their spring plowing, or whatever else they had in mind.

Casualty List

Spectators, however, had a good chance to check up on just who had done how much damage to whom.

The results were painfully apparent. The best liar in the propaganda profession would have had a tough time denying that damage had been done.

There was F. Patrick Allender, business agent and big gun of the AFofL Building and construction Trades Council. He showed the effects of what the European communiques would have called a "terrific bombardment". Half his face was covered by bandages, and he brandished a badly battered eye.

Made Good Target

Allender's companion - in - arms, Kenneth Ramage, AFofL carpenter, was also covered with a considerable acreage of gauze. Spectators decided he had done pretty well as a target, too. Both seemed to have gotten their $20 worth.

The opposition, on the other hand, was less battered and less satisfied. They wanted a moral victory as well as a bloody one.

So Bartender Richard Meagher and William "Wild Bill" Niland announced they would appeal the verdict to Circuit court.

Meagher suffered only bruises of a minor calibre, but Niland was sporting a bandaged left hand and a broken forefinger.

The Battle in Review

Around town, the Battle of North Mechanic Street aroused more war talk yesterday than the latest battle of the Skaggerak. It seems to have developed much the same way.

The opposing forces "made contact", as the admirals say, in Porter's restaurant when the AF of L men hailed Meagher and wanted to know why he didn't join the bartenders union.

To Heck with Neutrality

Hostilities developed, and the battle moved out into the open. Bartender Meagher and Carpenter Ramage engaged first. Then Allender steamed into position as reinforcements, only to be engaged by Boxer Niland, who has found it difficult to maintain his neutrality on previous occasions.

Then, like a battleship rolling in to put the finishing touches on a battle between destroyers, Policeman Wellington Lovenstein maneuvered his way through the crowd and took control.

It was all over before the excited spectators could pass the hat.

Arrested for Speeding On Greene Street

Perdew was arrested yesterday morning on Greene street by Officers F. O. Daum and B. F. Hotchkiss for speeding.

Wife-Beater Freed On Wife's Plea

He was Ralph Haenftling, who was sentenced Monday to a year in the House of Correction on a charge of wife-beating.

Yesterday, Associate Judge William A. Huster suspended the sentence and placed Haenftling on probation. The action was taken, it was reported, after Mrs. Haenftling had a change of heart and asked that the sentence be changed.

Rotary Inducts Eight Members

Victor D. Heisey Makes Address

Eight recently elected members were formally inducted into the Cumberland Rotary Club at its weekly luncheon yesterday at the Fort Cumberland hotel.

They are J. Elmer Bopp, Henry C. Swearingen, John L. Towler, Gilbert Miller, L. Leslie Helmer, Lester Martin, Porter Collins, and G. Edwin Allen.

Two other newly-elected members were slated for the ceremony, namely, Ralph James and Folsom Taylor, but were unavoidably absent.

Heisey displayed a poster drawn by Ernest Shuler, of the commercial art class at Fort Hill high school, of which Heisey is principal, to outline the talk. It showed a huge lighthouse resting on solid rocks with four spreading rays of light.

The two solid rocks represented the ideals of democracy and nonsectarianism, on which the Rotary structure, the lighthouse, is built; and the rays represents the Rotary objects of club service, vocational service, community service, and international service, each of which the speaker explained.

The program included vocal solos by Alfred Britten, a sophomore at Fort Hill, who was accompanied at the piano by Miss Dorothy Sebree, voice instructor at the school; and violin solos by Wilton Sykes, who was accompanied at the piano by his mother, Mrs. S. Lua Sykes.

Plans were furthered for attendance of local members at a Ladies' Night meeting of the Keyser Rotary Club, Friday evening at the Northern Methodist church there at which Robert Kazmayer, of Utica, N. Y., will give an address on "The Challenge of a Changing World."

Births

Mr. and Mrs. Virgil Frazee, of Oakland, announce the birth of a son yesterday morning at Memorial hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert H. Parker, of Bedford road, announce the birth of a daughter Monday night at Memorial hospital. Mrs. Parker was Miss Meredith Snowden, R. N., a graduate of the Memorial hospital nurses' training school.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold B. Hockman, 101 Pennsylvania avenue, announce the birth of a son Monday at Memorial hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. William M. Friend, of Keyser, W. Va., announce the birth of a daughter Monday at Memorial hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Kiser, of McCoole, announce the birth of a daughter Tuesday morning at their home.

Boy Hurt Playing

William Derlan, son of Mr. and Mrs. Herman B. Derlan, 325 Arch street, was injured last evening when he slipped and fell against a fence while playing near his home.

Allegany hospital attaches reported that young Derlan sustained a fractured right wrist, a cut above his right eye, and bruises.

PRINCESS—Miss Lenora Ellen Williams, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. Marvin Williams, of Romney, will represent the West Virginia Horticulture society as princess at the Apple Blossom festival in Winchester May 2 and 3, it was announced by Dr. William C. Vanmeter, of Petersburg, president of the society. Miss Williams is a student at Romney high school and editor of the school paper.

Jr. Association Takes Inventory Of Its Future

Members Impatient To 'Do Something'; Plans Outlined

"Let's do something constructive for Cumberland" was the subject of a long discussion at the regular dinner meeting of the Junior Association of Commerce last night at the Central Y. M. C. A.

About fifty of the organization's 120 members met for dinner at 6:30 p. m. after which they settled down to what was scheduled to be a routine business session, but which terminate din a heated and highly interesting discussion.

The fireworks began when Leslie Helmer, president, opened the meeting to discussion, saying that the organization is just completing its first year of activity, and any suggestions or criticisms from the membership would be welcomed.

This brought the reply from a part of the membership, at least, that the Junior Association of Commerce has done little worthwhile during the year, and that something should be done.

Several projects were cited as worthy of investigation and report. There was also some comment by members that the board of directors and officers failed to keep the membership informed of activities and that the activity, as far as most members are concerned, is limited.

Record Defended

In defense of his record for the year, President Helmer, and a number of members of the board, as well as a number of other active members, explained that inactivity of the organization since its inception has been deliberate and intentional.

The time has been spent, it was stated in learning the plan and purpose behind the organization. Much time was taken in expanding the organization from a few charter members to its present size. Much study has been given to various possible projects and much information has been gathered that will provide an excellent foundation for future progress.

The desire of the board and the officers, it was emphasized is to attempt to build the organization soundly, and to work into civic and community problems and projects gradually.

Can Be Vital Influence

It was pointed out by a number of members that the Junior Association of Commerce can be a vital progressive force in the industrial, business, social, educational, and civic life of Cumberland. In other cities, many things have been accomplished by Junior Associations that have attracted nation-wide attention and have made those cities better places in which to live. It was emphasized by a number of members that if the organization is to survive, there must be projects of mutual interest and benefit undertaken, and there must be activity that will interest all members.

The president and members of the board agreed with the membership that projects which will be a civic interest and benefit must be attempted. It was pointed out that the organization must visualize the

Buying Junk from Boys Causes Second Arrest

Detective Robert E. Flynn, charged Collins with buying goods from a 15-year-old boy.

David N. Miller, of 111 Mary street, was apprehended Monday afternoon on a similar charge.

Both men will be given hearings tomorrow in Police court.

Man, 24, Gets Four-Year Term For Robbery

Smashed Window, Took Watches, He Admits

Another stiff sentence was meted out in Circuit court yesterday as the criminal docket was cleared in almost record time.

Associate Judge William A. Huster sentenced Joseph Q. Sanders, 24, of Monongahela City, Pa., to four years in the Maryland penitentiary on charges of burglary and jailbreaking.

A three-year term was imposed for Sanders's part in smashing the plate-glass window of the Nierman jewelry store on Pershing street and making off with several watches. A one-year term, to follow the other, was handed out on the jailbreaking count.

Brother Awaits Sentence

The sentence is the same as that received by Raymond Louis Pfiel, 21, of Verona, Pa., who pleaded guilty to burglarizing the Washington street home of Edmund S. Burke and to accompanying the two Sanders brothers on the jailbreaking expedition, which gave them freedom for a few hours.

John Harrison Sanders, Joseph's younger brother, indicted for the Nierman burglary, jail - breaking and five cases of larceny and receiving stolen goods, has yet to be sentenced.

The older Sanders had originally pleaded not guilty to the burglary charge although admitting the jailbreaking. Yesterday, Leslie J. Clark, his attorney by court appointment, demurred to the first count of the indictment, which charged "felonious" breaking and entering.

Demurrer Over-Ruled

The indictment was faulty in using the term "felonious" in referring to what is only a misdemeanor under Maryland law, Clark argued.

He was over-ruled by Judge Huster, however, and then entered a plea of guilty to the second count of the indictment on behalf of his client. The four-year sentence followed.

Two one-year terms in the House of Correction and a three-year parole were imposed on three men charged with stealing aluminum from the Bierman junk yard.

The House of Correction sentences were meted out to Richard M. Clark and John Snyder, who had pleaded guilty, Arberry Wheeler, colored, who also pleaded guilty, was placed on probation for three years.

Coney Man Paroled

Another three-year parole was granted William N. Cook, of Lonaconing, who had pleaded guilty to stealing about $25 worth of merchandise from the Sloan store at Lonaconing. He was ordered to pay for the stolen goods, refrain from liquor, and be of general good behavior.

Meanwhile, Sheriff Lucian C. Radcliffe wasted no time in transferring the prisoners from the county jail to their new "homes."

Pfiel and the older Sanders were dispatched to the penitentiary yesterday morning. They were taken "down the road" by Deputy Sheriff Henry McKee and Special Deputy Harry Kenney.

Three other prisoners were taken to the House of Correction by special deputies. All sentenced to a year, they were Harley Coleman, of Elk Garden, W. Va., convicted of forgery; Ruhl Alderton, of Green Ridge, convicted of larceny and receiving stolen goods; and Joseph Madasky, of Frostburg, convicted as a parole violator.

Other prisoners sentenced will be transferred before the end of the week, Sheriff Radcliffe indicated.

Woman Hurt in Fall Down Cellar Steps

Two persons were treated at Allegany hospital and discharged yesterday afternoon after being injured in falls.

Mrs. Arlene McNeill, 19, wife of Adrian McNeill, 111 Decatur street, suffered bruises about both arms and minor head injuries when she fell down eight cellar steps at the Liberty restaurant on Baltimore street, where she was working.

Kramer Hawse, 28, of 303 Columbia avenue, was cut about the head when he slipped and fell on Bedford street.

WPA Recreation Leaders Finish Story Course

The story telling course conducted by Miss Mary Walsh, librarian of the Cumberland Free Public Library, for WPA recreational preschool leaders was concluded yesterday.

Miss Walsh presented each leader with a bibliography listing the best types of stories for pre-school children. These books are to be distributed among the pre-school leaders semi-monthly through the cooperation of the library.

Those attending were Nellie Meese, Geneva Hyde, Winifred Wiland, Sarah Gwyn, Katherine Freeman, Emily Stewart, Ann Young, Margaret Shannon, Elizabeth Brewer, Mary W. Doll and Mrs. Elizabeth M. Cooper, recreational supervisor.

Federal Agents Break Up Obscene Picture Trade

A federal grand jury in Baltimore yesterday returned the indictment against Earl Hammond, a Kelly-Springfield Tire Company employe, of 11 East street.

Hammond is scheduled to be taken into custody today on receipt of a warrant by United States Deputy Marshal Howard P. Loughrie.

The indictment was returned on the basis of evidence and exhibits presented by the local postal inspector.

The agent here began his investigation some time ago after other postal officials reported that a man arrested in Idaho had in his possession correspondence from Hammond indicating that he was engaged in selling obscene pictures and literature.

Specifically, Hammond was accused of sending for a fee nearly 100 obscene pictures and an obscene booklet from Cumberland to a West Virginia town. Although he allegedly used the mails to solicit business and advertise his wares, he sent the material by express, it was reported. However, federal laws forbid the shipment of such material in interstate commerce, whether by mail or otherwise.

Hammond is scheduled to be tried at the May term of United States district court here.

Alumni Orchestra To Play Tonight

Program Includes Piano Solo

The High School Alumni orchestra, directed by Victor H. Bauman, will play tonight in the Fort Hill auditorium at 8:15 p. m.

Mrs. Henry C. Swearingen will play with the orchestra for the first time, appearing as piano soloist. She will play Rubenstein's Concert in D Minor, Opus 70.

Other numbers on the orchestra's program for tonight are "The Moldau," Smetana; minuet from the "Military Symphony," Haydn; Turkish march from "Ruins of Athens," Beethoven; Valse Triste from "Kuolema, Opus 44, Sibelius; "From the Canebrake," Opus 5, No. 1, Gardner; "Pavane," Raval; "Manhattan Serenade," Alter; and "In a Chinese Temple Garden," Ketelbey.

The alumni group, which hopes to develop into a civic symphony orchestra, now boasts twenty-six members. There will be no admission for tonight's concert, but a silver offering will be taken.

Catholic Girls Glee Club To Present Concert Tonight at Carroll Hall

Between fifty and sixty pupils will take part in a diversified program scheduled for tonight at Carroll Hall by the Girls' Catholic Central High School Glee Club.

The program directed by Sister Joselda will include piano and accordian solos, a comedy quartet, and dance numbers.

Among the choral numbers are listed Gounod's "Ave Maria" and "Unfold Ye Portals"; Victor Herbert's "Sweet Mystery of Life" and "Italian Street Song,"; "Whistle While You Work," "The Big Brown Bear", "The Old Spinning Wheel," "Carmena" and "Indian Love Call."

Lucille Turano will sing and also appear as piano soloist; Nancy Leo will sing "The Rosary" (Nevin); Dorothy Sell will play two piano solos, and Rose Drum will present two accordion solos.

DeMolay alumni and Master Masons are invited to attend.

Man Trimming Tree Breaks His Leg

A 34-year-old Celanese employe suffered a compound fracture of the right leg last evening when he fell out of a tree near his home.

Gilbert Hausman, of Potomac Park, was rushed to Allegany hospital and admitted after a cast had been applied. His condition was reported "fairly good," but the fracture was regarded as unusually severe.

Hospital attaches said Hausman was cutting the top out of a tree when he lost his balance. He fell about ten feet.

Slaughter House Shooting Fatal To Butcher, 49

Rifle Bullet Enters Temple, Death Instant

A .25 caliber rifle bullet through the right temple yesterday caused the death of Joseph F. Stitcher, well-known Cumberland butcher.

Dr. Linne H. Corson, deputy state medical examiner, said last night the death would be officially listed as accidental.

Stitcher, 49, of 440 Columbia street, was found dead at 11:25 a. m. yesterday in his slaughter house at the rear of Walnut street by William McCall, a meter reader for the Cumberland and Allegheny Gas Company.

A single-shot rifle used for killing stock was found on the floor near the body.

The case was investigated by County Investigator Terrence J. Boyle and Dr. Corson.

May Have Fallen

"He might have slipped," Dr. Corson explained last night. "Our investigation shows there was apparently no reason why Mr. Stitcher would have wished to take his own life.

"He had planned to pick up a cow this afternoon and bring it to the slaughter house to be killed. He was probably examining the gun in preparation.

"The bullet pierced the right temple and death was instantaneous," Dr. Corson concluded.

Well Known Here

Mr. Stitcher, a brother of Officer John H. Stitcher, of the Cumberland police force, was well-known in Cumberland where he has been a butcher for years. He operated a meat market on Columbia street.

Mr. Stitcher was a native of Cumberland and was the son of the late John and Caroline Stitcher.

Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Nina R. Johnson Stitcher; three daughters, Mrs. Edward Costello, Mrs. George Garlitz, and Miss Eleanor Stitcher; four brothers, William A. Frank, John H. and George W.; and three sisters, Mrs. Howard Riley, and Misses Dorothy and Mary Stitcher, all of Cumberland.

Kiwanis To Honor Doctor's Memory

Rabbi Aaron H. Lefkowitz will be the speaker at the weekly luncheon-meeting of the Kiwanis club tomorrow at the Fort Cumberland hotel.

Rabbi Lefkowitz will review "The Nazarene," by Sholem Asch, which depicts a sweeping panorama of Jerusalem 2,000 years ago, as seen from three different viewpoints—that of a Roman, a disciple of Christ the Nazarene, and of a young man of the people of Jerusalem.

The rabbi's talk will be preceded by a program in memory of the late Dr. Emmett L. Jones, Sr., who was a member of the club.

Isaac Hirsch will discuss "Dr. Jones as a Man," while Dr. Charles L. Owens will speak on "Dr. Jones as a Physician."

Allegany Student Wins State Essay Contest

Miss Helena Aronson, Allegany high school student, won first place in the state essay contest sponsored by the Ladies Auxiliary of the Veterans of Foreign Wars.

Miss Aronson will go to Baltimore Saturday, where she will receive her prize in ceremonies at the War Memorial at 8:30 p. m.

Winning the Maryland contest permits Miss Aronson to enter her essay in the national contest, which offers prizes of $1,000, $500, $250, $100, and numerous smaller prizes. Winners of the national contest will be announced at the national encampment of the auxiliary this summer.

Miss Aronson is managing editor of the Alcohi Mirror, active in the Student Congress, and has a prominent part in the senior class play, "The American Way." She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Aronson, 831 Mount Royal avenue.

Mrs. Smith Better

Mrs. Harold W. Smith, who underwent a major operation Saturday at Memorial hospital, is improving.

Railway Names G. W. Haworth Superintendent

Baltimore Man With Company Since 1911

Appointment of George F. Haworth, of Baltimore, as general superintendent of the Western Maryland Railway Company was announced here late yesterday.

Mr. Haworth, who has been with the Western Maryland since 1911, had held the post of maintenance-of-way engineer since 1936.

He succeeds the late Arthur Williamson, of Cumberland, who died Friday.

The new general superintendent is a native of Phillipsburg, Pa. He entered the railroad service in 1909, going first to the Erie and then to Chicago, Burlington, and Quincy before joining the Western Maryland.

Mr. Haworth also once served as recorder in the marine survey and dredging division of the city of New York; as a foreman of state highway construction in Pennsylvania, and as a surveyor of the U. S. Engineer's department.

Mr. Haworth's headquarters will be in the company office in the Standard Oil building in Baltimore.

Criminal Appeals Docket Cleared

Only Two Cases Tried In One-Day Session

With criminal trials disposed of in less than two days, the criminal appeals docket, comprising more than a score of cases, was taken up in Circuit court yesterday and completed in record time.

Only two cases went to trial, the remainder being disposed of by dismissals by both defendants and the state and by continuances.

Bernard W. O'Donnell, of 122 Springdale street, a truck driver, was acquitted of drunken and reckless driving in the only case heard by a jury.

The jury deliberated less than an hour before reversing the decision of a Cumberland magistrate, who had fined him $105 in February.

Edward J. Ryan and William R. Geppert were attorneys for O'Donnell.

Starkey Tried

Robert Starkey was convicted by Associate Judge William A. Huster of non-support of his wife and infant child after he waived trial by jury. Starkey, who had appealed a Juvenile court decision, was sentenced to a year in the House of Correction, suspended on condition he contribute a third of his earnings to his family.

Robert Conner, who had appealed a year's sentence in the House of Correction imposed in Juvenile court for contributing to the delinquency of two young boys, pleaded guilty when his case was called, but sentence was deferred.

Appeals dismissed by defendants included those of Eldred Kidwell, fined $200 in Cresaptown for drunken driving and driving after his license was suspended; Eugene Nixon, fined $25 for assault; Thomas Donius, fined $25 for assault; and Charles Twigg, serving sixty days for assault.

Cases Dropped by State

Cases dismissed by State's Attorney Morgan C. Harris included those of Laura G. Conrad, fined $5 for failing to keep in the proper lane; Walter L. Bender, fined $5 for reckless driving; Earl Twigg, convicted of skipping a board bill, and Marvin Jenkins, who had asked a jury trial on an assault charge preferred by his brother, City Officer P. C. Jenkins.

State's Attorney Harris said members of the Jenkins family declined to press the charge.

James I. Thomas, sentenced to 106 days on a drunken driving charge by a magistrate, in default of fine, pleaded guilty when his appeal was called but asked for more time to pay the fine.

Several Continued

Cases continued included those of Raymond Beeman, who asked a jury trial on a charge of contributing to the delinquency of a minor; Howard Grapes, who asked a jury trial an a charge of hunting without a license; Emma Valentine, sentenced in Juvenile court to six months in the House of Correction for contributing to the delinquency of her two children; John F. Flannigan, fined $5 for reckless driving; Charles L. Twigg, fined $5 for reckless driving; John William Bleiman, sentenced to a year in the House of Correction for assault; and Roy L. Burkett, fined $105 for drunken and reckless driving.

Employe Catches Heel In Elevator Gate

Hoban, an employe of the store, was admitted to Allegany hospital and X-rays were taken to determine the extent of his injuries.

Radcliffe Tours County, Stresses His Experience

Spends Strenuous Day Campaigning In Many Towns

Howard Bruce, striving to unseat George L. Radcliffe as U. S. Senator, yesterday was described as a "man without an issue" by the Senator in his stumping tour of Allegany county.

Miners, farmers, factory workers, WPA workers and professional men and women who congregated along the Senator's line of march yesterday heard Radcliffe declare "Bruce would merely be an experiment as a U. S. Senator."

"He has endorsed practically everything I have accomplished in Washington," the Senator continued. "He now comes before you with nothing new to offer in the way of a program."

Says Experience Counts

Reminding his listeners that these are troublesome times, Senator Radcliffe said that "having experience counts in the business of being a Senator the same as any other line of work or occupation."

Returning to Cumberland last night, Radcliffe summed up the series of short addresses he had been making all day in an impromptu radio address.

Says Walsh Forgetful

Referring to a recent blast at his record by Attorney General William C. Walsh, Senator Radcliffe humorously remarked, "I consider it not so much a change of heart as a lapse of memory."

(Walsh remarked that he couldn't think of a Senator who had made less of a record than Radcliffe.

Radcliffe, earlier in the day, had recalled a former speech made by Walsh at Cambridge, the senator's home town, when he lauded Senator Radcliffe's record. The Senator said he had documentary proof of the address.

Tells of His Record

Speaking informally, the speaker then outlined the various duties that have occupied his time while serving as U. S. Senator.

He referred to the trust and confidence President Roosevelt had shown in him, traced his activities as a member of the banking and currency and finance committees and the work he has done in connection with public works projects.

Radcliffe enumerated the various bills he had supported including the Wagner Labor Act which he characterized "as a big step in the right direction; not perfect, but then, few bills are when first passed." He listed the Guffy Coal bill, the Social Security Act and the Railroad Retirement Act as other measures which he helped shape up and actively supported.

Must Remain at Peace

Speaking on the foreign situation, Senator Radcliffe asserted "we must remain at peace and we are going to."

Commenting on preparedness, he declared "we must play safe and put our country in the proper condition of preparedness."

Concluding his extemporaneous radio talk, Senator Radcliffe asked Western Maryland voters to look at his record, a record that has been endorsed by Bruce himself in the past, he said.

Referring to his rival again, Radcliffe asserted "as we approach primary day, Bruce is a man without a case. He wants to be a senator, which is natural, but he has nothing to offer."

Following his radio talk, the senator and his lieutenants left for Frostburg where he made another short address and met a group of supporters at the Gunter hotel.

Visits in LaVale

The party then started back for Cumberland, stopping at the LaVale fire station where Radcliffe spoke briefly and met the members of the department.

The lobby of the Algonquin hotel and the Radcliffe-for-Senator headquarters were filled with people when the senator arrived back in town for another reception.

Affable and still full of pep despite an unusually long day, the senator met most of the people at the Algonquin, chatted briefly with a majority of them.

Few Women Present

The group at the Algonquin hotel, it was interesting to note, was comprised mostly of men with very few women being on hand.

From the Algonquin, Senator Radcliffe went to the American Legion home after which he visited the Veterans of Foreign Wars headquarters.

The county tour started from the Algonquin Hotel at 9:30 a. m. yesterday morning when the Senator and his supporters rolled out of town with the sound car blaring out a triumphal march.

The group went through the railroad shops and then went to Luke, where Senator Radcliffe visited the paper mill and later addressed a large crowd of employes at the Devon club.

Pomises Mt. Savage School Aid

From there, the tour continued to Westernport, Barton, Lonaconing, Vale Summit, Corriganville, Ellerslie and Mt. Savage with Senator Radcliffe making short addresses at a majority of the stopping-off points.

At Mt. Savage he spoke for fifteen minutes at the town's war memorial, emphasized his work and interest in the various veterans' groups and declared he would be glad to do his best to help Mt. Savage citizens to obtain an adequate school expansion program.

Senator Radcliffe will visit the Savage River Dam today and will then go into Garrett county. He will go directly to Baltimore from Grantsville after another day of meeting people and making speeches.

County Campaign Managers Put On Side Show to Main Political Bout

The battle of the campaign managers went another round last night.

This time it was the turn of M. P. Prendergast to return the punches landed the night before by Edward J. Ryan, who called Prendergast "disgruntled" because he wasn't made county commissioner.

Taking to the air last night to introduce Senator Radcliffe, Chairman Prendergast announced, "I can readily forgive the chairman of the Bruce campaign in the county because he has not been a Democrat sufficiently long to know much about the Democrats of the county.

Ryan "Switches" Partys

"Just a few years ago," Prendergast continued, "he ran for office on the Republican ticket in the county. He made no headway there, then joined the Democratic party. The ink was scarcely dry on the paper on which he changed his party affiliation before he was again filing papers as a candidate for office, this time on the Democratic ticket.

"The gentlemen who know why I made application for the office of county commissioner also know that I did not want the office. I filed my application simply because I would not stand back and have word come from Baltimore that this or that person could not have the office. Even Mr. Patrick J. "Derby" Stakem, who was appointed commissioner, knows why I filed for the office."

Prefers to "Ignore" Attack

Prendergast prefaced his broadside at Ryan by remarking, "after the very pleasant tour of the county today by Senator Radcliffe who will speak in the interest of his nomination at the primary elections on May 6, I will ignore at this time the reference made to me as chairman of the Re-Elect Radcliffe campaign in Allegany county.

After sufficiently "ignoring" the reference, Prendergast concluded, "but I would impress you with the fact that we are so pleased with the reception accorded Senator Radcliffe in the county today that we will not indulge in any further discussion of personalities."

PRINCESS—Miss Lenora Ellen Williams, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. Marvin Williams, of Romney, will represent the West Virginia Horticulture society as princess at the Apple Blossom festival in Winchester May 2 and 3, it was announced by Dr. William C. Vanmeter, of Petersburg, president of the society. Miss Williams is a student at Romney high school and editor of the school paper.

City Collects $80 Cash Gate On Big Fight

Mechanic Street Battle Outshines European War

The four battle-scarred veterans of the Battle of North Mechanic street assembled in Police court yesterday to hear the referee's decision.

Magistrate Frank A. Perdew, surveying the wreckage lined up before him, decided it had been a pretty good fight while it lasted, but he didn't distribute any medals.

Instead, he ordered each of the four battered belligerents to pay $20 in fines. Since each had already put up $20 in cold cash to get out of jail earlier in the day, there was no more collecting to do.

So the opposing forces were demobilized and sent home to do their spring plowing, or whatever else they had in mind.

Casualty List

Spectators, however, had a good chance to check up on just who had done how much damage to whom.

The results were painfully apparent. The best liar in the propaganda profession would have had a tough time denying that damage had been done.

There was F. Patrick Allender, business agent and big gun of the AFofL Building and construction Trades Council. He showed the effects of what the European communiques would have called a "terrific bombardment". Half his face was covered by bandages, and he brandished a badly battered eye.

Made Good Target

Allender's companion - in - arms, Kenneth Ramage, AFofL carpenter, was also covered with a considerable acreage of gauze. Spectators decided he had done pretty well as a target, too. Both seemed to have gotten their $20 worth.

The opposition, on the other hand, was less battered and less satisfied. They wanted a moral victory as well as a bloody one.

So Bartender Richard Meagher and William "Wild Bill" Niland announced they would appeal the verdict to Circuit couht.

Meagher suffered only bruises of a minor calibre, but Niland was sporting a bandaged left hand and a broken forefinger.

The Battle in Review

Around town, the Battle of North Mechanic Street aroused more war talk yesterday than the latest battle of the Skaggerak. It seems to have developed much the same way.

The opposing forces "made contact", as the admirals say, in Porter's restaurant when the AF of L men hailed Meagher and wanted to know why he didn't join the bartenders union.

To Heck with Neutrality

Hostilities developed, and the battle moved out into the open. Bartender Meagher and Carpenter Ramage engaged first. Then Allender steamed into position as reinforcements, only to be engaged by Boxer Niland, who has found it difficult to maintain his neutrality on previous occasions.

Then, like a battleship rolling in to put the finishing touches on a battle between destroyers, Policeman Wellington Lovenstein maneuvered his way through the crowd and took control.

It was all over before the excited spectators could pass the hat .

Arrested for Speeding On Greene Street

Walter L. Perdew, 507 Central avenue, is scheduled to be given a hearing tomorrow in Police court on a charge of careless driving.

Perdew was arrested yesterday morning on Greene street by Officers F. O. Daum and B. F. Hotchkiss for speeding.

Wife-Beater Freed On Wife's Plea

A Cumberland man was snatched from the shadow of prison walls yesterday by the intercession of his wife, whose charge had put him there.

He was Ralph Haenftling, who was sentenced Monday to a year in the House of Correction on a charge of wife-beating.

Yesterday, Associate Judge William A. Huster suspended the sentence and placed Haenftling on probation. The action was taken, it was reported, after Mrs. Haenftling had a change of heart and asked that the sentence be changed.

Rotary Inducts Eight Members

Victor D. Heisey Makes Address

Eight recently elected members were formally inducted into the Cumberland Rotary Club at its weekly luncheon yesterday at the Fort Cumberland hotel.

They are J. Elmer Bopp, Henry C. Swearingen, John L. Towler, Gilbert Miller, L. Leslie Helmer, Lester Martin, Porter Collins, and G. Edwin Allen.

Two other newly-elected members were slated for the ceremony, namely, Ralph James and Folsom Taylor, but were unavoidably absent.

The induction address was given by Victor D. Heisey, past president and chairman of the Rotary Information committee.

Heisey displayed a poster drawn by Ernest Shuler, of the commercial art class at Fort Hill high school, of which Heisey is principal, to outline the talk. It showed a huge lighthouse resting on solid rocks with four spreading rays of light.

The two solid rocks represented the ideals of democracy and nonsectarianism, on which the Rotary structure, the lighthouse, is built; and the rays represents the Rotary objects of club service, vocational service, community service, and international service, each of which, the speaker explained.

The program included vocal solos by Alfred Britten, a sophomore at Fort Hill, who was accompanied at the piano by Miss Dorothy Sebree, voice instructor at the school; and violin solos by Wilton Sykes, who was accompanied at the piano by his mother, Mrs. S. Lua Sykes.

Plans were furthered for attendance of local members at a Ladies' Night meeting of the Keyser Rotary Club, Friday evening at the Northern Methodist church there at which Robert Kazmayer, of Utica, N. Y., will give an address on "The Challenge of a Changing World."

Births

Mr. and Mrs. Virgil Frazee, of Oakland, announce the birth of a son yesterday morning at Memorial hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert H. Parker, of Bedford road, announce the birth of a daughter Monday night at Memorial hospital. Mrs. Parker was Miss Meredith Snowden, R. N., a graduate of the Memorial hospital nurses' training school.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold B. Hockman, 101 Pennsylvania avenue, announce the birth of a son Monday at Memorial hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. William M. Friend, of Keyser, W. Va., announce the birth of a daughter Monday at Memorial hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Kiser, of McCoole, announce the birth of a daughter Tuesday morning at their home.

Boy Hurt Playing

William Derlan, son of Mr. and Mrs. Herman B. Derlan, 325 Arch street, was injured last evening when he slipped and fell against a fence while playing near his home.

Allegany hospital attaches reported that young Derlan sustained a fractured right wrist, a cut above his right eye, and bruises.

Jr. Association Takes Inventory Of Its Future

Members Impatient To 'Do Something'; Plans Outlined

"Let's do something constructive for Cumberland" was the subject of a long discussion at the regular dinner meeting of the Junior Association of Commerce last night at the Central Y. M. C. A.

About fifty of the organization's 120 members met for dinner at 6:30 p. m. after which they settled down to what was scheduled to be a routine business session, but which terminate din a heated and highly interesting discussion.

The fireworks began when Leslie Helmer, president, opened the meeting to discussion, saying that the organization is just completing its first year of activity, and any suggestions or criticisms from the membership would be welcomed.

This brought the reply from a part of the membership, at least, that the Junior Association of Commerce has done little worthwhile during the year, and that something should be done.

Several projects were cited as worthy of investigation and report. There was also some comment by members that the board of directors and officers failed to keep the membership informed of activities and that the activity, as far as most members are concerned, is limited.

Record Defended

In defense of his record for the year, President Helmer, and a number of members of the board, as well as a number of other active members, explained that inactivity of the organization since its inception has been deliberate and intentional.

The time has been spent, it was stated in learning the plan and purpose behind the organization. Much time was taken in expanding the organization from a few charter members to its present size. Much study has been given to various possible projects and much information has been gathered that will provide an excellent foundation for future progress.

The desire of the board and the officers, it was emphasized is to attempt to build the organization soundly, and to work into civic and community problems and projects gradually.

Can Be Vital Influence

It was pointed out by a number of members that the Junior Association of Commerce can be a vital progressive force in the industrial, business, social, educational, and civic life of Cumberland. In other cities, many things have been accomplished by Junior Associations that have attracted nation-wide attention and have made those cities better places in which to live. It was emphasized by a number of members that if the organization is to survive, there must be projects of mutual interest and benefit undertaken, and there must be activity that will interest all members.

The president and members of the board agreed with the membership that projects which will be a civic interest and benefit must be attempted. It was pointed out that the organization must visualize the

Buying Junk from Boys Causes Second Arrest

Samuel W. Collins, 126 North Centre street, was arrested yesterday afternoon for buying secondhand goods from a minor without written consent from the youth's parents.

Detective Robert E. Flynn, charged Collins with buying goods from a 15-year-old boy.

David N. Miller, of 111 Mary street, was apprehended Monday afternoon on a similar charge.

Both men will be given hearings tomorrow in Police court.

Man, 24, Gets Four-Year Term For Robbery

Smashed Window, Took Watches, He Admits

Another stiff sentence was meted out in Circuit court yesterday as the criminal docket was cleared in almost record time.

Associate Judge William A. Huster sentenced Joseph Q. Sanders, 24, of Monongahela City, Pa., to four years in the Maryland penitentiary on charges of burglary and jailbreaking.

A three-year term was imposed for Sanders's part in smashing the plate-glass window of the Nierman jewelry store on Pershing street and making off with several watches. A one-year term, to follow the other, was handed out on the jailbreaking count.

Brother Awaits Sentence

The sentence is the same as that received by Raymond Louis Pfiel, 21, of Verona, Pa., who pleaded guilty to burglarizing the Washington street home of Edmund S. Burke and to accompanying the two Sanders brothers on the jailbreaking expedition, which gave them freedom for a few hours.

John Harrison Sanders, Joseph's younger brother, indicted for the Nierman burglary, jail - breaking and five cases of larceny and receiving stolen goods, has yet to be sentenced.

The older Sanders had originally pleaded not guilty to the burglary charge although admitting the jailbreaking. Yesterday, Leslie J. Clark, his attorney by court appointment, demurred to the first count of the indictment, which charged "felonious" breaking and entering.

Demurrer Over-Ruled

The indictment was faulty in using the term "felonious" in referring to what is only a misdemeanor under Maryland law, Clark argued.

He was over-ruled by Judge Huster, however, and then entered a plea of guilty to the second count of the indictment on behalf of his client. The four-year sentence followed.

Two one-year terms in the House of Correction and a three-year parole were imposed on three men charged with stealing aluminum from the Bierman junk yard.

The House of Correction sentences were meted out to Richard M. Clark and John Snyder, who had pleaded guilty, Arberry Wheeler, colored, who also pleaded guilty, was placed on probation for three years.

Coney Man Paroled

Another three-year parole was granted William N. Cook, of Lonaconing, who had pleaded guilty to stealing about $25 worth of merchandise from the Sloan store at Lonaconing. He was ordered to pay for the stolen goods, refrain from liquor, and be of general good behavior.

Meanwhile, Sheriff Lucian C. Radcliffe wasted no time in transferring the prisoners from the county jail to their new "homes."

Pfiel and the older Sanders were dispatched to the penitentiary yesterday morning. They were taken "down the road" by Deputy Sheriff Henry McKee and Special Deputy Harry Kenney.

Three other prisoners were taken to the House of Correction by special deputies. All sentenced to a year, they were Harley Coleman, of Elk Garden, W. Va., convicted of forgery; Ruhl Alderton, of Green Ridge, convicted of larceny and receiving stolen goods; and Joseph Madasky, of Frostburg, convicted as a parole violator.

Other prisoners sentenced will be transferred before the end of the week, Sheriff Radcliffe indicated.

Woman Hurt in Fall Down Cellar Steps

Two persons were treated at Allegany hospital and discharged yesterday afternoon after being injured in falls.

Mrs. Arlene McNeill, 19, wife of Adrian McNeill, 111 Decatur street, suffered bruises about both arms and minor head injuries when she fell down eight cellar steps at the Liberty restaurant on Baltimore street, where she was working.

Kramer Hawse, 28, of 303 Columbia avenue, was cut about the head when he slipped and fell on Bedford street.

WPA Recreation Leaders Finish Story Course

The story telling course conducted by Miss Mary Walsh, librarian of the Cumberland Free Public Library, for WPA recreational preschool leaders was concluded yesterday.

Miss Walsh presented each leader with a bibliography listing the best types of stories for pre-school children. These books are to be distributed among the pre-school leaders semi-monthly through the cooperation of the library.

Those attending were Nellie Meese, Geneva Hyde, Winifred, Wiland, Sarah Gwyn, Katherine Freeman, Emily Stewart, Ann Young, Margaret Shannon, Elizabeth Brewer, Mary W. Doll and Mrs. Elizabeth M. Cooper, recreational supervisor.

Federal Agents Break Up Obscene Picture Trade

An arrest in a little Idaho town several months ago today had resulted in the indictment of a 42-year-old Cumberland man on charges of interstate shipment of obscene pictures and literature.

A federal grand jury in Baltimore yesterday returned the indictment against Earl Hammond, a Kelly-Springfield Tire Company employe, of 11 East street.

Hammond is scheduled to be taken into custody today on receipt of a warrant by United States Deputy Marshal Howard P. Loughrie.

The indictment was returned on the basis of evidence and exhibits presented by the local postal inspector.

The agent here began his investigation some time ago after other postal officials reported that a man arrested in Idaho had in his possession correspondence from Hammond indicating that he was engaged in selling obscene pictures and literature.

Specifically, Hammond was accused of sending for a fee nearly 100 obscene pictures and an obscene booklet from Cumberland to a West Virginia town. Although he allegedly used the mails to solicit business and advertise his wares, he sent the material by express, it was reported. However, federal laws forbid the shipment of such material in interstate commerce, whether by mail or otherwise.

Hammond is scheduled to be tried at the May term of United States district court here.

Alumni Orchestra To Play Tonight

Program Includes Piano Solo

The High School Alumni orchestra, directed by Victor H. Bauman, will play tonight in the Fort Hill auditorium at 8:15 p. m.

Man Trimming Tree Breaks His Leg

A 34-year-old Celanese employe suffered a compound fracture of the right leg last evening when he fell out of a tree near his home.

Gilbert Hausman, of Potomac Park, was rushed to Allegany hospital and admitted after a cast had been applied. His condition was reported "fairly good," but the fracture was regarded as unusually severe.

Hospital attaches said Hausman was cutting the top out of a tree when he lost his balance He fell about ten feet.

Slaughter House Shooting Fatal To Butcher, 49

Rifle Bullet Enters Temple, Death Instant

A .25 caliber rifle bullet through the right temple yesterday caused the death of Joseph F. Stitcher, well-known Cumberland butcher.

Dr. Linne H. Corson, deputy state medical examiner, said last night the death would be officially listed as accidental.

Stitcher, 49, of 440 Columbia street, was found dead at 11:25 a. m. yesterday in his slaughter house at the rear of Walnut street by William McCall, a meter reader for the Cumberland and Allegheny Gas Company.

A single-shot rifle used for killing stock was found on the floor near the body.

The case was investigated by County Investigator Terrence J. Boyle and Dr. Corson.

May Have Fallen

"He might have slipped," Dr. Corson explained last night. "Our investigation shows there was apparently no reason why Mr. Stitcher would have wished to take his own life.

"He had planned to pick up a cow this afternoon and bring it to the slaughter house to be killed. He was probably examining the gun in preparation.

"The bullet pierced the right temple and death was instantaneous," Dr. Corson concluded.

Well Known Here

Mr. Stitcher, a brother of Officer John H. Stitcher, of the Cumberland police force, was well-known in Cumberland where he has been a butcher for years. He operated a meat market on Columbia street.

Mr. Stitcher was a native of Cumberland and was the son of the late John and Caroline Stitcher.

Catholic Girls Glee Club To Present Concert Tonight at Carroll Hall

Between fifty and sixty pupils will take part in a diversified program scheduled for tonight at Carroll Hall by the Girls' Catholic Central High School Glee Club.

The program directed by Sister Joselda will include piano and accordian solos, a comedy quartet, and dance numbers.

Among the choral numbers are listed Gounod's "Ave Maria" and "Unfold Ye Portals"; Victor Herbert's "Sweet Mystery of Life" and "Italian Street Song,"; "Whistle While You Work," "The Big Brown Bear", "The Old Spinning Wheel," "Carmena" and "Indian Love Call."

Lucille Turano will sing and also appear as piano soloist; Nancy Leo will sing "The Rosary" (Nevin); Dorothy Sell will play two piano solos, and Rose Drum will present two accordion solos.

Kiwanis To Honor Doctor's Memory

Rabbi Aaron H. Lefkowitz will be the speaker at the weekly luncheon-meeting of the Kiwanis club tomorrow at the Fort Cumberland hotel.

Rabbi Lefkowitz will review "The Nazarene," by Sholem Asch, which depicts a sweeping panorama of Jerusalem 2,000 years ago, as seen from three different viewpoints—that of a Roman, a disciple of Christ the Nazarene, and of a young man of the people of Jerusalem.

The rabbi's talk will be preceded by a program in memory of the late Dr. Emmett L. Jones, Sr., who was a member of the club.

Isaac Hirsch will discuss "Dr. Jones as a Man," while Dr. Charles L. Owens will speak on "Dr. Jones as a Physician."

Allegany Student Wins State Essay Contest

Miss Helena Aronson, Allegany high school student, won first place in the state essay contest sponsored by the Ladies Auxiliary of the Veterans of Foreign Wars.

Miss Aronson will go to Baltimore Saturday, where she will receive her prize in ceremonies at the War Memorial at 8:30 p. m.

Winning the Maryland contest permits Miss Aronson to enter her essay in the national contest, which offers prizes of $1,000, $500, $250, $100, and numerous smaller prizes. Winners of the national contest will be announced at the national encampment of the auxiliary this summer.

Miss Aronson is managing editor of the Alcohi Mirror, active in the Student Congress, and has a prominent part in the senior class play, "The American Way." She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Aronson, 831 Mount Royal avenue.

Mrs. Smith Better

Mrs. Harold W. Smith, who underwent a major operation Saturday at Memorial hospital, is improving.

Railway Names G. W. Haworth Superintendent

Baltimore Man With Company Since 1911

Appointment of George R. Haworth, of Baltimore, as general superintendent of the Western Maryland Railway Company was announced here late yesterday.

Mr. Haworth, who has been with the Western Maryland since 1911, had held the post of maintenance-of-way engineer since 1936.

He succeeds the late Arthur Williamson, of Cumberland, who died Friday.

The new general superintendent is a native of Phillipsburg, Pa. He entered the railroad service in 1900, going first to the Erie and then to Chicago, Burlington, and Quincy before joining the Western Maryland.

Mr. Haworth also once served as recorder in the marine survey and dredging division of the city of New York; as a foreman of state highway construction in Pennsylvania, and as a surveyor of the U. S. Engineer's department.

Mr. Haworth's headquarters will be in the company office in the Standard Oil building in Baltimore.

Only Two Cases Tried In One-Day Session

With criminal trials disposed of in less than two days, the criminal appeals docket, comprising more than a score of cases, was taken up in Circuit court yesterday and completed in record time.

Only two cases went to trial, the remainder being disposed of by dismissals by both defendants and the state and by continuances.

Bernard W. O'Donnell, of 122 Springdale street, a truck driver, was acquitted of drunken and reckless driving in the only case heard by a jury.

The jury deliberated less than an hour before reversing the decision of a Cumberland magistrate, who had fined him $105 in February.

Starkey Tried

Robert Starkey was convicted by Associate Judge William A. Huster of non-support of his wife and infant child after he waived trial by jury. Starkey, who had appealed a Juvenile court decision, was sentenced to a year in the House of Correction, suspended on condition he contribute a third of his earnings to his family.

Robert Conner, who had appealed a year's sentence in the House of Correction imposed in Juvenile court for contributing to the delinquency of two young boys, pleaded guilty when his case was called, but sentence was deferred.

Appeals dismissed by defendants included those of Eldred Kidwell, fined $200 in Cresaptown for drunken driving and driving after his license was suspended; Eugene Nixon, fined $25 for assault; Thomas Donius, fined $25 for assault; and Charles Twigg, serving sixty days for assault.

Cases Dropped by State

Cases dismissed by State's Attorney Morgan C. Harris included those of Laura G. Conrad, fined $5 for failing to keep in the proper lane; Walter L. Bender, fined $5 for reckless driving; Earl Twigg, convicted of skipping a board bill, and Marvin Jenkins, who had asked a jury trial on an assault charge preferred by his brother, City Officer P. C. Jenkins.

State's Attorney Harris said members of the Jenkins family declined to press the charge.

James I. Thomas, sentenced to 106 days on a drunken driving charge by a magistrate, in default of fine, pleaded guilty when his appeal was called but asked for more time to pay the fine.

Judge Huster granted him until October to pay the fine.

Cases continued included those of Raymond Beeman, who asked a jury trial on a charge of contributing to the delinquency of a minor; Howard Grapes, who asked a jury trial on an charge of hunting without a license; Emma Valentine, sentenced in Juvenile court to six months in the House of Correction for contributing to the delinquency of her two children; John F. Flannigan, fined $5 for reckless driving; Charles L. Twigg, fined $5 for reckless driving; John William Bierman, sentenced to a year in the House of Correction for assault; and Roy L. Burkett, fined $105 for drunken and reckless driving.

Employe Catches Heel In Elevator Gate

Hoban, an employe of the store, was admitted to Allegany hospital and X-rays were taken to determine the extent of his injuries.
